Lane-Mahoney Race Remains Undecided

Butler Holds Margin Over Markey in Bid For GOP Nomination In Senate Contest

BULLETIN

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19 (Tuesday)—The outcome of the race between Governor Lane and George P. Mahoney for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Maryland was still in doubt early today.

Lane was badly whipped in Baltimore City and trailed in the statewide popular vote but his strength in the county areas gave him a lead in the State's "electoral" vote.

In the "electoral" vote Lane led in units with 77 "electoral" votes, Mahoney in units with 72 "electoral" votes. A final of 77 would guarantee nomination.

With 912 of the State's 1429 polling places accounted for, Lane had a popular vote of 121,048, Mahoney a popular vote of 130,858.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 19 (Tuesday)—Governor William Preston Lane, jr., early today was leading George P. Mahoney in "electoral" vote units in Maryland's Democratic primary for the gubernatorial nomination.

Although he trailed in the popular vote, strong support in the counties gave Lane the edge in the matter of the vital "electoral" vote count which will determine the outcome.

United States Senator Millard E. Tydings was easily renominated in his bid for a fifth term in the Democratic primary and John Marshall Butler held a substantial lead over D. John Markey in the fight for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator.

All returns were unofficial.

With 784 of the State's 1429 polling places reported, Lane had 109,457 to Mahoney's 121,175 popular votes. The Governor led in units with 88 "electoral" votes compared to 58 for Mahoney.

It was possible that Lane would lose the popular vote but win the nomination under Maryland law which decides statewide primary contests on the basis of "electoral" or convention votes.

The 23 Maryland counties have from three to seven convention votes each, a total of 110 convention votes. Baltimore City has 42 convention votes—seven for each of its six legislative districts, so the State's convention vote total is 152. The candidate who has the highest vote in a county or legislative district wins that unit's convention votes.

Mahoney captured 35 of a possible 42 convention votes in Baltimore City, losing only one legislative district to Lane. With

Primary Race Highlights

MONTGOMERY COUNTY.—E. Brooks Lee's "Democratic Victory Committee" held substantial leads over the "Free Democrats" for both county and State offices. Organization Republicans defeated their independent opponents.

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY—The ruling Democratic organization triumphed in both local and State races, nominating their choices for commissioners and delegates. One organization Republican lost his bid for a commissioner nomination.

SIXTH DISTRICT—Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle of Hagerstown was surging ahead of W. Prescott Allen of Bethesda in the Democratic Sixth District Congressional race. GOP Incumbent J. Glenn Beall had no opposition.

Dr. Sander Leads Search for Nurse

HOOKSETT, N. H., Sept. 19 (Tuesday) (U.P.).—Dr. Hermann N. Sander led a party of more than 30 volunteers early today in a hunt for his 25-year-old nurse who disappeared from her family home yesterday.

The Candia physician, acquitted in the famed "mercy murder" trial in March, said the nurse, Miss Helen Maciolek, had been "emotionally upset" for the past few days and had eaten little or nothing.

Vote Machine And Judge Get Mixed Up

Those new-fangled voting machines and some old-fashioned politics got mixed up in Prince Georges County yesterday.

It happened at Spauldings Precinct 5. Democratic Election Judge Owen Mulligan insisted on locking up the voting machines after the number of voters had been counted. He complained he hadn't been properly instructed in reading the totals off the machines.

For a while it looked as though Spauldings tally wouldn't be available until the machines were forwarded to headquarters.

But the Republican election judges knew the ropes. They got the totals. After Mulligan locked up the machines, they told him what they were. The returns followed general county trends.

Also in Prince Georges County, eight machines didn't work when the voting started. A safety lock in the back of each machine had been jarred as they were transferred to the polling places. Nobody lost his vote, but technicians had to be called to unstick them.

Montgomery County voters, faced with one of the longest ballots in history, pulled levers like mad to record their choices. One, mercifully unidentified, pulled eight levers where only seven choices were required. He got the "tilt" sign—jamming the machine.

At the Melwood Precinct in Prince Georges, a tired official took the returns home.

In Montgomery County, Bethesda No. 10, returns also were missing.

$9.5 Million D. C. Roads Fund Asked

Record Budget Request Earmarks East Capitol Bridge, Parkway Link

34-million-dollar budget asked for schools. Page B-1.

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A record-breaking budget request of $9,544,000 was submitted to the Commissioners by the District Highway Department yesterday. About a fourth is earmarked for the East Capitol st. bridge and the District link of the Baltimore-Washington parkway.

The estimate, for the year between July 1, 1951 and June 30, 1952 tops the current appropriation by 2½ million dollars.

The department officials, however, feel the 1952 highway fund will make the larger expenditure possible. They had an $800,000 surplus at the end of fiscal 1950 and expect a surplus of $1,800,000 by the end of the current fiscal year.

At the same time, the constantly increasing number of automobiles on the road points to a steadily rising revenue for the fund from gasoline, auto registration and inspection levies. The D. C. four-cent gasoline tax remains in effect at least until June 30, 1952, and continuation will probably be requested then, department officials say.

The major part of the proposed budget is in the capital outlay division—$7,050,000 or $2,204,00 more than the current spending The operating expenses requested total $2,494,000, compared with the present total of $2,200,000.

The largest single request in the budget is $1,245,000 for the East Capitol st. bridge and a related item of $350,000 for an overpass topping the Pennsylvania Railroad and Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tracks. The overpass will be part of the bridge.

The current budget contains $2,041,800 for the bridge, but only about $400,000 is being used—and this for preparation of plans and soils surveys. The remainder will be carried over for actual building costs.

A third part of the bridge project will be requested in fiscal 1953, bringing the total cost up to about six million dollars. The District funds are being matched—dollar for dollar—by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads since this is a Federal aid project.

Another $750,000 is asked for projects needed for the link with the parkway, which will eventually lead up to the East Capitol st. bridge. The projects are:

Civil Defense Program Sent To Congress

Early Enactment Sought by President; Interim Agency Planned

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

A national civil defense program was put before Congress and the country yesterday by President Truman.

In sending the long-awaited 162-page document to the Hill, Mr. Truman said he intends to set up a temporary Civil Defense Administration pending congressional action.

The President said he hoped Congress would "consider this report carefully over the next few weeks as a basis for the enactment of legislation in the near future." That could mean legislators could study the measure at a post-election session of the Eighty-first Congress or in January when the new Congress convenes. Mayors of the Nation's 150 biggest cities will consider the report at a special meeting in Washington October 5 and 6.

The plan, prepared by the National Security Resources Board, provides, in the President's words, "a set of suggested guide posts for States and local communities" on which will rest the biggest part of the job. The plan calls for lots of Federal financial help but no figures are mentioned. To carry out the program, however, it is obvious that hundreds of millions of dollars will have to be voted by Congress as well as millions more expended by States and cities.

Conferees Pass Red Curbs Bill With Strongest Hill Proposals

Congressional conferees yesterday unanimously approved a catch-all "soak the Commies" bill combining the toughest features of legislation previously passed by both Houses.

Registration of Communists and officers of "front" organizations, bans on members of either group holding Federal jobs or receiving passports, and a requirement that they label their literature as Communist were kept in the bill.

So were provisions for detention of Communists in case of invasion, insurrection or declaration of war. The Senate's three-year limit on this authority was removed, with the result that the entire bill would become "permanent law."

A plethora of new language, designed to bring the bill technically within constitutional limits, was added, however. Using this language as a springboard, Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), principal author, practically challenged the President to veto it.

McCarran said no veto, based on constitutional objections, "can rest against this bill."

Whether Mr. Truman will sign, veto or permit the measure to become law without his signature is still a moot question on Capitol Hill.

His Congressional leaders, who predominantly voted for it in the general stampede for "anti-Red" voting records, are expected to

Ministers to Seek Home Advice Before Forming West Army Under World Staff

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—Foreign Ministers of the North Atlantic treaty countries today decided to seek the advice and consent of their home governments before creating a combined Western army under a single command.

They liked the idea of such a unified force; a communique tonight said they had "warmly welcomed it." Their statement spoke of "the urgent need to strengthen collective defense," and said the entire 12-nation North Atlantic Council was "determined to proceed with the necessary measures to this end."

But the Ministers felt they needed the definite approval of their Cabinets, and in some instances their Parliaments, before agreeing to put some or all of their national armed forces under an international staff.

Accordingly, the Foreign Ministers promised to consult home quickly, to seek "definite decisions," and to resume their meetings here within two weeks, subject to a recall by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, the North Atlantic Council chairman.

As for using German troops in a combined army, the proposal that had entangled the Council for most of its three-day meetings, the communique tonight did not even mention it. French objections had effectively blocked a decision at this time, even "in principle," and the French Cabinet would have to relent a good deal in the next two weeks to permit a decision at the resumed meeting.

When the 12-nation Council had received, and had issued its communique, the Foreign Ministers of the United States, Britain and France met to agree on a statement summarizing their own decisions of the past week. A statement had been promised for tonight, but even this appeared to have had rough sailing.

For at 8:25 tonight, the three adjourned for the night, saying only that they would have to consult representatives of the Benelux nations in the morning and perhaps issue a statement then.

Altogether the outcome of these meetings was a resouding anticlimax. If the Ministers showed unity, strength and determination in their secret meetings, the public could get little hint of it from the published statement.

After all, the United States had agreed to the revolutionary step

Army Report Blaming Reds For Polish Massacre Vanishes

A five-year-old Army report voicing belief that Russia—not Germany—massacred thousands of Polish troops in Katyn Forest in Western Russia in World War II has mysteriously disappeared. It vanished from either Pentagon or State Department files, the Army disclosed yesterday.

The Army made public a memorandum by Lieut. Col. John H. Van Vliet, jr., a former prisoner of war of the Germans, who visited the Katyn camp near Smolensk, expressing the belief that the Russians were responsible for the atrocity.

Van Vliet, now on duty in the Far East, said this was the private opinion of a group of British and American prisoners taken to the scene of the massacre in 1943. None of the group yielded to German efforts to get them to express an opinion at the time, he said, as they did not want to aid the enemy's propaganda war.

The Army officer said he saw no "single piece of evidence that could be taken as an absolute proof" of Soviet responsibility for the atrocity.

Van Vliet declared: "We pursued every line of attack to weaken the German story and avoid the conclusion that the Russians had done the killing. It was only with great reluctance that I decided finally that it (the German story) must be true."

His report was made only to top Army authorities after VE-day, and was declassified and released to the press yesterday, the Pentagon said.

When Army chiefs started looking into the matter after receiving press and congressional inquiries, Van Vliet's report could not be found. He submitted a second report this May.

When liberated, Van Vliet reached Seventh Corps Headquarters in Leipzig, and told his story to Gen. J. Lawton Collins, then Corps commander and now Army Chief of Staff. Collins sent him home to repeat it to the then director of G-2 of the War Department General Staff, Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell.

Bissell, he said, had him dictate a report, ordered it marked "Top Secret" and told him not to discuss the matter. The only reference to this report in Army files, the Pentagon indicated yesterday, is a letter dated August 21, 1945 to the Acting Director of the State Department Office of Controls, Frederick B. Lyon, from General Bissell. It forwarded a corroborating report from a British medical captain, Stanley S. B. Gilder, and mentioned that Van Vliet's report had been forwarded to Brig. Gen. Julius C. Holmes, then Assistant Secretary of State, on May 25, 1945.

The State Department has no record of having received the Van Vliet report and the Department of the Army so far has not found a receipt for the classified document or a copy of the covering letter. Holmes, said the announcement, does not remember having received the document, though Bissell remembers having sent it to him.

The Army Inspector General has been ordered to investigate.

Johnson's Farewell Address: 'Good Soldiers Are Expendable'

Bar Association Names Crime Liaison Committee. Page 7

Louis Johnson, making his swan-song appearance as Secretary of Defense, declared last night he would leave it to history to decide whether his record was good or bad.

The big, bald West Virginian strongly indicated he felt that, as a "good soldier," he voluntarily sacrificed his career for the welfare of the country. He spoke before the American Bar Association at Constitution Hall.

Johnson was dropped from President Truman's Cabinet after sharp criticism that his economy program had left us unprepared and after reports he had sought to undermine Secretary of State Dean Acheson because of differences on foreign policy. The Defense chief said, himself, that he was resigning because he had made more "enemies than friends" and felt another could get better support.

He leaves the Pentagon today. Gen. George C. Marshall, former Secretary of State, has been nominated as his successor.

Predicting an American victory in Korea and in the cold war, Johnson said:

India Asks U. N. Seat for Chinese Reds

Malik Walks Out When Austin Exhibits Red Gun From Korea

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 18 (U.P.).—India formally proposed tonight that the Chinese Communists be given China's seat in the United Nations General Assembly opening Tuesday.

The Indian resolution has in its preamble the argument that China's obligations in the U. N. cannot be fulfilled "except by a government which with a reasonable expectancy of permanence actually exercises control over the territory of that member and commands the obedience of its people."

It goes on to state that the Chinese Communist government "is the only such government functioning in the Republic of China as now constituted."

This is the reasoning that has been put forward repeatedly not only by Indian Premier Jawaharlal Pandit Nehru but also by U. N. Secretary General Trygve Lie.

The resolution also would recommend that all other U. N. organs oust the Chinese Nationalists in favor of Communist delegates. The consensus among observers here was that the Indian proposal stood no chance of adoption at this point.

In the Security Council Gen. Douglas MacArthur charged today that Communist China provided North Korea with 40,000 to 60,000 combat-seasoned troops of Korean origin.

Russia supplied the North Korean Communists with weapons and munitions as late as 1950, MacArthur said.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik tied the Council up in a wrangle lasting more than two hours as he waged a losing fight to delay the reading of MacArthur's report. He finally was voted down, 10 to 1.

At the end of the reading, United States Delegate Warren R. Austin introduced exhibits including a sub-machine gun. Malik ducked out of the chamber.

Indo-Chinese Outpost Lost To Vietminh

Further Attacks Seen; Communists May Be Developing New Crisis

HANOI, Indo-China, Sept 18 (AP). French sources announced tonight the capture by Communist-led Vietminh troops of the French outpost of Dongkhe, about 100 miles northeast of here near Red China's border.

The important post had been under violent assault since Saturday. The report of its capture, carried by the semi-official French News Agency, said it fell into Communist hands this morning.

In the battle for the post, in which several battalions of Communists, numbering about 2500 men, attacked, French losses were about 50 killed and 100 wounded, the news agency said.

Other Vietminh forces in greater numbers were concentrated to the northwest near Laokay, also near China's border.

French and Vietnamese police had reported they had smashed what they believed to be a Red plot to launch a general terrorist attack inside Saigon, capital of Vietnam.

The Communist moves indicated the possibility that a new crisis, predicted a fortnight ago by French and American sources, might be developing in this sector of the Asiatic front.

A French army spokesman said in the attack on Dongkhe, the Communist troops threw in artillery and mortar fire against French Foreign Legion forces. The French answered with rocket-firing planes.

Vietminh forces captured Dongkhe last May, but French parachute troops recaptured it almost immediately.

The French spokesman said 5000 other Communist troops have massed in the Laokay area, 180 miles northwest of Hanoi, and an attack is believed imminent. Laokay is along the Chinese Communist border.

Intelligence Indicates

New Red Attacks Are Likely, Defense Official Believes

CHICAGO, Sept. 18 (NYHT).—Paul H. Griffith, Assistant Secretary of Defense, said tonight that intelligence reports indicate the likelihood of new Communist-inspired attacks outside Korea.

Mr. Griffith, addressing an "emergency conference" of the American Transit Association, said the attack on South Korea "made it plain that the Communists were ready to abandon subversion and take up arms to destroy the remaining freedom in the world."

Then he added: "We have every reason to believe the Communists will be equally willing to launch other attacks at times and places suited to their ends."

With this expectancy, Mr. Griffith declared that Americans must "understand fully that our military concepts are sound—that the present situation has been thrust upon us by the Communists and not created by our own blunders."

Although he did not mention Louis Johnson, former Secretary of Defense, by name, Mr. Griffith defended his former superior throughout his speech. Despite rumors that Mr. Griffith was also slated for removal, it was learned tonight that he is now expected to remain in the same post under Gen. George Marshall.

"It is quite true," Mr. Griffith said, "that we did not have on hand an armed force of sufficient strength to crush immediately the invasion of South Korea," but, he continued, the emergency in Korea proved the basic validity of this country's military program.

BULLETIN

U. S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN KOREA (Tuesday) Sept. 19 .— United States Twenty-fifth Division troops advanced from two to four miles today on the southern front after wholesale North Korean withdrawals west of Masan.

A division spokesman said the infantrymen jumped off at 6 a. m. in a new attack and met practically no Red opposition. Elements on the southern flank advanced nearly two miles. Gains amounted to four miles on the division's northern flank.

The spokesman said the seventh North Korean division had "disappeared".

TOKYO, Sept. 19 (Tuesday) (AP).—Big Patton tanks led almost unopposed U. S. Marines into the Seoul industrial suburb of Yongdungpo today.

Thus far, the North Koreans have been unable to bring any strong force against the 40,000 Marines and doughboys who landed on the West coast and now are pushing vigorously inland.

Down in southeast Korea, American doughboys were across the Naktong River on the Red-held West side in two places. South Korean troops hammered out big gains in two sectors north of Taegu.

Warplanes hammered the North Koreans relentlessly.

It was a big day for United Nations arms.

U. S. carrier-based pilots saw the Marines in Yongdungpo. Behind them stretched an endless column of tanks, trucks and vehicles moving up from Inchon, Seoul's port 22 miles to the west.

Yongdungpo is a southwest industrial suburb of the Korean capital, on the southwest bank of the Han River across from the city proper.

Report of Peace Move By Reds Denied Here

The State Department said yesterday there have been no known peace overtures from the North Korean Communists.

Reporters were told by press officer Lincoln White that the department has "absolutely nothing to confirm" a London report published in an Italian newspaper that feelers have been made. White said the normal channel for proposals for a settlement would be the United Nations.

In the coordinated offensive to break out of the old Pusan perimeter in southeast Korea, elements of the U. S. Second Division Monday crashed across the Naktong River line and established a firm bridgehead on the west bank.

Quickly following, units of the First Corps, 23 miles farther north, crossed to the Naktong's west bank in 50 assault boats Tuesday morning, Associated Press Correspondent Ben Price reported.

This second Naktong crossing came under Communist attack,

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 18 (AP). Phoenix counted property damage estimated at one million dollars this afternoon when rain, hail and wind that reached 75 miles per hour lashed the southeast section of the city. More than 40 airplanes were damaged at sky harbor airport.

The Maricopa, County chapter of the American Red Cross furnished emergency housing for 25 persons and said that others of the nearly 200 homeless had found shelter for the night with friends and relatives.

Massive Air Blasts Hit Waegwan Region

By Peter Kalischer

ON THE TAEGU FRONT, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Forty B-29 bombers hurled 400 tons of high explosive into two square miles of Communist-held territory today in the most intensive air attack yet on enemy troops.

Some 1600 quarter-ton bombs, timed to explode 50 feet above the ground, raked the target area west of Waegwan with a deadly hail of fragments. The blasts were heard and felt in Taegu, 13 miles away.

Maj. Gen. Hobart R. (Hap) Gay, who watched the raid from a hilltop overlooking the Naktong River line, said the bombers' work was "beautiful."

The usually grave general pounded the ground with a swagger stick that used to belong to the late Gen. George C. Patton and chortled:

"Lord, I hope they (the Communists) were on there! If they were, they aren't now!"

The massive air blast was intended to open a hole in the enemy line for a break-out by Gay's First Cavalry Division. It was not immediately clear whether it had succeeded in this aim.

The bombs were dropped at 150-foot intervals in two equal target areas. Each measuring four tenths of a mile by 2½ miles. Between the two blasted areas was a "neutral zone" along the road and rail line leading north from Waegwan.

The communication lines were not bombed because American troops hope soon to use them for a drive north.

The silver-winged bombers hummed over the shell-pocked hills of Waegwan at 1 p. m. Gay and the correspondents who shared his "grandstand seat" caught only occasional glimpses of them as they flew north through broken cloud cover.

Suddenly, a hill eight miles away began exploding like a string of firecrackers. Red bomb bursts could be seen flecking a cloud of greasy gray smoke that hid the hillside entirely.

A few seconds later, the ground trembled and a roar like an express train passing close overhead reverberated from the hills.

Two batteries of 155-mm. howitzers a half mile behind us fired briefly. The scream of their shells faded away into silence. A mile ahead, a line of American soldiers could be seen strung along the crest of a ridge.

British Fliers Sink 2 Red Ships, Damage 6

TOKYO (Monday), Sept. 18 (U.P.). British carrier planes flying blockade patrols Sunday sank two enemy vessels off the west coast of Korea and damaged six others, general headquarters announced today.

A release from United Nations naval forces made public here said the British planes destroyed a 100-ton coaster north of Inchon and damaged a 500-ton freighter, four coasters and a minesweeper vessel.

The British also destroyed a 250-ton motor coaster near Kunsan, some 200 miles to the south.

The release said the battleship U.S.S. Missouri fired 300 tons of shells into the Pohang area in support of the South Korean Third Division trying to cross the Kysongsan River.

The announcement said the Mighty Mo poured the heavyweight of explosives into the Pohang area during a four-hour period, enabling South Korean troops to cross a bridge over the Hyongsang standing up.

The bombardment was carried out with shore fire control parties spotting the targets. Later, an American military adviser ashore messaged that "only because of your effective fire was it possible to cross the river without heavy opposition."

Col. Raymond In Command At McNair

Col. Raymond

Col. Julian E. Raymond has been named commanding officer of Fort Lesley J. McNair and has assumed his new post, the Military District of Washington announced yesterday.

Colonel Raymond, 52, is a native of Washington, attended public schools here including the old Central High, and was in the first class to graduate from the new Central High School in 1916.

He has held a commission in the Infantry for more than 30 years, except for a three year detail in the Signal Corps. Colonel Raymond entered the military service in 1917. He was a cadet captain at West Point. He is also a graduate of the Command and General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, Kans.

From 1935 to 1937, Colonel Raymond was assigned in the Philippine Islands.

During World War II, he was Chief of Staff for the 10th Armored Division for more than two years. He also served as Deputy Commander of the Special Allied Airborne Reconnaissance Force and at war's end was named Commanding Officer of troops at the Shrivenham American University.

Later, he was assigned by a State Department order as Chief of Staff of the U.S. participation in the Allied Mission for observing Greek elections.

From 1946 to 1948, he was Commandant of the European Command Intelligence School, sta- 1948 until Agust of this year, tioned in Oberammergau. From Colonel Raymond was Deputy Chief of the Counter Intelligence Corps at Fort Holabird, Md.

Colonel Raymond is married to the former Mary Mildred Clark of Washington. They have a daughter, Mary Jane, who is research librarian for the European Command Intelligence School.

'Aggressor Defeated' In German War Games

HEIDLEBERG, Germany, Sept. 18v (U.P.).—United States troops handed the "aggressors from the East" a decisive defeat in the 8-day war games despite several "secret weapons" employed by the "enemy," umpires ruled today.

Officers in charge of the one-hundred thousand man "Operation Rainbow," drew two conclusions: That United States forces were in fighting trim, and that in event of a real invasion they would be drastically outnumbered.

Colombian Frigate Offered to Aid Korea

Colombia announced yesterday that it has offered a frigate to the United Nations forces fighting in Korea.

Colombian War Minister Roberto Urdaneta-Arbelaez told a news conference that offer was made to the unified command through the United States State Department. The vessel, the Almirante Padilla, was built two years ago in the United States.

and Price indicated it was having rough going.

A United States Eighth Army communique issued shortly before noon said only that this force was "engaged with the enemy" after crossing the Naktong shortly after midnight 6 miles south of Waegwan. Waegwan is 12 miles northwest of the communications center of Taegu.

Second Division forces which made the crossing to the south advanced 2000 yards west of the river during Monday night, the communique said, and "organized a position on the high ground."

South Koreans Also Advance

The communique also reported advances by South Korean troops at both ends of the perimeter's northern front.

Regiments of the South Korean Sixth Division advanced more than 4 miles Monday night in the vicinity of Uihung, 22 miles north of Taegu.

More elements of the South Korean Third and Capitol Divisions crossed the Hyongsan River and made contact with Communist forces to the southeast of Red-held Pohang on the east coats.

Between the jaws of the 40,000-man strong Inchon-Seoul assault and the southern offensive, the Allies are seeking to crush the North Koreans who invaded South Korea June 25.

The Americans had withdrawn to the east banks of the Naktong August 4. Until now they had fought bitter, bloody battles to contain a series of enemy bulges in the precious rectangle of Korean land retained by United Nations forces.

Reds Appear to be Withdrawing

Now it appeared that the Reds were withdrawing north and northwest from the 125-mile lines, apparently hastening back belatedly to protect their vital communications center at Seoul.

General MacArthur's United Nations command headquarters said the North Korean Reds had not yet recovered from the initial tactical surprise of the Allied landings at Inchon Friday, and that Red efforts to stem the advancing Allied forces were resulting in complete destruction of Communist groups.

Enemy resistance was described as "stubborn but disorganized" by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, commanding the U. S. Tenth Corps.

North Korean troops and armor were moving toward the Seoul area from both North and South, however, under heavy aerial harassment.

Drive Going Smoothly

Vanguards of the U. S. First Marine Division, the U.S. Seventh Infantry Division and especially chosen South Korean Republican troops were thrusting smoothly forward toward the great primary prize of the Korean conflict: Seoul, the capital city which the Red invaders seized June 28.

The hour of liberation for Seoul and its population of more than 1,000,000 appeared near at hand.

Already Marine fighting planes were using the newly regained Kimpo airfield, 15 miles by road and 12 by air northwest of Seoul.

Associated Press Correspondent Relman Morin, with the attacking Americans, said North Korean troops, entrusted with the defense of Seoul, were "second-rate militia, strongly laced with the most wild-eyed fanatics."

Farther north on that same perimeter, 49 B-29 bombers made a heavy saturation raid on the west banks of the Naktong Monday, evidently in preparation for additional crossings by the First Cavalry Division northwest of Taegu.

Reds Fight Fiercely in South

In the extreme south, the United States Twenty-fifth Division fought small-scale but hard battles against determined Reds who held doggedly to commanding heights.

It was on the Han River front before Seoul that the most immediate drama of the war was being played out in rapid scenes.

Associated Press Correspondent Russell Brines on that front reported the United States Marine forward positions were about a mile west of Yongdungpo, industrial suburb west of the Han River on the southwest of Seoul.

American patrols have edged even closer to Seoul than the main striking force near Yongdungpo, Brines said. How much closer was not specified.

The Marines spearheading the general advance on Seoul jumped off at 7 a. m. Sunday in a two-pronged attack. One prong moved northwest and captured Kimpo airfield after nightfall, the other advanced northeast along the main Inchon-Seoul highway.

Marines Attacked on Flank

The Marine force moving northeast was attacked on its right flank by Reds who had been rushed up from the south. The piecemeal strikes of the North Koreans failed to halt the spearhead.

Marines who captured Kimpo staved off five wild suicide charges during the night in close-quarter fighting. A few hours after daylight the last of the Reds were wiped out after the Marines had been surrounded for 10 hours.

A carrier-based Corsair Marine fighter plane was first to land on the Kimpo runways. It was followed by Lieut. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, commander of Fleet Marine Forces in the Pacific, and Maj. Gen. Frank E. Lowe, President Truman's representative. They landed in a helicopter.

Kimpo's runways had been spared while the airfield was in Communist hands. American precision bombing knocked out hangars and airport buildings but left the runways intact for immediate use.

This strategy was paying off now.

Kimpo to Be Big Help

Kimpo is expected to provide a valuable supplement for the airlifting of supplies while the port of Inchon, damaged by the bombardment of American warships, is put back into shape.

American tactical aircraft concentrated their attacks up and down the Han River, where assorted groups of Koreans periodically tried to cross to the southwest banks. These Koreans presumably were Reds, although some of those blasted out of their flimsy boats and in shallow fords were clad in white—the traditional Korean civilian dress which the Communists frequently have used for deception.

American engineers were bringing heavy bridging equipment to the river's edge, preparatory to throwing across spans to replace those blasted down in the earlier stages of the war.

U. S. Seventh Division elements, looking in good shape, marched briskly ashore from landing ships at Inchon and headed into front line positions.

For the first time, South Koreans marched with them as integrated parts of the outfit. The South Koreans form about one-third of the Seventh Division's total strength. They were quickly equipped and trained in Japan for this operation. Most of them went into battle with full American uniforms except for shoes—they preferred and wore Japanese-made rubber shoes.

The Seventh Division was the last of four occupation divisions in Japan. The fact that it could be sent to Korea indicated, in the opinion of high officers, the extent to which the Japanese could be trusted to keep the peace after five years of occupation.

General MacArthur's headquarters reported North Korean casualties in the Inchon-Seoul area exceeded 1350 while prisoners taken approached 2000 more. In the Pusan perimeter in the southeast, United Nations forces inflicted 4290 casualties on the Reds and captured 239 prisoners on Monday, an official communique said.

Soviet Officer Tells of Red Aid to Korea

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—A former member of the Russian General Staff who was sent to help organize the North Korean army said today that Moscow refused to give the Koreans an Air Force for fear of provoking war with the United States.

Writing in the current issue of The Reporter, Lieut. Col. Kyril Dmietrievich Kalinov said he was sent as an artillery officer on the Soviet Military Mission late in December, 1948. He is now a political refugee living in Paris. He said the Mission's orders were to "form and train a new North Korean army in not more than 18 months." It was pointed out that the North Korean invasion of South Korea came exactly 18 months later, in June, 1950.

Kalinov said the plans for the North Korean army had been sketched at a Moscow conference between Politburo officials, representatives of Mao Tse-Tung, head of the Chinese Communist government, technical experts from the Russian Army and representatives of the North Korean government.

Not to Be Motorized

It was decided that the Korean army was to be equipped with "very modern armor, but the medium and heavy artillery was not to be motorized because gas had to be reserved for the tanks," Kalinov wrote.

"One of our directives stipulated that the North Korean army was to be organized chiefly with Koreans and all commands were to go to them."

The former Soviet officer said the Russians were impressed with the fighting quality of the Koreans. He quoted a Major Kalnin as saying, "I believe that the North Korean army, when it is well equipped and modernized, will be more formidable than the Japanese or Chinese armies."

Guided by Prudence

However, Kalinov said, the North Korean Air Force was to be "very limited." When he questioned the wisdom of the decision, Kalinov said a General Zakaharov, one of the Mission members, patted his shoulder and said:

"We must be prudent with these Koreans. We are going to form a modern army capable of maneuvering and striking. But we must not act like the sorcerer's apprentice so that one day this force might upset our game in the Far East.

"If the Koreans got a strong air force, together with a good armored army, they would be able to reach Pusan quickly and to attack the strongest fortifications in the straits separating Korea from Japan . . . reach Shimonoseki and Sasebo. That would mean war with the United States.

"We are not interested in provoking such a war."

Enemy's Radio Finally Admits U. N. Invasion

TOKYO, Tuesday, Sept. 19 (U.P.). North Korean Army headquarters reported the United Nations' invasion of Inchon to the North Korean people for the first time today.

A communique broadcast by the official Pyongyang radio said the North Korean army smashed enemy forces which landed in the Inchon area.

Elsewhere, the broadcast said, the Red Army continued to advance.

Moscow radio also broadcast what purported to be a North Korean communique. It said the Communists in the area east of Inchon and the Kimpo airdrome were "waging stubborn battles against American troops which are endeavoring to break through to Seoul."

Second Division Seizes 38 of Enemy's Nurses

WITH U. S. SECOND DIVISION, Korea, Sept. 18 (AP).—Units of the Second Division captured 38 North Korean nurses today.

It was the largest number of enemy servicewomen seized in one day since the Korean war began.

Reds, Unready, Knew Invasion Was Coming

INCHON, Korea, Sept. 18 (U.P.). The Communists knew the Yanks were coming but they just weren't able to get ready, American officers agreed today.

"Let's not say they weren't expecting us," one officer said. "Let's say they just weren't prepared for us."

"I would say if they had had another 30 to 60 days to prepare, this would have been a tough nut to crack," another officer said.

War Crimes Tribunals Will Handle Atrocities

WITH MacARTHUR AT THE FRONT, Sept. 17 (Delayed) (U.P.).—War crimes tribunals will be set up to try Communists guilty of atrocities, it was learned today.

One of the first atrocity cases to be heard will be the murder by North Koreans of more than 30 anti-Communists at Inchon the night of the U. N. invasion. Two men, who survived the mass killings by playing dead, will furnish information for use by the war crimes tribunals.

U. S. Signs 5 Years Old Mark Road to Seoul

INCHON, Korea, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The road to Seoul from Inchon still is marked by signs placed there five years ago by the United States armed forces in Korea.

One sign said "Drive Carefully" and troops along the road did just that. There was heavy firing just beyond the next hill.,

Another sign said: "You are now leaving Ascom City. Hope you enjoyed yourself with USAFIK (U. S. Armed Forces in Korea) special troops. Come again."

There was heavy fighting in Ascom City before it fell.

Limit on Multiple Directorships Urged

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18 (U.P.).—An official of the Federal antitrust division today urged new legislation to outlaw multiple directorships in corporations with total assets of more than $60,000,000.

Victor H. Kramer, assistant chief of the trial section of the Justice Department's antitrust division, writing in the Yale Law Journal, called for the new law on ground that big business is too complex for any one human being to direct effectively the affairs of more than one giant corporation.

Early Recovery From Wounds Seen for Photographer Jones

Charles Jones, whose twin brother Eugene was wounded Friday while filming the UN landing at Inchon, wired NBC Television yesterday that "Gene should be up and around in two or three weeks."

The Jones boys, Washington photographers, are filming the Korean war for NBC television. Gene left The Washington Post photographic staff to take the assignment, Charlie the Times-Herald.

Charlie's wire reported that Gene was 500 yards inland when he was wounded in the chest by a mortar fragment.

Then Gene crawled back to the rear lines. But he refused medical attention until the film in his newsreel camera was properly packaged to avoid damage. Gene, said Charlie, wanted to make sure his "exclusive" pictures were cared for.

The 24-year-old twins had tossed a coin in the first place to see who would film the landing.

Gene took three first prizes, a second award and an honorable mention in the last White House news photographers' contest.

By roaming the D. C. area in the early morning in specially equipped cars, the brothers obtained some memorable spot news pictures. They were copyboys on Washington newspapers at 16.

Onion Crop Up 21 Pct.

ALBANY, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—New York, the Nation's top onion-producing State, expects its current crop to be 21 percent larger than last year. The crop is estimated at 7,500,000 sacks of 50 pounds each. The summer cabbage crop will be 41 percent greater.

Gen. MacArthur Enters Inchon, Symbol of Allied Resurgence

INCHON, Korea, Sept. 18 (AP).—There is a strange and gratifying irony in General MacArthur's personal leadership of Allied landing forces in their smashing offensive against the North Koreans.

Once before, in the Philippines, MacArthur was beaten temporarily and then came back to lead a vast invasion force liberated the islands for the Filipinos.

Now, at the end of a desperate holding campaign, he has returned to another overrun country at the head of a powerful and confident force.

During his front-line inspection tour Sunday the general took professional interest in inspecting enemy dead. He remarked upon the Russian-style shoulder tabs worn by some of the khaki uniformed bodies.

One still had a Russian-made submachine gun slung across his shoulder. An officer picked it up and blood dripped from the barrel.

At an Inchon stockade MacArthur gazed grimly at Communist prisoners. If any of them recognized the general they hid their feelings.

Capt. John Griffin of Vallejo, Calif., the stockade commander, said 20 percent of the prisoners were believed to be South Koreans impressed into service. Among them were 90 civilians who had been laboring for the North Koreans. Eleven officers also had been captured.

Inchon itself was in ruins. Virtually every downtown building had been hit by heavy naval shelling or aerial bombing and rocket attacks. The thunderous pre-invasion bombardment doubtless saved numerous American lives when the landings took place.

On the scarred flanks of Wolmi Island, a knob of land dominating Inchon harbor, a Russian 76mm field gun still stood. It looked as if it had just come from the factory.

At key points on the island the Communists had been building new gun positions, using heavy with sandbags. None of these had 12-by-12-inch timbers covered been smashed, despite the terrific blows dealt Wolmi by bombs and jellied gasoline.

Preparations were under way to inaugurate a Korean civil government to handle Inchon's scrambled affairs. The former mayor was liberated from prison, where the Reds had thrown him, and restored to office with authority to organize a government.

Civilians continued trying to piece together shattered lives. The city's normal life still was suspended, but dozens of Koreans went immediately on the Army's payroll in the huge job of unloading supplies and munitions for allied troops.

When the tide went out Monday, several landing ships were stranded in Inchon's extensive mud flats. Shore gangs worked feverishly to unload others in time to get ships back into deep water before they became stuck in the mud.

Rear Adm. L. A. Thackrey of San Diego, Calif., commander of an amphibious group, said there will be a period of five or six days beginning Wednesday when it will be impossible to bring large ships to Inchon's wharfs. Up to now, however, more than the contemplated minimum of 3000 tons daily have been unloaded.

Army to Call 9565 Reserve Officers

The Army yesterday announced that it would call up 9565 reserve captains and lieutenants not now assigned to troop program units.

They will go on active duty in November.

Also being ordered to active duty are 205 company grade chaplains and 240 company grade Army aviation officers.

In the Second Army area (Washington, Maryland, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, Delaware, Kentucky) 483 captains, 1217 lieutenants, 37 chaplains and 44 aviation officers are expected to be called.

Plans for the departure today of the 171st Military Police Battalion, alerted September 11, were announced yesterday by National Guard headquarters. The unit is going to Camp McCoy, Sparta, Wisc.

The battalion will participate in a farewell ceremony at the National Guard Armory at 8:45 a.m. today attended by Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commanding general of the District National Guard.

Leaving the Armory at 9 a.m., the battalion will march to the Baltimore and Ohio's Eckington yard, and move out of the yard at 10 a.m.

Lt. Col. Sylvester F. Blackwell, of 1820 California st. nw., a chemist in private life, is commanding officer of the 171st. Major Robert S. Williams, of 1614 Girard st. ne., a Post Office employe, is executive officer. Both are World War II veterans.

On the recruiting front, the Air Force yesterday enlisted 11 men and the Army 6. Twenty-five other applicants were found qualified by one or the other of the two services and will be enlisted today.

The Navy enlisted 10 and rejected six applicants, and the Marines accepted two out of 15 applicants for future enlistment.

On Parole

May Home, Insists He Is Innocent

PRESTONSBURG, Ky., Sept. 18 (AP).—Andrew J. May came home from prison today still insisting that he is innocent, but saying although "I was made to suffer, I am not embittered."

May

The former chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, now 75, added in a statement:

"I feel that I have many years of service to give and hope that I am permitted with the help of God tot look only to the future."

May was released from the Federal correctional institution at Ashland, Ky., at 12:15 a. m.—15 minutes after his parole became effective.

He had served nine months and 13 days of a maximum sentence of two years for conspiracy and bribery in wartime.

The former Congressman, "Andy Jack" in Prestonsburg, was met by his son, Robert V. May. They drove the 80 miles to his big red brick home here, where he "held court" on the porch for neighbors and other friends.

But he shied from newsmen and photographers, ducking into the house when they approached. He steadfastly refused to pose or grant an interview.

The statement, written in longhand on May's personal stationery, with a letterhead saying, "A. J. May, attorney and counsellor," was issued through Norman Allen, editor of the weekly Floyd County Times.

Truman Gets Bill to Assist Home Guards

The House yesterday completed Congressional action on a bill to help the States set up home guards while their National Guard forces are on Federal duty.

The measure, previously passed by the Senate now goes to the White House.

It calls for the Federal government to supply small arms, ammunition and uniforms to the home guard units.

The Senate approved and sent to the White House a bill permitting the Coast Guard to use men drafted through Selective Service, call up reserve and retired personnel, and extend their current enlistments for an additional 12 months.

The measure places the Coast Guard in the same status as the Army and Navy on personnel matters.

Bills to make sure the boys in the armed services overseas get a chance to vote were passed unanimously by the House and sent to the Senate.

One measure makes it mandatory that the Defense Department hand to each eligible man a postcard application for an absentee ballot in his home state.

A second recommends the states use their regular absentee ballots to answer the applications and does away with a weight limit of one ounce on such material being put in the mail.

Slack Admits Giving Reds Secret Data

GREENVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Alfred Dean Slack pleaded guilty today to giving Russian agents United States World War II secrets of an explosive whose power was second only to that of the atom bomb.

Federal attorneys recommended that Slack be sentenced to 10 years in prison.

United States District Judge Robert L. Taylor reserved decision until after he could study all documents in the case.

Slack showed no emotion and answered "guilty" in a strong voice.

He had been indicted September 1 on charges of turning over to Soviet spies samples of R.D.X., a powerful explosive, while he had been working as a chemist at the Holston Ordnance Works at Kingsport, Tenn.

Assistant District Attorney James Meek said the Government was asking for only a 10-year sentence for Slack because the "degree of his guilt" was not as "serious" as that of Harry Gold, another scientist to whom Slack is accused of feeding secrets of the high-explosive. Gold has pleaded guilty to espionage but has not been sentenced.

Slack's attorney told the court that Russia was an ally of this country when Slack handed over secrets and samples of the explosives to Gold.

Slack was linked with a spy ring by Gold, a Philadelphia chemist who was arrested by Federal agents together with David Greenglass and Julius Rosenberg and his wife, Ethel.

Adverse Report on Loyalty Of Lee Issued by Commerce

The Commerce Department Loyalty Board, after a second study, has rendered an adverse report on Michael W. Lee, it was disclosed yesterday.

The finding against the 42-year-old, Manchurian-born economist was actually handed down 10 days ago, it was indicated. Department officials said they understood Lee was planning to appeal the verdict.

Lee's first recourse would be to Secretary of Commerce Sawyer. If Sawyer upholds the decision, Lee can bring the case to the President's Loyalty Review Board, headed by Seth W. Richardson.

Lee, who held down the job of chief of the Far Eastern branch of the department's Office of International Trade, has been a long-time target of congressional attacks. These came to a climax last May, when Senator Malone (R., Nev.) demanded that Lee and William W. Remington, an OIT economist, be fired.

At about that time, Secretary Sawyer had instituted another loyalty investigation on Lee. Almost a year before, the department's Loyalty Board had made an investigation and reported that "reasonable grounds do not exist to believe that (Lee) may be disloyal to the Government of the United States."

But with Malone's demand, Sawyer asked Lee to resign. Lee declined, and Sawyer thereupon instituted proceedings to get rid of him on administrative grounds. Since then, however, Lee has been in ill health and the administrative proceedings were suspended.

With the adverse loyalty report earlier this month, Lee was officially dropped from the department's payroll.

MICHAEL W. LEE
. . . Reported planning appeal

Congressional accusers have charged that Lee deliberately delayed shipments of aviation gasoline to Nationalist China during its war with the Red Chinese forces. Lee, in return, has vigorously denied any such action and has insisted he was never a Communist and never unwise enough to be duped into joining a Communist front organization.

Remington resigned from the Commerce Department shortly after Sawyer demanded action. He had resisted until a New York grand jury charged him with perjury in having denied that he was ever a Communist.

'Hill' Conferees Vote Drastic Communist Controls Measure

urge him to sign it, to deprive Republicans of a campaign issue.

The omnibus bill, wrapping up the President's basic security recommendations in the big bundle of far more drastic proposals, is expected to start on its trip to the White House on Wednesday, when it goes to a House vote. The Senate may act late Wednesday or Thursday.

Leaders have predicted that whatever Mr. Truman does with it, he will do quickly. If he fails to act on the legislation when it reaches him late this week, Republican supporters of the anti-Red measure have threatened to try to hold Congress in session until he does.

Bills Integrated

The so-called "compromise" approved yesterday by the conferees lifted almost intact the registration features of the House-passed Wood bill, and combined this with other sweeping features of the Senate's so-called McCarran bill.

The Wood bill went beyond the McCarran bill in three major provisions, and the conferees retained two of these: A ban on Communists or "Front" members holding jobs in either defense plants or Government and a prohibition against Government or defense plant employes contributing funds or services to a Communist organization.

Conferees eliminated the third provision, barring "Front" members from jobs in defense plants, but continued the ban on Communists holding such jobs.

Then the conferees went beyond the provisions of both bills to broaden the definition of defense plants. The new definition, subject to specific designation by the Secretary of Defense, would include "airports, airport facilities, vessels, piers, waterfront facilities, railroads, public utilities, laboratories and stations."

The original bills listed only "plants, factories, or other manufacturing or service establishments" or parts thereof designated by the Secretary, in the defense plant class.

Other provisions of the composite bill:

Make Communists and officers of "Front" groups liable to penalties ranging up to 10 years in jail and a $10,000 fine for failure to register.

Outlaw conspiracies that would "substantially contribute" to establishment of a foreign-controlled totalitarian dictatorship in the United States.

Make picketing of Federal courts a felony.

Prohibit Federal employes from passing on classified information to Communists unless specifically authorized to do so, or Communists from receiving such information.

Make it a crime for persons to "conceal or fail to disclose" that they are members of Communist organizations in seeking Government or defense plant jobs.

Deny Communist organizations the benefit of special income tax exemptions.

Provide for exclusion and deportation of aliens who are members of Communist organizations.

Empower the Attorney General to detain deportable aliens up to six months while arrangements are being made for deportation, and provide for "supervision" if they cannot be deported.

Preclude naturalization while deportation proceedings are pending.

Require aplicants for naturalization to read, write and speak the English language.

These must swear they will bear arms, if required by law, or, if they have religious scruples, swear they will perform noncombatant service, if required.

About the only thing eliminated from McCarran bill restrictions on aliens was a provision for an FBI neighborhood check-up on naturalization applicants.

Also included in the bill were White House-recommended stiffer penalties for sabotage and espionage, an increase in the statute of limitations to 10 years in espionage cases, and requirements that foreign-trained spies and saboteurs must register.

In toning down or "Constitutionalizing" the so-called "concentration camp" feature, conferees provided that Communists detained in any wartime mass roundup must not be confined with felons or required to perform "forced labor." Internees can appeal to obtain their release if they can prove their innocence. This additional language was written into the detention title:

"Nothing contained in this title shall be construed to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus."

Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.), chairman of the House conferees, said he wanted to emphasize the proposed Red internment procedure is "not a criminal proceeding—it is civil detention."

2 Fined $100; Didn't Register As Communists

CUMBERLAND, Md., Sept. 18 (AP).—Two Communists won a quick appeal to Circuit Court today after a magistrate fined them $100 apiece for failure to comply with a new city ordinance requiring all Communists in Cumberland to register.

A hearing—before all three judges of Maryland's Fourth Judicial Circuit—was set for October 7.

Convicted of failing to register were William Boyd Coleman and Arthur Schusterman.

They voiced strong objections at a City Council meeting when the new ordinance was passed September 5, acknowledging they are Communists. They also have described themselves as members of the State and National Communist parties in an earlier court action in which they attacked legality of the city ordinance.

Coleman and Schustermen both are former presidents of the CIO Textile Workers Union local at Celanese Corporation's Cumberland plant.

They were defense witnesses last year in the long trial of 11 Communist leaders in New York.

The TWUA's local announced soon after today's hearing that it is moving to expel the two.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew convicted them in police court today and fined them $100 apiece.

The fines remain in abeyance and they continue free on $200 bond apiece pending the circuit court hearing.

Cominform Urges Reds to Launch Propaganda Drive

LONDON, Sept. 18, (U.P.).—The Cominform called today for a three-pronged Communist propaganda campaign on both sides of the Iron Curtain.

An editorial in the latest Cominform journal appealed to Reds in the new "peoples democracies" as well as in the "imperialist" nations to launch into "a militant offensive of Marxist-Leninist propaganda intimately linked with revolutionary practice."

It listed three principal objectives of the new drive:

1. To imbue Communist themselves with confidence in the complete victory of the Communist cause:

2. To develop love and loyalty for the Soviet Union, and,

3. To fan hatred of "imperialist warmongers in the ranks of the working class."

'Blacklist' Prober Named

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The American Civil Liberties Union announced today that writer Merle Miller will head an ACLU investigation of "blacklisting" in the radio and television industry.

Two District Men Missing In Action; Third Is Wounded

Two Washington men are missing in action and a third has been wounded in action in Korea.

Capt. Robert L. Timmons, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis L. Timmons of 1407 G st. se., has been missing since August 23, the Department of Defense has informed his family.

A World War II veteran, Captain Timmons was fighting with the Fifth Regimental Combat Team. He had served overseas in the Philippines from May, 1945, to June, 1946.

Timmons was discharged from the Army in July, 1946, and after working for the Government Printing Office, returned to service in December, 1948. He was stationed in Honolulu until he was ordered to Korea.

His wife, Mrs. Jane Winifred Timmons, returned from Honolulu two weeks ago and is living with her sister at 8 Fort Worth dr., Alexandria, Va.

Timmons has a 7-year-old son, Richard.

A native of Washington, Captain Timmons graduated from Eastern High School and attended George Washington University.

Also missing in action is Pfc. Shermont M. Hill, 19, nephew of Mrs. Francis Anderson of 1464 Belmont st. nw.

He has been missing since August 20. Hill has been in the Army since 1947. He went overseas from Fort Lewis, Wash., in July and was serving with the Ninth Infantry Regiment, his aunt said.

Born in Washington, he attended Brown Junior High School. His father died in 1945, and his mother died last year.

Pfc. Herbert O. Douglas, 22, son of Mrs. Lelia Douglas of 1200 Sumner rd. se., was wounded slightly September 2 while fighting with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division. He had been at the Front since July, his mother said.

Pfc. Douglas

He has two brothers, now serving overseas. They are Ralph, 21, with the Second Infantry Division in Korea, and Raymond, 18, with the Air Force in Guam.

Three older brothers were in the service during World War II.

Douglas was born in Washington, and attended Armstrong High School and Phelps Vocational School. He enlisted about three years ago.

After training in Georgia, he was sent to California and went overseas in December, 1949.

Battleship New Jersey Reactivated

The Navy said yesterday that the 45,000-ton battleship New Jersey is being de-mothballed for return to active fleet.

She will be the second battleship in operation. Her sister ship, the Missouri, arrived in the Far East last week to start shooting duty in the war.

The "Mighty Mo," aboard which the Japanese surrender documents were signed to end World War II, had been in the Atlantic fleet for training purposes.

Two other 45,000-ton battleships remain in the reserve fleet—the Wisconsin tied up at Norfolk, Va., and the Iowa at San Francisco.

The de-mothballing of the New Jersey has started at the Brooklyn, N. Y., Navy Yard where she has been in storage. She was commissioned soon after the Iowa, first of the class, went to sea in May, 1943. Both the New Jersey and the Wisconsin were withdrawn from the active fleet at about the same time, December, 1947.

U. S. Aid Restrictions On Trade Denounced

Romanians Say

Saboteurs Cut Ploesti Oil Output

VIENNA, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Soviet technicians and equipment are boosting crude oil output in the rich Ploesti fields but newspapers from Romania unintentionally reveal that sabotage and absenteeism are giving trouble.

There is no question that there has been an intensified drilling program, directed by Russian supervisors and using much Soviet equipment. Hundreds of abandoned sub-marginal sites have been redrilled.

The 1950 production schedule called for increasing output by 32.5 percent over 1949 and by December production was to equal the highest level before the Communists took over. But guarded press reports admit the schedule has not been met.

The peak year was 1943—just before Allied bombers made shuttle raids over the fields. After five years of repair and new drillings, that production has not yet been reached and the newspapers carry almost daily articles putting the blame on various matters.

Triian Munteanu, Communist Party secretary in the Dambovitza District, recently blamed lack of dwellings and supplies in the oil fields, but also denounced the "elements who look toward the past and in various ways are manifesting their hostility toward the regime, going as far as sabotage."

Marshall Plan Administrator Paul G. Hoffman yesterday denounced as unsound and unworkable a pending legislative amendment that would deny American economic aid to any Western European country that sent "defense" materiel to the Iron Curtain countries.

The provision, known as the Kem-Wherry-Byrd amendment to the supplemental appropriation bill, was rejected by the House last week. Senate conferees on the bill, however, are still pushing it.

Its effect, Hoffman said at a press conference yesterday, would probably be the opposite to that intended. It contemplates bludgeoning European nations who are far more amenable to persuasion than pressure.

As drafted, the amendment is so rigid it probably could not be enforced, Hoffman implied. If it were enforced literally, it would mean a stoppage of all East-West trade. The result would be a denial to Western nations of goods—particularly lumber, grain, ore and other raw materials—vital to Western Europe's economy and therefore essential to its new defense efforts.

Hoffman's argument included these points:

1. Since 1945, shipment of arms and ammunition from the West to the East have been nil. Shipment of goods with a possible military potential "have represented an insignificant percentage of the total trade."

2. The major objective of ECA policy "has been to minimize the flow of materials of military value from the West to the East and to maximize the flow of such goods from the East to the West. This objective has been accomplished."

3. Shipments of military goods from the West to the East can be controlled only by concerted action of all nations. This concerted action cannot be achieved "by the use of threats or by wielding a big stick." Nations that have to be "bullied" into compliance will not prove to be the kind of friends that are necessary when the fighting gets tough.

Hoffman went on to assert that under the pending amendment, the Secretary of Defense would be required to compile a list of all articles commonly used in the manufacture of arms, munitions and military material. None of these items could be shipped, under penalty of having ECA aid cut off to the offending country.

Yet these items would include such common goods as cotton, wool, and such obscure and seemingly innocent commodities as duck feathers.

The great proportion of East-West trade, now running at about three billion dollars a year, consists of non-military goods, Hoffman declared. Only an infinitesimal amount of goods of direct military use has gone from West to East, he insisted.

On net balance, Hoffman said, the East-West trade "does not appear unfavorable to the military strength of the West."

If the exchange were stopped, it would mean that the United States would have to supply Western Europe with the billions of dollars worth of essential goods it now obtains from the East, said Hoffman. If it did not, European economic strength would be disasterously affected, the standard of living would drop, and the population would be once again prey to Communist propaganda.

British to Halt Machine Tool Flow to East

LONDON, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Britain today announced it will halt all shipments of machine tools to Russia and its satellites until it can be determined whether they are needed in the rearmament of the Western world.

The pledge, extracted from Harold Wilson, president of the Board of Trade, during a Commons debate, was a triumph for Winston Churchill's Conservatives, who have demanded action from the government.

The Conservatives will attack the Labor regime on another front Tuesday night, when the controversial proposal to nationalize the steel industry comes up for a confidence vote in the House.

Oliver Lyttelton, former Minister of Productions, declared in the house today that Britain was exporting giant lathes, used in the production of cannon, to Russia and Poland.

Churchill in a radio broadcast a month ago charged the Labor government with sanctioning the export of machine tools used in the manufacture and repair of tanks.

Wilson told Commons that about 30 firms were making machine tools for eastern European countries, but that none of them will be sent until the requirements of Britain, the Atlantic pact nations and the members of the British commonwealth have been checked.

But Wilson warned that if the vital tools are not required by Britain or her allies, they probably will be sent, since Britain had signed a trade pact in 1948.

Wilson's implication was that if Britain went back on her signed word, all trade between Britain and the East eventually would be halted. He pointed out that during the past three years Britain has received enough timber from eastern Europe to build 340,000 houses.

Wilson also asserted that the government could not, short of a blockade, stop all shipments of raw materials to the East that can be turned into military purposes. For the past two years Russia has concentrated on stockpiling rubber and wool.

Swedish Vote Shows Favor Toward West

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Swedish voters, in city and county council elections Sunday, pointed their technically neutral government toward the West, results showed today.

The Swedes delivered a stinging blow to the Communist Party here, cutting the Reds' popular vote in half from 1946 and reducing their 91 seats to 29, in a total of 1444. The Social Democrats' governing majority was strengthened.

Eighty percent of the 4,700,000 eligible voters produced these results compared with 1946, on basis of seats won:

Social Democrats, 744 (gain of 80); Liberals, 330 (gain of 103); Conservatives, 123 (loss of 62); Agrarians, 218 (loss of 21); Communists, 29 (loss of 62).

Votes cast:

Social Democrats, 1,816,502 (1,478,818); Liberals, 799,723 (520,593); Conservatives, 438,551 (494,949); Agrarians, 459,773 (452,793); Communists, 184, 503 (372,424); others, 2526.

In percentages, the Social Democrats received 49.07; Liberals, 21.6; Conservatives, 11.81; Agrarians, 12.42, and the Communists, 4.98.

Socialist Premier Tage Erlander admitted in a dawn radio broadcast that the Communist defeat was the most significant feature of the voting. But he told the nation Sweden will maintain her present middle-road foreign policy and try to remain aloof from the cold war.

AFL Hears Green Demand Ban on U. S. Trade With Soviet

HOUSTON, Sept. 18 (AP).—William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor, asked the United States today to stop all trade shipments to and from Russia.

Opening the AFL's annual convention, he asserted Russia is using United States goods for war purposes.

Green strongly criticised Southern Democrats for helping block repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor act.

He said wages must keep pace with increases in the cost of living.

The convention received a resolution which would ask the Government to make it clear to the Russian people America distinguishes sharply between them and their Kremlin rulers.

The resolution, offered by the International Ladies' Garment Workers union, said "American people are friends and not the enemies of the Russian people."

The proposal said the United States should establish some means by which the average Russian could be convinced that "our conflict is solely with the despotic rulers in the Kremlin, thirsting for world domination."

Asks 'True Federation' of Nations

Another resolution, from William Nagorsne of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor, urged a revision of the United Nations Charter to form "a true federation of nations, with a code of international law..."

It proposed that, should Russia abstain, the United States would proceed to unite with other nations in a "partial world federation."

Green said the convention is conscious of the current international crisis and told representatives of 8,000,000 members of AFL:

"We are going to stick steadfast to our proven traditions and to opposition of infiltration of communism into our membership," he said. "We are going forward and will reach higher levels for the millions of working men in our country."

He said his plea that the United States stop "buying and selling anything with Russia" is similar to an AFL effort made in 1937 to stop scrap metal shipments to Japan.

He said the United States is now supplying Russia with much material being used for war purposes.

"Stopping that would be a great protection of international peace and security," he said.

"Indications now are the war will be over at an early date. Communists will be defeated and liberty loving nations will win another great victory."

'Alertness' Counseled

But he warned labor must continue to be alert to economic developments at home.

"Recent price increases show an upward trend in workers' living costs is inevitable," he said.

He said labor will have to fight against legislation to freeze wages.

"There are some who are advocating freezing of prices and wages now," he said. "This would mean freezing prices high and wages low. We intend to fight until wages are at a parity with prices before there is any freezing."

Labor also has a firm and fixed determination, he said, to fight until what he called the "notorious" Taft-Hartley Act is repealed.

He recalled recent labor victories against opposing Congressmen and said:

"We are going into Ohio and defeat Senator Taft, just as we have scored victories in other States."

"We are making our fights now to elect a friendly Congress."

Civil Defense Plan Is Sent to Congress

istration is expected to be set up in a week or two, financed from the President's emergency fund. Who will head it was not disclosed. Paul J. Larsen, the NSRB civil defense chief and author of most of the plan, resigned yesterday, saying that a person with "broader administrative background" should run the operation. James J. Wadsworth, son of the Congress and Larsen's deputy, took over his NSRB job ton an acting basis.

At the Capitol, Senate Minority Leader Wherry (R., Nerb.) said Congress should act before quitting. But Acting Majority Leader McFarland (D., Ariz.) said that was just about impossible.

The plan assumes millions of private citizens will be called on to aid in the extensive volunteer services contemplated, including auxiliary policemen, firemen, air raid wardens and others.

The report says flatly that since there can be no absolute military defense, civil defense might make the difference to the United States between defeat by a massive initial enemy attack and the ability to "get up off the floor to fight back." It says that up to now civil defense "has been a missing element in our system of national security."

A-Bomb Stressed

While the report considers "old style" bombing and untried bacterological and chemical warfare atacks, its emphasis is on defense against atomic bombs. The report says:

"Granted a few minutes warning, casualties could be reduced by over 50 percent through proper organization and training in civil defense. More important, civil defense could spell the difference between defeat with slavery for our people and victory in a war thrust upon us."

NSRB has listed 140 critical target areas in the Nation, including all the big cities such as Washington. Governors are being sent lists of these areas in their States and may make them public if they wish.

The basic thesis for the civil defense of any target area is that the area can't do the job alone—it must have help from the immediate surrounding area, usually suburban, from the State or from one or more adjoining States and finally from the Federal Government itself.

The two cardinal principles thus are dispersal of equipment and personnel to meet a bomb blast and mobility of equipment and personnel—ability to move fire equipment, doctors, bulldozers, mass feeding kitchens, auxiliary police, medical supplies and so on from many areas into the stricken city.

Not only does the plan call for dispersal, once an early warning of an attack is received, of such equipment as fire trucks. The plan also contemplates "partial" evacuation of the general population from a target area. But on this the NSRB concludes that "evacuation before attack should be considered only after all other means of insuring mass safety have been evaluated" because of "its disruptive effect upon organized communities and upon the morale of the people."

One additional reason for the mutual-aid idea is that any plan requiring each community to be self-sufficient would cost so much it never could be carried out.

The NSRB plan suggests "as a rough rule of thumb" that cities and towns within a 20-mile radius of a target city such as Washington be asked to agree to commit "up to one-third of their resources as initial reinforcements by prearranged plan in the event of attack."

The report makes clear that civil defense against possible atomic attack is not going to be any tin hat, sand bucket and whistles-for-the-wardens matter. What is called for is an integrated plan of military proportions, hard enough to achieve in wartime but exceedingly difficult in today's cold war atmosphere. The major reason for this is that the program depends on finding leadership capable of inspiring great effort when attack is uncertain and yet not creating hysteria or panic. It is a job of welding together an organization of only a few paid personnel plus thousands of volunteers over which the leadership has little more control than the power of persuasion.

Here are excerpts from key sections of the plan:

Shelters: It's impossible to provide shelters for all the population everywhere. Hence they should be provided in critical target areas, using existing building basements, subways, bank vaults and so on. Detailed plans on how to build your own home shelter as well as community types will be issued later.

Wardens: A warden system, employing many women, should be set up to train the public for self-protection. They should pass on to the FBI "without any screening, appraising or filtering" any reports on espionage, sabotage or subversiveness.

Fire Service: Because an A-bomb can create a "fire storm" of vast proportions, plans must be ready to draw water from rivers, canals and lakes. Auxiliary fire guards must be trained to handle fires outside the main area where regulars will be busy.

Auxiliary Police: Volunteers "should not be hastily organized, clothed with police authority and armed with police weapons." They should be drawn in large part from men over draft age and from women. Command functions should not be assigned auxiliaries.

Health, Medical Services: A complete system of first aid systems should be set up; emergency equipment should be stored at fringe area hospitals; trucks, station wagons and buses should be fitted to handle litter cases.

A system of emergency hospitals in school buildings should be arranged.

Medical stores should be kept by the Federal Government in dispersed stockpiles, available for use in any of nearby stricken cities.

Special equipment will be needed against possible bacteriological and gas attacks as well as because of radiation in an atomic attack.

Welfare: Plans for mass feeding and housing must be prepared and supplies of clothing inventoried.

Engineering: Because tons of debris will fill the city streets in case of attack, emergency equipment must be available to clear the way for rescue and other workers. Cities should check their building codes to see if structures can be made more resistant to bombs. Volunteer "pioneer units" should be set up to help.

Rescue: A specially trained rescue service should be established in each community. Federal rescue schools will train the teachers for local schools. "The morale of the population will be directly affected by the adequacy of the rescue service.

Communications: This is the "nerve system" of civil defense. Secondary systems must be ready for police, fire, air raid, rescue and other networks. Civil defense control centers are to be essentially communications centers.

Transportation: Plans must be worked out to "freeze" private autos and other vehicles in case o. attack to prevent them from clogging the roads.

Stassen Sheds No Light on Canceled Talk

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen said today it would be at least ten days before he could disclose his connection with "an important national move" which he previously said caused him to cancel a Chicago speech last Friday.

He is "not prepared or at liberty as yet" to make an announcement, the President of the University of Pennsylvania and former Governor of Minnesota told reporters.

To a variety of questions, Stassen said:

He did "not expect an appointment from the Administration."

The move had both "national and international" significance because the two could not be separated.

He "might do some traveling" in connection with the move.

He declined to say whether it would take him to Europe, but said he did not plan to go to Russia.

Asked whether he expected an appointment involving "Allied governments," Stassen said he did not expect any "in that area."

Questioned whether he intended to return to active military service, he said: "You tell me what the rest of the world is going to do and I'll tell you more about my military plans."

Stassen served as a Navy captain and aide to Admiral William Halsey in World War II.

Although he canceled the Chicago speech scheduled three days ago, Stassen today addressed the National Wholesale Druggists Association and said he intended to speak in Washington tomorrow before the American Bar Association.

In Peoria, Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) charged yesterday that Stassen yielded to Republican isolationist pressure in canceling the Chicago speech.

Stassen told the druggists that Russia's "abuse of the veto" would not paralyze the United Nations. He said this was because the U. N. Charter permitted the free nations to mobilize a U. N. police force or take whatever other action they believed necessary in the interests of peace.

He said the U. N., despite shortcomings, should not be underestimated. He said it had not been intended to be a "guarantee" but only a "beachhead" of peace.

Need Stiff Drink? You Really Want Salt, Study Shows

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 18 (AP).—Take a drink of salt water when you reach the stage of really craving alcohol, says the quarterly Journal of Alcohol, out today.

Because, it is explained, your body is really craving salt, even though your palate says alcohol.

The study is reported by Dr. W. D. Silkworth and Dr. M. Texon of the Knickerbocker Hospital, New York. They analyzed the blood of persons who had been drinking heavily enough to be hospitalized. In all cases they found the salt (chloride) reduced.

"The alcoholic," they report, "takes more whisky and water to replace the loss of water and salt. . . . This further exaggerates his net salt loss and perpetuates his craving." The recommended salt drink is a small teaspoonful of salt in a little more than an ordinary glass of water.

Austin Asks Prayer For World Peace

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 18 (AP).—Ambassador Warren R. Austin has called on all Americans to observe a minute of prayer for world peace Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m. (EST). He said:

"I hope the people of America will pause in their homes, their shops, on their farms and in the streets wherever they may be, to offer up their prayers for God's blessing upon the United Nations, and for a peace with liberty and justice for all men."

Early Decisions Seen on D. C. Civil Defense

Decisions on Washington's two most pressing civil defense problems may be forthcoming this week.

If Congress finally approves the $100,000 agreed on for starting the job, these things must be next be done:

1. Appoint a director.
2. Decide how to parcel out the $100,000 where $290,000 had been asked to do the job.

The money is expected to be available by the end of the week and District officials have been working on the other problems for some time. Engineer Commissioner Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, in charge of civil defense, was at home sick yesterday but is due back today. In effect, both decisions are up to him.

Young's assistant, Lieut. Col. Thomas J. Hayes 3d, said the cut in funds amounts to a six months' delay. He pointed out that $85,000 had been budgeted for salaries for about a dozen persons including the director. The law prevents spending all salary money in less than the full fiscal year, even though it was made clear at the Capitol that Congress will vote more funds in January.

Rest For Equipment

Practically all the rest of the money was to go for equipment—chiefly communications such as two-way radios, and a beginning on an air raid warning net. Now it can't be ordered until the extra money is voted though it will take some time to decide what is needed and get up specifications. The District figures the Federal government will buy all the air raid warning equipment needed all over the country, then sell or give it to the cities.

After reading the national civil defense plan released yesterday, Hayes commented that "we're well along on many of the items covered."

He said that while no advisory civil defense council, such as the National Security Resources Board plan calls for, has yet been set up, much of the same purpose has been achieved by taking particular problems to experts in various fields.

Major Function Lacking

He conceded, however, that a major council function, telling the public what it's all about, has yet to be started. The District expects to have a public relations staff in its civil defense headquarters.

The NSRB plan lays great stress on mutual aid agreements between key target areas, such as Washington, and neighboring cities and counties.

Hayes said there has been some discussion of the actual aid problem here and a draft agenda has been worked out for an eventual meeting of metropolitan Washington officials—the District, Montgomery and Prince Georges counties in Maryland and Alexandria, Falls Church, Arlington and Fairfax in Virginia.

Meanwhile, Metropolitan Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett yesterday appealed to citizens to enroll in their home precincts in the new auxiliary police reserve corps.

Each precinct captain will assign one regular man on police time to handle the auxiliary job.

Women taken into the corps will be used to handle communications jobs and desk assignments. Although the NSRB report suggests their use for traffic posts, the District plan does not do this.

The District's corps is open to men and women 21 to 55

Lawyers List Liaison With Crime Probe

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The American Bar Association House of Delegates yesterday authorized appointment of a commission of seven lawyers to cooperate with the Senate committee investigating organized crime.

The ABA annual convention opened officially here with an estimated 3000 present for the 226 activities.

Highlighting the business portion of the convention was creation of the commission to cooperate with the crimes investigation committee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.).

The House of Delegates ordered that the seven-man group should, when chosen, investigate the need for modernization of criminal law procedures and practices. Particularly, the group was authorized to see if it can plug loopholes in criminal procedure.

To Study Withdrawals

Also, the group will try to determine why the profession to a large extent has withdrawn from the once-popular practice of criminal law.

The House elected its officers for the coming year. They are Cody Fowler of Tampa, president; Roy E. Willy of Sioux Falls, S. Dak., chairman of the House of Delegates; Joseph D. Stecher of Toledo, secretary, and Harold H. Bredell of Indianapolis, treasurer.

Elected to the board of governors were Walter M. Bastian, prominent Washington lawyer; Albert J. Harno of Urbana, Ill., and Frederic M. Miller of Des Moines.

Among resolutions submitted for consideration were:

1. Condemnation of socialized medicine proposals.

2. That the legal profession conduct legal aid facilities without Government control.

3. That public officeholders be forbidden to write articles for pay.

4. That lawyers earning more than $3000 a year in a public agency be forbidden to practice law privately.

Amendment Proposed

5. That a constitutional amendment be enacted taking from Congress power to pass legislation pertaining to education, labor, racial relations and civil rights, when such legislation conflicts with State laws.

6. That naturalization proceedings be investigated.

7. That membership to the ABA shall be considered without reference to race, creed or color.

8. That lawyers and others be required to take non-Communist oaths.

9. That law firms be forbidden to use the names of deceased partners in their business.

Federal-State Survey Urged

In opening the ABA assembly, retiring president Harold J. Gallagher urged Congress to appoint a nonpartisan commission to see if local or State governments should not have various functions now under control of the Federal Government.

Jointly meeting with the ABA is the Canadian Bar Association. CBA President Arthur N. Carter proposed further legal-aid proposals for Canada and said that members of the bar there should show willingness to accept judicial appointment. This, he said, would improve the caliber of the courts.

Meanwhile, Dean Roscoe Pound, perhaps the senior legal scholar of the country, told an ABA section "there is coming to be a new cleavage between morals and an increasing breakdown of the strict moral obligation as to the obligation of a promise."

Like Gallagher, he warned of the dangers which might come with the "service state."

"A state which guarantees to relieve its people of want and fear is endangering political democracy. . . . Promissory bills of rights creating expectations of the politically and legally unachievable and so weakening faith in Constitutions are a step toward the totalitarian state," Pound said.

Returning to Washington from Richmond where they have been meeting was the Conference of Chief Justices. Chief Justice Edward W. Hudgins, of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals was named chairman of the national group.

Highlights of today's proceedings will be talks by Harold Stassen and Gordon Dean. Also, there will be a symposium on the menace of organized crime at the Justice Department by national and State officials.

Bridegroom Held In Death After Fight Over Bride

BALTIMORE, Sept. 18 (AP).—Joseph Williams, 24-year-old bridegroom of two days, was in jail today on a charge of fatally beating a man after an argument about marriage Thursday.

Arraigned yesterday, he was ordered held without bail. The specific charge is causing the death of John Basch, 35-year-old taxi driver.

Police reported that Williams hit Basch in a tavern Thursday night, when the two fell into a discussion about marriage. Basch made some remarks about Williams' bride-to-be, and Basch was knocked down, police said. Friends took him home. His body was found the next day, and death was attributed to a cerebral hemorrhage.

After his wedding Saturday, Williams decided to stop by police headquarters before leaving for a honeymoon. There he learned about Basch's death and was arrested.

Bovine Banter Features 'Hill' Ceremony

Sesqui officials went to Capitol Hill yesterday to observe the 157th anniversary of the laying of the Capitol cornerstone.

Carter T. Barron, sesqui executive vice chairman, presented medals to Vice President Barkley and House Speaker Rayburn (D., Tex.) and observed that:

"The original cornerstone ceremony in 1798 was attended by an artillery honor guard and guests feasted on a 500-pound barbecued ox.

"I don't know whether that ox came from Texas or not," quipped Barron.

Rayburn shook his head: "We don't grow them that big."

Barkley stage - whispered he wouldn't be too surprised:

"We have an awful lot of bull around here."

Tax Bill Aids Oil Interests, Lawyers Told

The Federal tax bill which may soon become law contains "gross, almost crude" inequities and favors "oil interests and everything that smells of oil, Dean Erwin N. Griswold of Harvard Law School declared yesterday.

The noted educator teed off on the pending tax bill in a speech to the Tax Section of the American Bar Association convention.

He told the tax lawyers it was their duty to do something to remedy the situation, that they owe a duty to "John Q. Public" as well as to the moneyed corporations.

"In times when taxes must be high, it is most essential that they should be entirely non-discriminatory," he said. "But we are about to enact a tax law which contains gross, almost crude inequities."

Particularly discriminating, he said, were the provisions favoring the oil equities.

"Where was the voice of the tax section on that matter?" he asked. "The tax section ought to be quick to act in the public interest. John Q. Taxpayer needs our help, too."

Giving a review of recent trends in Federal taxation, Griswold urged the lawyers to stop grumbling about taxation.

He declared:

"Certainly, we as tax lawyers ought to complain very little about the taxes. I will venture the thought that there is scarcely a person in this room who is not better off because we have had high taxes than he would be without taxes or even lower taxes. . . . We are all so accustomed to groaning about the burden of taxes, and to thinking about how much we would have if we had for ourselves all of the money we have paid for taxes that we are apt to forget that we would never have had the money in the first place if it were not for taxes. Most of us would not have as much left after taxes if it were not for the taxes.

"We have long had death and taxes as the two standards of inevitability. But there are those who believe that death is the preferable of the two. 'At least,' as one man said, 'there's one advantage about death—it doesn't get worse every time Congress meets.'"

West-Soviet Accord Unlikely, Bar Unit Holds

An American Bar Association committee reported yesterday "we are losing valuable time to attempt further reconciliation of Soviet and Western principles of justice.

The preliminary report of the ABA Committee on Principles of an Effective World Order concluded that the best procedure is to strengthen the free institutions of the democratic nations and hope that the people behind the Iron Curtain revolt against their rulers.

Dean Robert G. Storey of Southern Methodist delivered the report to the ABA Section of International and Comparative Law in the new State Department auditorium.

He said:

"While there is an abundance of historical precedents, beginning with the writings of Marx and Engels, to sustain our conclusions, a brief reference to recent events . . . should convince the most skeptical that we are losing valuable time to attempt further reconciliation of Soviet and Western principles of justice. The chasm between the two is deep and ever widening. We are confident the abyss cannot be bridged.

"As lawyers, we believe that the western Nation and their peoples, individually and in concert, should continue to strengthen their free institutions by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which they are founded, through the continual preaching and practice of peaceful order under international as well as municipal law.

"By so doing we can create and maintain such an effective order within our own sphere that those countless lovers of freedom now under Soviet domination will throw off the shackles forged by the Kremlin and join the free peoples of the West in the enjoyment of those inalienable rights with which all men are endowed by their Creator.

Lane-Mahoney Race Close; Tydings Wins

503 of the city's 507 polling places reported, Mahoney led Lane in the city's popular vote, 94,066 to 73,229.

Senator Tydings piled up a decisive lead in his fifth-term bid over two rivals in the Democratic primary for nomination to the U. S. Senate. The count in 742 polling places gave Tydings 83,875 votes, 32,616 more than the combined vote of his two opponents.

In the GOP Senatorial nomination race, with 701 polling places reported, Butler had piled up a popular vote of 17,643 to 12,097 for Markey. Inconclusive returns indicated Butler leading in units with 80 convention votes, Markey in units with 57 votes.

Complete unofficial returns assured two Democratic Congressmen, Rep. Edward A. Garmatz and Rep. George H. Fallon, of renomination. Both represent Baltimore City districts.

Nearly complete returns assured two Democratic Congressmen of renomination. Representative Edward A. Garmatz and Representative George H. Fallon were ahead of their primary opponents by substantial margins.

Representative William P. Bolton (D., Md.) was leading in the Second Congressional District primary, but William Boucher, 3d, was running him an unexpectedly close race.

In the Sixth Congressional District (Montgomery County and Western Maryland), Russell P. Hartle, retired major general of Hagerstown, was leading W. Prescott Allen, Bethesda-Chevy Chase Tribune publisher, in the Democratic primary.

A tight contest showed up in the returns on the Republican primary for nomination for State Attorney General. Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown led William A. Gunter in popular votes but Gunter was leading in the county returns. Miss Brown had a 2-to-1 lead over Gunter in Baltimore City returns but led in only three counties while Gunter led in 11 counties.

Primary decisions in Maryland statewide contests including those for Governor and United States Senator, are not finally settled by popular vote, but by an "electoral" vote system.

There is a total of 152 electoral votes in these races. Baltimore gets 42 of these (seven from each of six city districts) and the 23 counties get from three to seven each for a total of 110. The electoral votes are cast by delegates to party conventions held after the primary, and they are cast according to the county and city district results. But as in presidential elections, it is possible for a candidate to win a popular majority in the State, and still lose the primary election. The man getting the most electoral votes wins.

Governor Lane, 58, Hagerstown publisher bidding for his second term, and Mahoney, 48, Baltimore contractor whom Lane dropped from the State Racing Commission chairmanship, threw bitter personal attacks at each other in their primary campaigns.

Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, 49, former Mayor of Baltimore, is the GOP candidate for Governor. This is his third try. He lost to Lane in 1946 by 45,000 votes. He had no primary opponent, but worked on organization while the Democrats fought each other.

Returns from 623 of Maryland's 1429 polling places in the Democratic primary for Governor gave:

Kemper, 3389.
Lane, 85,541.
Larrabee, 3833.
Mahoney, 95,654.
Peddicord, 3078.

Harry Kemper, 46, is an East Baltimore grocer. Herbert William Larrabee, 50, is a retired Navy lieutenant of Glen Burnie. Stephen B. Peddicord, 52, is a Baltimore electrician, and perennial candidate for public offices.

Senator Tydings, 60, of Havre de Grace, was opposed in the Democratic senatorial primary by former Representative John A. Meyer (D., Md.) 51, of Baltimore, who had AFL backing, and Hugh J. Monaghan 2d, a 31-year-old Baltimore lawyer who was an office boy in the Senator's 1938 campaign headquarters.

In the Democratic United States primary returns from 834 of the State's 1429 polling places gave:

Meyer, 27,303.
Monaghan, 28,096.
Tydings, 94,851.

In the Republican senatorial primary, Butler, 53-year-old Baltimore attorney, and Markey, 67, retired Army brigadier general of Walkersville, avoided direct conflict. Some high GOP officials backed Butler. Markey lost the election of 1946 to Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D., Md.) by a contested 1600-vote margin.

In Republican voting for nomination to the United States Senate, these results were recorded, with 752 of 1429 precincts reporting:

Butler, 19,022.
Markey, 14,265.

In the Democratic primary for nomination to the United States House of Representatives from the First (Eastern Shore) Maryland District, returns from 35 of the district's 207 precincts gave:

Herman Y. Broomhall, 54, Chestertown businessman, 604.

Thomas F. Johnson, 41-year-old State Senator from Snow Hill, 1897.

In Democratic balloting for nomination to Congress from the Second District (Baltimore, Carroll and Hartford Counties and part of Baltimore City), returns from 244 of 519 polling places gave:

Representative William P. Bolton, 65, of Dundalk, 23,829.

John B. Kennedy, 51, Baltimore contractor, 7830.

Representative Edward A. Garmatz, 47, successor and protege of Baltimore's Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, 17,623.

Mrs. Lillian L. Klecka, 49, widow of United States Marshal August Klecka, 10,045.

In the Democratic race for nomination to the United States House of Representatives from the Fourth District (Baltimore City), returns from all 155 polling places gave:

Representative George H. Fallon, 48, seeking his fourth term, 20,260.

Mrs. Sara A. Whitehurst, Maryland's Democratic National Committeewoman and former president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, 15,867.

W. Prescott Allen, 45, publisher of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Tribune, 5827.

Russell P. Hartle, 61, of Hagerstown, retired Army major general, 9126.

Three of Maryland's six Congressmen had no opponents in the primaries. Unopposed were Representative Edward T. Miller (R.) of the First (Eastern Shore) District; Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D.) of the Fifth (Southern Maryland) District; and Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.) of the Sixth (Western Maryland) District.

There were no contests for any Republican congressional nominations.

The GOP nominees, besides Miller, Beall and Carr are: Second District, Brig. Gen. James P. S. Devereux, USMC ret., hero of Wake Island, who is now 47 and lives in Stevenson; Third District, Louis R. Milio, 25, Baltimore lawyer; Fourth District, James W. Miller, 55, unsuccessful GOP candidate for the same post two years ago.

Hall Hammond, 48, of Stevenson, Maryland Attorney General in Lane's administration, had no opponent in the primary in his bid for another term in the office.

But a Republican contest for the GOP nomination for Maryland Attorney General matched Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, 50, Baltimore attorney, against William A. Gunter, 58, Cumberland attorney.

In the Republican attorney general race, returns from 693 of the State's 1429 polling places gave:

Brown, 14,105.
Gunter, 13,157.

State Comptroller J. Millard Tawyes, 56, of Crisfield had no primary opposition, and has no general election opponent, for his candidacy to continue in office.

Hartle Leads Allen in Sixth

Russell P. Hartle, a retired major general from Hagerstown, took a strong lead last night over W. Prescott Allen in Maryland's Sixth Democratic primary.

Returns from 118 of 291 precincts in the district gave:

Allen, 5505.
Hartle, 7103.

Montgomery County, with 35 of its 58 precincts reporting, gave:

Allen, 2946.
Hartle, 4424.

The Democratic primary winner in the Sixth Maryland Congressional District, faces Representative J. Glenn Beall (R.) of Frostburg in the general election.

Beall is 56 and is a former chairman of the Maryland States Roads Commission.

General Hartle returned to his native Washington County after a career of some 36 years in the Army. He was not a West Pointer, having entered the Army as an infantry lieutenant after graduating from St. John's College in Annapolis in 1910. He was among the first of the World War II AEF to reach Europe. He led a division ashore in Northern Ireland in early 1942.

Allen, 45, of 7320 Hampden lane, Bethesda, is a native of Dublin, Ga.

Organization Candidates Win Easily in Prince Georges

The organization-picked slate of candidates for the Maryland House of Delegates won the Prince Georges Democratic primary handily yesterday.

With returns still incomplete and unofficial, all five men supported by the county organization rolled to easy wins. Governor William Preston Lane, jr. piled up about a 2000 margin over George P. Mahoney in the county.

Senator Millard F. Tydings was solidly in as his party's candidate, with twice as many votes as his opposition combined. Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer was unopposed for renomination to the House of Representatives.

Both Mrs. Georgia K. Benjamin and Roland L. Nichols lost their fight to buck the party-backed ticket for the House of Delegates.

John M. Butler beat out D. John Markey in the county for the Republican Senatorial nomination.

How Prince Georges County voted in the Democratic primaries for Governor and U. S. Senate is shown in returns from 46 of 47 precinct (x denotes incumbent):

For Governor:
Harry Kemper, 341.
W. Preston Lane, jr., (x) 7454.
Herbert W. Larrabee, 539.
George P. Mahoney, 5490.
Stephen B. Peddicord, 141.

For U. S. Senate:
John A. Meyer, 2591.
Hugh J. Monaghan, 2d, 2225.
Millard E. Tydings (x), 8024.

In Republican primaries for major State offices, Prince Georges voted as follows, with returns in from 46 out of 47 precincts:

John M. Butler, 1515.
D. John Markey, 1456.

For State Attorney General:
Helen Elizabeth Brown, 1325
William A. Gunter, 891.

With 46 out of 47 precinct reporting, the unofficial totals in the Democratic primary for nomination to six House of Delegates seats from Prince Georges County were (x denotes incumbent):

Mrs. Georgia K. Benjamin, 6006.
T. Raymond Burch (x), 8209.
Ernest N. Cory, jr., 8986.
George G. McLeish (x), 8187.
Roland L. Nichols, 6136.
Nicholas Orem, jr., 8940.
LeRoy Pumphrey (x), 9313.
Perry O. Wilkinson (x), 9492.

There were no Republican contests for delegate nominations in Prince Georges County.

With 46 of 47 precinct reporting in the Democratic primary for nomination to the three judgeships of the Orphans Court, Prince Georges County gave (x denotes incumbent):

Lansdale G. Clagett (x), 9600.
Charles F. Luebner, 3522.
Willia mT. McPherson (x), 9353.
Vincent A. Osterman (x), 9230.

The Republicans had no primary, nominating three candidates without opposition—Clifton L. Clevenger, Mrs. Laura Lee Courtney and Paul D. Johnson.

Luebner, University Park civic leader, opposed three incumbents in the Democratic primary.

T. Ward Martin, 7637.

Unopposed for the Republican nomination was Carlton G. Beall.

Martin, the incumbent, is 57. He was elected to the post in 1946 and is the first sheriff eligible to succeed himself under a recent Assembly act. A tobacco grower on his North Keys farm, Martin has been an automobile salesman, State Roads Commission foreman and sales clerk at the Waldorf Tobacco Warehouse.

Black, 47, is an accountant and auditor for the General Accounting Office. He retired June 24 to campaign for office. He lives at 328 Woodland rd., Morningside.

Central Committee

Carlton G. Beall, 2332.
Eva C. Chase, 1534.
John R. Fletcher, 2267.
Marvin S. Gallimore, 1802.
William J. Griffith, 2204.
Thomas E. Latimer, 2346.
W. Everett Marton, 2202.
Philip J. Wilkes, 2136.

The entire Republican State Central Committee is running for re-election to the party policy-forming group. Residences of the candidates are Beall, Seat Pleasant; Mrs. Chase, Riverdale; Fletcher, Cheverly; Griffith, Croome Station; Latimer, Glen Dale; Marton, Laurel; Wilkes, Clinton, and Gallimore, Bladensburg.

HAVE YOU TRIED BIT O' KENTUCKY LATELY?
AFTER years of patient aging, the specially selected stout oak casks of Bit O' Kentucky are released for bottling. From the heart of the blue grass country where whiskey making has been an art practiced for generations, comes this bourbon treat. As you enjoy its mellow goodness, you appreciate that nothing takes the place of aging; that there is no substitute for choice grains or pure limestone water or that anything can take the place of distilling experience. All these elements have contributed to the making of Bit O' Kentucky—truly a great whiskey. A moderate price makes it easy to enjoy Bit O' Kentucky.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES
As we get older, stress and strain, overexertion, excessive smoking or exposure to cold sometimes slows down kidney function. This may lead many folks to complain of nagging backache, loss of pep and energy, headaches and dizziness. Getting up nights or frequent passages may result from minor bladder irritations due to cold, dampness or dietary indiscretions.
If your discomforts are due to these causes, don't wait, try Doan's Pills, a mild diuretic. Used successfully by millions for over 50 years. While these symptoms may often otherwise occur, it's amazing how many times Doan's give happy relief—help the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters flush out waste. Get Doan's Pills today!

Lane, Tydings Lead In Montgomery Vote

Democratic Victory Committee candidates, backed by the county organization, held substantial leads last night in Montgomery County.

Organization-backed Governor William Preston Lane, jr., and Senator Millard E. Tydings also were well out front—Lane by almost 2 to 1 and Tydings by better than 3 to 1.

In accomplishing this, the county group headed by E. Brooke Lee pulled the props out from under the newly-formed Free Democrats—a protest unit which backed George P. Mahoney for governor.

The Republican voting was strong for John M. Butler for the Senate and William A. Gunter for attorney general.

Montgomery County's balloting in the Democratic primaries for Governor and United States Senate is shown in the following unofficial returns from 35 of the county's 58 precinct (x denotes incumbent):

For Governor:
Harry Kemper, 217.
William Preston Lane, jr. (x), 5575.
Herbert W. Larrabee, 282.
George P. Mahoney, 3207.
Stephen B. Peddicord, 151.

For United States Senate:
John A. Meyer, 752.
Hugh J. Monaghan, 2d, 1487.
Millard E. Tydings (x), 6058.

In the Republican primaries for State offices, with 53 of 58 polling places reporting, Montgomery County gave:

For United States Senate:
John M. Butler, 3358.
D. John Markey, 1284.

For Maryland Attorney General:
Helen Elizabeth Brown, 672.
William A. Gunter, 3848.

In the House of Delegates race, the Victory ticket had the situation under even better control. The voting for the six seats showed the lowest tallying Victory candidate running better than the highest tallying Free Democrat.

On the Republican side, the organization-indorsed candidates were ahead of anti-organization candidates by 4 and 5 to 1 counts.

With 35 of 58 precincts reporting, unofficial totals in the major Democratic primaries in Montgomery County showed:

For State Senator:
Robert W. Beall, 3213.
Joseph B. Simpson, jr., 5280.

For House of Delegates (6 seats):
R. Edwin Brown, 3087.
Eliner B. Christensen, 5533.
James C. Cristopher, 5240.
Donald A. DeLashmutt, 3135.
R. Shirley Hays, 1446.
Frank L. Hewitt, jr., 5254.
Charles D. Sanger, jr., 5629.
Mrs. Margaret C. Schweinhaut, 5293.
Jerome H. Simonds, 4034.

In Republican primary balloting for the House of Delegates, with 53 of 58 precincts reporting, the unofficial returns were (x denotes incumbent):
J. Douglas Bradshaw, 3947.
Donald H. Dalton, 1149.
Louise L. Dixon, 1302.
Julian P. King (x), 3860.
Anders R. Loftstrand, jr. (x), 3838.
Frank R. Long, 1210.
J. Paull Marshall, 3876.
Mrs. Leona M. Rush (x), 3734.
Robert A. Wallace, 3469.

The Democratic Victory Committee—supported by the county organization headed by E. Brooke Lee—placed a full slate on the primary ballots. It indorsed Lane, Tydings and Hartle from the beginning.

But another group, calling themselves Free Democrats, announced they weren't satisfied with the selections, indorsed Mahoney for Governor, and selected a partial slate. They indorsed charter committee candidates for County Council posts.

Republicans also were faced with a vociferous group which demanded an open primary and denounced organizational "bossism."

There was no Republican primary for State Senator. Roy Tasco Davis, incumbent State Senator from Montgomery, a Republican, was not a candidate for reelection. DeWitt S. Hyde, 5304 Elm sts., Bethesda was the unopposed Republican candidate for this office.

Joseph B. Simpson, jr., 41, Takoma Park, a former State's attorney and formerly counsel to the Montgomery County Commissioners, was victory Democratic candidate for the State Senate. He practices law with his sister, Miss Vivian Simpson, Secretary of State of Maryland. He is married and has three children.

Robert W. Beall, 39, a Bethesda lawyer, who is married and has been a resident of the county 30 years, was endorsed by the Free Democrats.

Register of Wills

Frank I. Davis, 5524, Thomas E. Plumber, 1741.

Davis, now county sheriff, was the victory committee candidate. He lives at Rockville.

State's Attorney

Alger Y. Barbee, 5992 votes; John M. McInerney, 2661.

Walter W. Dawson, incumbent, 3500; Walter H. Moorman, 1155.

Barbee, 37, of 9809 Capitol View ave., Forest Glen, was supported by the Democratic Victory Committee. He is one of the county's trial magistrates.

McInerney, 46, of 5500 Johnson ave., Bethesda, was supported by the Free Democrats. He is a lawyer.

Dawson, the incumbent State's attorney, is 49 and lives at Rockville. He had the indorsement of the party's State Central Committee, of which he is chairman.

Moorman, 46, of 6001 Melvern dr., Bethesda, ic an independent Republican. He is an attorney.

Sheriff

Donald W. Dunnington, 2059.
Charles H. Jamison, 4531.
Millard E. Peake, sr., 630.
Leslie E. Sanders, sr., 1137.

The incumbent sheriff is Frank I. Davis, who ran for Register of Wills.

Dunnington, chief of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Squad, lives at 4517 Ridge st., Chevy Chase. He ran independently.

Jamison, of Poolesville, was the Victory Committe candidate. He is in the real estate business.

Peake ran independently. He is a director of the Bank of Bethesda. He lives at 9205 Burling rd., Bethesda.

Sanders, backed by the Free Democrats, lives at 7136 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda. He is a Bethesda public relations counselor.

Orphans' Court

Balloting for the Democratic nomination to the three Orphans' Court judgeships in Montgomery County, with 35 of 58 precincts reporting, gave:

James H. Benner, 2494.
Coleman L. Diamond, 5203.
Walter G. M. Fields, 2494.
George W. Moriarty, 2407.
Eugene E. Ruppert, 4757.
Genevieve H. Wells, 4914.

The present three judges are all Republicans and have been renominated without opposition by their party. They are William Tyler Page, jr., Charles H. Squire and Millward C. Taft.

Diamond, an attorney, who lives at 8218 Custer ave., Bethesda, was a Victory Committee candidate.

Benner, a Free Democrat candidate, is with the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. and lives at 8215 Georgetown rd., Bethesda.

Fields, Free Democrat, is an attorney and lives at 302 Carroll ave., Takoma Park.

Moriarty, Free Democrat, is also an attorney and lives at 6710 Exeter rd., Bethesda.

Reserve Officers Resent Criticism In Senate by Cain

The Reserve Officers Association told Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) yesterday it "severely resented" his assertion that many of its members are not qualified for their ranks.

A letter to Cain, signed by Brig. Gen. E. A. Evans, executive director of the ROA, informed him the association was "quite exercised" over his recent Senate floor speech on terminal leave promotions given reserve officers at the end of World War II.

Cain, himself a reserve officer, had recommended such promotions be revoked because many of the officers were not qualified and troops would be reluctant to follow them into battle if they were recalled to active duty.

Evans told Cain that reserve officers "have been working hard with their training" since the close of the war." The Army Department, he said "is today welcoming for active duty, without question or anxiety, officers who received terminal leave promotions."

Rights Bill Becomes Virgin Islands Law

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The Virgin Islands' stringent new civil rights bill has been signed into law by Gov. Morris F. DeCastro, it was announced today.

The law is intended to protect the islands' 95 percent Negro population against segregation as a result of the region's growing popularity as a vacation resort. It provides penalties for any resort operator who discriminates against any person because of "race, creed, color or national origin."

Bill to Help Youthful

The House yesterday passed and sent to the White House a bill that would set up a reform program for youthful Federal convicts. It has long been advocated by the United States judicial conference as means of rehabitating prisoners under 22, rather than mixing them with hardened criminals.

Under the bill, Federal judges would be allowed to use a varying sentence procedure and prescribe treatment for youths they feel might be turned into useful citizens.

Organization Wins in Commission Voting

The five Democratic organization-backed candidates for posts on the Prince Georges Board of County Commissioners won easy nomination yesterday in the party primary, despite efforts of three independent Democrats.

The party nominees, each of whom went well over the 8000 mark in votes, will face opposition from the Republican party in the November elections, but unless there is a strong surge of independent voting, here are the men who probably will be the next Prince George Commissioners:

John H. Beal, who led the ticket; James B. Bland, already announced as the party choice for chairman of the board; D. Leonard Dyer and Harry W. McNamee, both on the present board, and Alfred H. Smith.

Unofficial returns from 46 of the 47 precincts gave:
James B. Bland, 8737.
Vinton D. Cockey, 4797.
Fred M. Coxen, 3291.
D. Leonard Dyer (x), 8736.
Harry W. McNamee (x), 8424.
William A. Neumann, 3976.
Alfred H. Smith, 8738.

Republican returns from 46 of 47 precincts in voting for the five county commissioner nominations showed:
Daniel A. Abbott, 2575.
James B. Carrico, 1626.
Thomas E. Latimer, 2787.
W. Everett Marton, 2570.
H. Wilson Spicknall, 2340.
Edward J. Waters, 2123.

Successful commissioners in the general election on November 7 will form the first board headed by a fulltime president and holding bi-weekly meetings.

These innovations, with salary raises all around, are the remaining provisions of the Sothoron Act revising county governmental structure which were not put into effect on July 1. By law, they cannot take effect until a new group is seated.

The salary increases will boost pay of the four part-time commissioners from $2400 annually to $3600 and of the full-time president to $7500.

In pre-primary campaigning, Democratic party heads publicly designated Bland as the president-to-be if a full Democratic board should be elected.

Lee-Backed Council Group Forges Ahead in Montgomery

The Victory Democrats—backed by the E. Brooke Lee Democratic organization—were forging ahead in Montgomery County last night

On the basis of early returns, the Victory Democrats were overcoming support by both the Charter Committee and the Free Democrats in pushing their candidates to the fore for nomination to four county council seats.

With 55 of Montgomery County's 58 precincts reporting, the unofficial totals in the Democratic contests for nomination to 4 of the 7 county council seats showed:

First Council District—Malcolm H. White, 4181, Jerry T. Williams, 8640.

At-Large (two seats)—Preston C. King, jr., 5102; Joseph Marshall Mathias, 2380; John C. Post, 1948; William Brent Young, 2173.

Kathryn J. Lawlor, 3637; J. Louis Monarch, 3580; Wesley M. Morris, 1327.

The three-sided Democratic primary race for four of the seven County Council seats howed these contests:

E. Brooke Lee and his Democratic organization were backing the Victory Democrats, Jerry T. Williams, Mrs. Stella B. Werner, Preston C. King, jr., Joseph M. Mathias.

The Charter Committee backed some Democrats and some Republicans. On the Democratic side they backed Malcolm H. White, Basil L. Carr, John C. Post, Rear Admiral William B. Young, USN (ret.).

The Free Democrats backed Post and Admiral Young.

On the Republican side, the Charter Committee backed Harold F. Hammond, J. Louis Monarch and Mrs. Kathryn J. Lawlor.

Unopposed for nomination were Democrats Grover Walker (who had no Republican opposition); G. LaMar Kelly, jr., and Robert T. Snure.

Republicans unopposed for nomination were George F. Nesbitt; Lathrop E. Smith and John C. Reid.

Sick Leave

It seems a pity that the House has not followed the Senate's lead in removing inequities from the District Teachers' Leave Act of 1949. The Senate amended the act in order to allow teachers to use not more than three days of their 10 days annual sick leave for personal business; to allow temporary teachers and attendance officers, many of whom are reappointed from year to year, to accumulate leave as other teachers do; and to allow accumulation of leave from the present maximum of 60 days to 75 days so as to bring the treatment of teachers into relative conformity with the treatment of other civil service employes. These changes seem no more than a matter of simple justice so far as the teachers are concerned. From the point of view of the community, they have the merit of making the teaching profession more attractive as a career.

However, the House has ignored the bill and can scarcely be expected to take it up in the press of business during the concluding days of its present session. Here is another pointed argument, we think, for the advisability of letting such matters be determined at the local level by a municipal council responsible directly to the people of the District. It is senseless for the national legislature to be burdened with a problem of this sort. But it is equally senseless to leave the District of Columbia with the problem unsolved for mere want of attention.

Arming The Germans

Evidently the French—and to a lesser extent the British—are somewhat irked by the bombshell method with which Secretary Acheson propounded the momentous new policy for the defense of Europe. In general the rule is to iron out difficulties ahead of conferences so that decisions already arrived at may be signed and sealed. There is much to be said for the technique, though in respect of the ambitious defense policy, agreement was achieved by those concerned in this Capital only on the eve of the Foreign Ministers' Conference. Moreover, the aggression in Korea has induced a sense of urgency which did not seem to permit preliminary diplomatic negotiation, especially as the Europeans had long been asking for an American initiative.

The French, besides, are troubled by the emphasis that has been put on arming the Germans. They object to putting things that way. Arming of the Germans is subordinate to the prime objective of establishing unity of command and the establishment of a single army for the defense of Europe. If that had been kept in the forefront, then the qualms of the French might have been allayed. Gallic logic is based on first things first, and, though we may quarrel with the pace of French awareness of the supreme need in Europe, their order of what should be done is eminently sensible.

The French have always felt that the problem of unity is primarily polifical. It is of no use establishing a single army without a political organization back of it which has absorbed some of the functions of the component sovereignty of Europe. That would be putting the cart before the horse. A political merger is implicit and will grow out of the Schuman scheme for the pooling of the coal and iron and steel industries. This is still in the formative stage, though the seeming delay is not due to hesitation, but to the technical complications that have to be resolved. The Schuman Plan aims at a single market for the key commodities of Europe which in their separate national compartments are provocative of fear and strife. Thus the plan would lay the foundation for a single western European (except British) economy. And the supranational "high authority" which would supervise the arrangement would absorb a good deal of national sovereignty because of the great power which it would possess over the livelihood of the European people.

It had always been the French hope that the industrial pool could be created prior to the discussions on European rearmament. Clearly, if the materials for rearming are pooled, then rearmament in Germany is deprived of its fear content to the French, and becomes, in fact, European. It is an easy transition to go from an industrial pool to an arms pool because it is a logical one. Thus no question is involved about rearming Germans as such, only one of rearming Europeans. But the French stress has been obscured by the argument over arming the Germans.

Moreover, war goods have to be made, and the program of arms for Europe in the new context of policy is going to take some years, so that the talk about rearming the Germans means to the French no doubt that the Germans may come before them among the recipients. The fault, to repeat, lies in the emphasis that our spokesmen have given to the problem. It is as if they thought of military integration in Europe as a bird in the bush and rearmament of Germany as the available bird in hand. France herself could do her part in restoring the right emphasis by showing her allies that she means business on rearmament. It is the Acheson view that German manpower is essential in getting together the necessary divisions in Europe precisely because those divisions cannot be put together without it. This seems to be an unassailable proposition. It is equally indubitable that in one respect only is western Europe inferior to Soviet Russia, and that is solidarity.

Antiaggression Forces

As the General Assembly of the United Nations meets today, its foremost task will be to devise ways and means of preventing any future act of aggression. The experiment in Korea has gone far enough to raise the hopes of free peoples the world over that resort to war for the advancement of selfish national aims can be effectively stopped. An overwhelming demand has arisen that the demonstration of ability to act quickly and decisively against an aggressor shall not be dissipated. Responsibility for action in this matter has passed to the Assembly because the return of the Soviet delegate to the Security Council has kept that body hamstrung since August 1 and presumably will continue to do so.

The United States has not yet disclosed the details of the action it will request of the General Assembly. From the remarks of various officials and the nature of the U. N. Charter itself, however, the outline of the new instruments of peace is beginning to take shape. John D. Hickerson, Assistant Secretary of State, said on Sunday, for example, that the General Assembly ought so to organize itself as to be able to harness the collective will for peace. He assumes that the Assembly will wish to discuss some method "for being informed, objectively and promptly, about the situation in threatened areas." Likewise he suggests that the Assembly will "wish to find a way of taking advantage of the experience learned in Korea in marshaling armed forces from among the peace-loving members of the U. N."

Of course, the Assembly cannot give itself new powers. Only a revision of the Charter could do that, and the Soviet Union would be certain to veto any such proposal. But the Assembly can organize itself for more effective use of the power it already possesses. The first step in this direction is to revise its rules so that in any new emergency the Assembly may be convened in 24 hours instead of 15 days, as under the present rule. The second need is for a "peace patrol" or commission of roving investigators who can act as eyes and ears for the Assembly in any part of the world. Expert bodies of this sort were sent to both Greece and Korea by the General Assembly in 1947, and their reports were the basis of the policies subsequently adopted for both these trouble spots. What is now required is an alert and continuing board of fact-finders which can be stationed on any border where trouble is likely to develop or rushed to the site of any outbreak which threatens the peace. For the sake of objectivity its membership ought to be drawn from the smaller nations not directly entangled in the East-West controversy.

The third necessity is the maintenance of military forces that can act immediately against an aggressor condemned by either the Security Council or the Assembly. There are indications that the United States will designate contingents from its armed forces that would be ready for quick U. N. service. Canada and the Philippines have already indicated that they will keep the troops they recruited for Korea in readiness for any further U. N. duty. In this way the nucleus of an antiaggression force can be built up and kept prepared for any emergency. To be sure, each unit will still be under the authority of the nation contributing it, and such U. N. contingents can be effectively used only if the nations supplying them are in agreement at the time the emergency arises. But this will be a substantial advance over the situation existing on June 25 when the free nations had to draw heavily upon their home defense units to resist the invasion of Korea.

The strength of the free world at present lies in the willingness of the nations to work and fight together when aggression breaks out. So long as that will exists it can be as effectively mobilized by the Assembly as by the Council, for Russian obstruction has reduced the Council (even when it momentarily frees itself from the veto strait jacket) to the role of recommending policies to U. N. members. The world is looking toward the Assembly to make full use of its powers to fulfill the hopes that the Korean experiment has aroused among men of peace and good will everywhere.

South African

What will happen politically in South Africa now that Jan Smuts is dead is the subject of much speculation. Smuts' party was the United Party, now in opposition to Dr. Daniel F. Malan's Nationalists. He held it together mainly by the force of his personality, and, with that withdrawn, the fear is that his party will collapse. This would be a tragedy for South Africa, for, in spite of what a correspondent in our letter columns says, Smuts was the only hope of liberalism in South Africa.

Now liberalism is a relative, depending upon circumstances and mores and environment. In his domestic policy Smuts was a reactionary in terms of western Europe or the United States, but in South Africa he was a fabian, a fabian, however, who could not move faster than a snail's pace, and sometimes had to go backward. It was his United Party that four years ago enacted the Asiatic Land Tenure law which imposed a residential segregation on the Indians of Natal. This reflected an overwhelming sum of South African sentiment, though it was probably more of a concession to Smuts' marginal supporters of the Right than anything else. But, if this was in one respect a step backward, in another it was a step forward. For the legislation gave the Natal Indians for the first time a voice in Parliament and in the Provincial Council. At the same time the Smuts government warned the Natal Provincial Council that it would be held responsible for improving the bad living conditions of the Indian population.

The temper of South Africa is shown by what happened when the United Party was replaced last year by the Nationalists under the former Dutch Reformed Church minister, Dr. Malan. They came to office on a white supremacy program; the nation is to be dominated by a "national-minded Herrenvolk." The first bill to that end which was put through Parliament last session divides the country into compartments according to the color of the inhabitants. Dr. Malan, moreover, is working toward disfranchisement, so as to give South Africa an Africaner one-party state "grounded on a Christian-national foundation," a euphemism for fear.

Such a prospect is enhanced by Smuts' death. He appears to have been one of the few statesmen in South Africa who had a just regard for the opinion of mankind. He offered at the last U. N. Assembly to put the Indian question before the World Court to decide on the jurisdictional issue. The rampant and pathological nationalism at present in the saddle in South Africa pays no heed to what other people say. In due and long course the Malan policy will doubtless blow up, but in the process there is the possibility of a terrible accounting.

Planning Council

In choosing to ignore the President's request for funds to disperse key defense agencies, Congress can scarcely be said to have disposed of the problem to which Mr. Truman called attention. The problem would be a real and urgent one even if there were no atomic bombs in the world and no possibility of an air attack on the National Capital. At bottom it is a problem of planning Washington's growth. The threat to the city, and to the security of the national government in case of war, merely makes a grappling with the problem more pressing and imperative. We think, therefore, that the formation of a Washington Regional Planning Council, announced Sunday, is a most significant step in the right direction.

The council, composed of members of nearby Maryland and Virginia planning commissions and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will have no legislative authorization and no operating powers. Nevertheless it will provide a most valuable forum in which all the communities of the area can discuss the varied aspects of the problem they face in common. Whatever may be done about channeling the development of Washington will have an inescapable impact far outside the confines of the District of Columbia. The council will afford a means of cushioning this impact with consideration for divergent interests and with opportunity for looking thoughtfully at all the implications of growth. This is, after all, the essence of intelligent planning.

The President's dispersal proposal is certainly not dead. Something like it is bound to be brought up again when Congress reconvenes. The important consideration is that it should be brought up next time with the concerted backing of all the important affected elements of the region. The complete absence of this kind of backing and the attendant impression that the proposal was hastily improvised, with only the hazards of war in view, undoubtedly doomed it so far as the current session of Congress is concerned.

It should be borne in mind that the decentralization suggested by the President is by no means a new idea. It has been going on, in point of fact, for the past quarter of a century. Washington's residential areas have spilled far over into Arlington, Montgomery and Fairfax Counties. Shopping centers and business developments have followed home construction. Removal of some of the Government offices from the heart of the city, already begun, is a logical extension of this trend. If the dispersal is to be along sound lines, it must follow a master plan adopted with a view to the long-range future. The Planning Council can do much to refine the plan and to win acceptance for it.

REQUIEM

And now I shall, while the slow bell
Beats in my heart, decline tears.
For they are sign the years'
Promise sunk and failed
In rheumy eyes.
Though sober-suited silence lock you in,
And root strike not
Down through bronze or wood,
A something understood between us
Annuls all the tossed in earth.

The sun on lifted spade,
Bright, warm,
Is like a flame,
And flame will turn to sun.
Tears must not put out flame.

This hill's wooded crest may hold your name,
For I—I have, to keep, that living rest.

New World Aborning

By Marquis Childs

U. N. Decision

NEW YORK.—If caution and timidity do not exercise too deadly an influence, the General Assembly of the United Nations now gathering can be midwife to the new world that is trying so hard to be born. The bold, imaginative, creative plans are at hand if the delegates have the courage and the resolution to use them.

The new world, it is hardly necessary to add, is a world of law and order in which natural sovereignties are subordinated to the common good of all. The echo of the late Wendell Willkie's "One World" comes strongly back. Since the atomic arms race began, we know it is one world or none.

The details are subject to alteration since discussions are going on among the chief delegations. But in general outline the plans to be presented by the United States—and others who will be asked to join in—shape up as follows:

1. The idea of a permanent peace commission to keep a lookout over all tension areas of the world is being worked out. The British raised objections to it in the form originally put forward. But it is hoped the concept can be salvaged.

SUCH a commission would report on threats to the peace before the fighting broke out. We are now told that United States Army staff officers in South Korea ignored the warnings of a U. N. commission that the North Koreans were about to attack in force. A permanent peace commission properly constituted could not be so ignored.

2. Formation of a permanent United Nations military force. This might be on the basis of volunteers enrolled in every member nation and trained by U. N. military specialists. Or it might be on the basis of specialized units contributed by U. N. members.

Such a permanent force would serve many purposes. Eventually it might be expected to carry out the decisions of the permanent peace commission.

3. Because the veto of the Security Council can in theory, and frequently in practice, block the best laid plans of mice and/or men, a way around this road block is being sought. The plan now under discussion involves delegating greater powers to the "Little Assembly," a kind of extra-legal body formed over Russian objections.

The General Assembly would delegate to the Little Assembly most of the powers of the parent body to be used when the General Assembly was not in session. Thus on brief notice the Little Assembly could meet and authorize steps which might have been blocked by the veto in the Security Council.

This last involves a great deal of legal maneuvering. It may not in the end be possible. But even in the project stage it illustrates the determination to end the paralysis that Russia's willful sabotage has produced in repeated crises.

The Russians will do everything they can in the General Assembly to prevent any of these things from happening. If they can spread sufficient fear and confusion, we may hear only the old familiar debates embroidering the theme of futility.

THERE IS a new will to go forward that is reflected in various ways. One is the determination, announced by President Truman to push a Japanese peace treaty in spite of the obstacles.

Preliminary soundings have already gone quite far. The Japanese have indicated a willingness to grant wide latitude for the location of American bases and American troops under a U. N. peace-keeping provision. The United States will push for the admission of Japan to the U. N.

Reparations claims had been considered a possible stumbling block to a peace settlement. Now Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies of Australia has indicated that Australia will waive its claims. In the present state of the Japanese economy, with the Japs' continuing dependence on American aid to live, such claims are highly unrealistic.

As head of the Russian delegation, cynical, waspish, posturing Andrei Vishinsky has one assignment. It is to do everything he can to prevent the new world from being born; to crush any burgeoning hope that might arise at this latest meeting of the congress of nations. Too often in the past the Western delegates have been beaten back by the Russian assault. But, just as in the U. N. beachhead in South Korea, there is today not much room left for retreat.

Letters To The Editor

Communtcations must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Portugal And The U. N.

This writer, having just returned from a month's stay in the Azores and in continental Portugal, is more than ever convinced that some action should be taken at this session of the General Assembly to bring our Iberian ally into the United Nations.

Portugal has much in common with the United States. The closest ties unite the Portuguese, particularly the Azoreans, with their relatives who have emigrated to New England and other parts of this country. The Portuguese people are 100 percent behind our war effort in Korea.

For over five centuries Portugal and Britain have been bound together by economic and political treaties. During the first World War, Portugal was our ally. In the second, while she remained a neutral, the bases which she loaned us in the Azores were invaluable, both in sea rescue work and in refueling of surface and subsurface vessels. Today, on the Island of Terceira, the Lagens Airbase, operated by the United States, commands vital approaches to and from Europe and is one of the cornerstones of our Atlantic defenses.

Yet, though a member of the Atlantic Pact, Portugal's bid for membership into the U. N. has been thwarted by the persistent veto of Russia. One of the items on the agenda of this fifth regular session of the United Nations is the admission of new members. Article IV of the Charter provides for admission "by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council." Now is the time for the Atlantic Pact Foreign Ministers, who have been meeting in an effort to strengthen the Western world and who head their respective delegations in the General Assembly, to fight the Kremlin's veto abuse blocking the admission of Portugal and other powers.

If successful, this step would do much to bolster the will of friendly people to resist the tide of communism.

Naming Communists

I should like to answer Irene N. Van Eckhardt, who penned the charges appearing in your September 15 issue.

A myth is a person or thing existing only in imagination. And while it is true that American patriots would like to believe that Alger Hiss was a legendary character, arbitrarily invented, to incite the hearts of modern dramatists in an effort to promote a sellout play, it is unlikely, and the idea is as phoney as a nine dollar bill; therefore, the lady's views about "the mythical Communists in our State Department" is as impressive to honest, American patriots as is Anglo-Saxon poetry to plumbers.

Furthermore, the average sane American is interested in Senator McCarthy's charges, and fails to agree with the young lady that the so-called charges are trumped-up, but rather believe that the charges, if handled in an honest, American statesmanship manner by Senator Millard Tydings, would have produced sufficient evidence to substantiate the charges.

It is very discouraging to find the Jeffersonian principles, which were my father's life avocation, abandoned by unscrupulous politicans, who have accepted the distorted, ugly theory of Machiavelli and resorted to all means of political trickery and treachery in order to maintain authority over the principalities.

Jan C. Smuts

Your editorial of Sept. 12, extolling the ideals and work of Jan C. Smuts, has placed me in quite a dilemma. Surely you have brought to my mind a different man. Does your article refer to the Smuts that has advocated, in spite of his ideals, and carried out, while Prime Minister, the vicious, brutal, undemocratic and inhumane South African policy toward non-whites?

Appointing Counsel

The recent announcement by Judge George Neilson while sitting in the United States branch of the Municipal Court, that in the future he was adopting a practice of appointing lawyers to represent all defendants in all cases where the accused appeared without counsel, is a healthy portent in these times where too often the courts seem bent on speedy justice rather than in preserving our ancient constitutional rights and privileges.

The forthright action of Judge Neilson, and especially his amplifying remark which he made in the courtroom on Saturday when he made the formal announcement, will have a most salutary effect upon the judicial climate in this jurisdiction. We need have no fear of Communistic inroads when jurists of the stature of Judge Neilson dominate our judiciary.

"Taxes And More"

You put the cart before the horse in the last paragraph of your editorial "Taxes And More" in your September 15 issue when you say that "the most serious threat to the pay-as-you-go program comes from the mercurial temperament of the American people." Regardless of the character of Government fiscal policies, if the American people cannot be made to support a long-range program to meet Soviet shenanigans, then we are in for dire trouble. You say in your editorial, "The present danger is that a change in the tide of battle in Korea may induce a feeling of complacency that will put Congress under pressure to reduce defense outlays prematurely and create public opposition to the heavy taxes made necessary by such outlays." This, in fact, would be a threat to our existence rather than to any "pay-as-you-go" program.

To yield to such pressure would indeed be disastrous, but not because it would throw our books out of balance. The Russians would be encouraged to more determined aggressive policies designed to throw us off our balance. To resist this we must chart a course to guide us whichever way the wind blows. We must make our decision now concerning the expansion of the military program and we must stick to that decision, not letting the enemy call the shots. I had assumed that the decision was already made. I cannot believe that the American people will run out on it at the crucial time. A victory in Korea would be a defeat if it induced a feeling of complacency with the Soviet menace still at large. A source of Soviet strength is the reliance on a long-range plan for the conquest of the world. They have a vision which is not weakened by feelings of complacency. We must be true to our militant vision which we cannot afford to keep far from our minds until final victory has been achieved.

"Political Apathy"

"Political Apathy," the title over a couple of very interesting letters in recent issues of your paper, is a subject that should receive far more thought and discussion than it has been receiving for the past many years.

To me it seems inconceivable that a man or woman should be able to live to years of maturity without ever giving the slightest thought or care for the greatest single "right" the fortunate people of America enjoy. Yet I have several near relatives who are just that guilty of neglecting, with perfect indifference, their right and privilege to have a voice in the choosing of the men and women who make and administer the laws.

Letters from Ina R. Friedman and William R. Turner were of particular interest to me. As brought out by Mr. Turner, there are two distinct forms of apathy: First is the person who just goes merrily along his way, cussing the Government for what he thinks is wrong, but never doing anything about it. Then there is the other form of apathy: The person who never fails to vote—the "ticket," the slate which is fixed up for him long in advance. He gives no thought or care to the qualifications of the candidates for office; if they are on the "ticket," that is all he cares. And I have some of those in the rather large group I think of as "my family."

I would like to add to the two above-named apathies a third. I now refer to those who do not study seriously enough the whole picture of politics and economics. There seems to be complete apathy on the part of the city voters regarding the double or triple waste and extravagance in the farm-price-support racket. Any sort of intelligent organization by the city voters could wipe out that outrage in one election.

For 60 or 70 years there has been a bloc in Congress which gives a subsidy of approximately 100 percent to the silver barons of eight Western States. Who cares anything about it? We have lots of money; why not let them go ahead with the steal?

What about the outrageous "pork-barrel" log-rolling, which is not so much better than a steal, as regards the greater portion of it.

It took about 64 years to get rid of the oleo graft; but we did finally get rid of it.

Who will come in now with a sound suggestion as to what can be done in the field of any one of these apathies? Probably the fellow who votes the "ticket" must be ruled out. He is so much in his own light that there is no hope of reaching his way of reasoning at all. But cannot someone come up with an idea of educating the indifferent ones who never vote and possibly get the ones who do vote, with the best intentions of accomplishing some good, to dig into the record of their chosen man, as well as into what great improvements might be brought about.

Ousting Dr. Hager

According to a Washington Post news article of September 11, a group of Washington citizens is circulating a petition recommending the removal of Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of Wilson Teachers College, because his proposal on the merger of the District's teachers colleges is "against established practices here." Democratic irresponsibility of the type evidenced by the circulators of this petition constitutes a serious sabotage to a Nation engaged in a world-wide ideological struggle. Neither anticommunism, military strength, nor diplomatic finesse can bring victory to our cause if our citizens will not shoulder the responsibilities of democracy as well as accept its advantages.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

General Marshall

Lippmann

THE SELECTION of General Marshall, contrary to the letter of the law on the civilian control of the military establishment, has happened to coincide with General MacArthur's landing at Inchon and with Secretary Acheson's argument to the Foreign Ministers for the recruiting of German troops.

In Korea the crucial military question is whether the war will in fact remain isolated in order that MacArthur's troops may obtain a military decision before the hard Korean winter sets in. At the Waldorf Hotel conference the overriding issue has been how in real life the French and the Germans can be made to feel that they are ready to work together and to fight side by side and to suffer in a common cause.

THE ISOLATION of the Korean war and the fusion of French and German interests cannot be achieved by military means alone. These problems are primarily and preeminently diplomatic and political and they fall into that highest form of strategy where the conclusions of the wisest soldiers and of the ablest statesmen must come together. General Marshall cannot be expected to solve the problems. But he should do much to make a solution possible. He is the soldier who understood that the revolution in Asia cannot be dealt with by American military intervention. He is the soldier who understood that the European society must be made worth defending.

Thus in this special and critical moment in our history he is uniquely qualified to do what the principle of civilian control is meant to do: to subordinate simple-minded and crude military calculation to the political realities.

It is, I think, accurate and only fair to add that inside the Pentagon where our whole position in the world is constantly in view, a policy of political realism, which General Marshall can make possible, will be warmly supported.

THE CRITICAL question in Korea has always been whether the Chinese and the Russians would intervene. If they did not intervene, then the North Koreans, who have no air force, no navy, and have quite limited reserves and men, were bound to succumb to the force of the United States and its allies. It was always unlikely that the Russians would intervene because that would have brought on a general war. But Chinese intervention has always been possible, and had it occurred this would have meant at the worst a catastrophe to our troops in Korea, at best a long gruelling and indecisive war.

Thus far the Chinese have not intervened. They have, I believe it is correct to say, been persuaded by United Nations diplomacy.

THIS DIPLOMACY has had three main elements: First, that the Peiping government is not a mere satellite, and that therefore it will and it can act for Chinese reasons; second, that to become involved in war with the United States would be ruinous to China whatever advantages might accrue to Soviet Russia; third, that no vital Chinese interest is threatened by the United States or the United Nations, whether in Korea or in Formosa.

Our interest in the success of this diplomatic campaign has been enormous. For nothing less than the safety of our armies and the maintenance of our prestige in the Far East have been at stake. Yet, because of domestic politics we have not been able to give the campaign our full support and we have come very near at one time to wrecking it. That was when General MacArthur paid his visit to Chiang, and then issued his statement about Formosa, and when Secretary Matthews advocated preventive war. Had the Peiping government become convinced that we meant to take Formosa, and that we meant to use Chiang as the spearhead of an attack on China, having decided with Secretary Matthews that we wanted a world war now, the temptation to the Chinese would have been strong to intervene in Korea and entrap the main elements of the American Army.

WE HAVE BEEN teetering on the edge of fearful danger, and might easily have fallen into it if President Truman had not acted with such courage and decision in the Formosa business. But it should not be necessary for the President of the United States to repair in public the damage done by his own generals. The Secretary of Defense is the official who should tend to that. And George Marshall should be able to tend to it. The day may well come when some of General MacArthur's young and honest disciples—I am thinking of Senator Knowland—will admit that the good work of MacArthur the soldier was saved from being ruined by the political recklessness of MacArthur the grandiose proconsul.

IN THE Waldorf conference one has an impression of haste and superficiality—as if the American proposals had been rather suddenly improvised without sufficient inquiry or consultation in Germany and in France. For how except by inadvertence could we have got ourselves into the position where we seem to be more eager than are the Germans themselves, not to speak of the French, to put the Germans back into uniform?

Surely, a considered and well prepared approach would have started not from the idea of how convenient it would be to have 20 effective and loyal German divisions. It would have started with the measures which would make the Germans willing to enlist within a Franco-German partnership. But as the matter has been broached at the Waldorf—at least so far as the world public is concerned—we seem to have put first a desire to recruit German manpower, and way behind it, so far behind it that it has not been in sight at all, the reconciliation of France and Germany, which is the object of the Schuman Plan and without which there can never be a united defense of Europe.

of stationing troops in Europe, and of putting them under an international command if its partners would make comparable efforts.

Why, then, did the treaty partners hesitate? Partial explanation was that the United States had made its proposals without having time to consult its partners in private and in advance. Another reason was that there had been only the sketchiest preparation and exploration of the technical issues involved.

But still another explanation, and a convincing one, came during today's meeting from Foreign Minister Halvard Lange of Norway. No statesman in Europe has shown more courage than Lange in facing up to the Soviet danger, although his country borders on Russia in the far north.

But Lange reminded his fellow ministers today that they were being asked to take a truly tremendous decision in approving a combined army. They were being asked to surrender some of their national sovereignty by putting their armed forces under international control.

Lange knew it was necessary, and he said so repeatedly during the three days' debate, but he also knew that he as a Foreign Minister could not commit his government and his people to such a step without specific authority from home. This was the kind of argument that won the day for delay and consultation.

The Ministers knew in their hearts that they had to take the plunge, just as the United States Administration had taken it last week, but they wanted to be sure that they had the support of their people before doing it. This was why the communique tonight was so cautious as to seem timid and half-hearted.

Acheson Sees Progress

Secretary Acheson believes that on the whole, the conference made amazing progress in view of the revolutionary nature of the proposal.

Acheson, it was learned tonight from a completely authoritative informant, also feels that the recess will result in still further progress. Firm agreements to proceed with the creation of the force are expected when the recess ends.

Acheson shares the view expressed in conference corridors today that whereas such announcements as that made today usually cover up disagreements, this one is diplomatically worded to cover up what amounts to substantial agreement. The reasons for this:

Schuman is faced with difficult political problems at home because of the long French opposition to German rearmament. He, therefore, needs time to examine all the questions raised by the American proposal and to obtain reassurances that the safeguards set up against any new German militarism are sufficient to win French approval.

Other nations have cabinet decisions and constitutional arrangements to make. Norway and Denmark, for instance, are understood to require constitutional arrangements before they can contribute to an international force.

The text of the big 12 communique follows:

"The North Atlantic Council has devoted its three-day meeting to a thorough discussion of the major questions presented by the urgent need to strengthen collective defense.

"The Council was determined to proceed with the necessary measures to this end. The discussion dealt with matters of far-reaching importance and related principally to the creation, in the shortest possible time, of an integrated military force, adequate for the defense of freedom in Europe and to the related questions of the character of participation in the force, its military organization, and matters of supply, finance and raw materials.

"The proposal for such a force, supported by adequate financial and supply arrangements, based on collective effort, was warmly welcomed and it was decided that the ministers should promptly consult their governments as to the way in which such a plan could be put into effect.

Quick Defense of Europe Is Policy, Bradley Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Gen. Omar N. Bradley today said America's foreign and military policy now calls for the defense of western Europe at the start of any World War III, instead of trying to liberate the Continent after it has been overrun.

In an article appearing simultaneously in the Combat Forces Journal and the Reader's Digest, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said the chances of defending western Europe are "immensely brighter" than they were a year ago. He attributed this to American productive power, Europe's economic recovery, and the military aid program.

The President's Calling List

By The Associated Press

10 A. M.—Vice President Barkley, Speaker Rayburn.

12:30 P. M.—Undersecretary of State Webb.

15 Parliaments Due to Act on Europe Army

PARIS, Sept. 18 (AP).—The parliaments of 15 West European nations will be asked to act on Winston Churchill's proposal to create a unified army under a European defense minister, it was disclosed today.

The decision was made by the executive bureau of the European Consultative Assembly, which has been called to resume its meetings at Strasbourg on Nov. 17. The bureau is composed of Assembly President Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, and four vice presidents from Britain, western Germany, Sweden and Turkey.

The 125-member assembly is an unofficial parliament with power to recommend but not to act. Its resolutions normally are passed on to a committee of foreign ministers, upper house of the Council of Europe, where one member can veto action.

The committee pigeon holed most of the assembly's 1949 resolutions.

Four other assembly resolutions will be sent directly to the national parliaments. They involve restriction of the veto in the ministerial committee, creation of a European supreme court to enforce human rights and a common effort to solve unemployment.

Belgrade Loan Bid Is Studied By Bank Group

BELGRADE, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—A World Bank delegation led by its president, Eugene Black of the United States, arrived here today to review Yugoslavia's request for a 25 million dollar loan as a result of the drought that has hurt the country's entire economy and export program.

Arrival of the four members came as Marshal Tito's government began conferences to examine ways of raising funds for food and to avert possible starvation and civil unrest this winter.

The loan request, pending for well over a year, has not been granted because of Belgrade's inability to settle prewar financial accounts with the U. S. and France.

Yugoslavia has an outstanding prewar bond issue of 38 million dollars in the U. S., while in France there is a question of the nationalized Bor copper mines, which the French owned before the war.

However, according to reliable sources, Yugoslavia has now informed the World Bank of its readiness to settle both these debts, thus clearing the way for possibly favorable consideration of the loan.

Under bank rules, any loans to Yugoslavia cannot be used for food or other similar short-term projects. The loan is earmarked for specific mining, timber and agricultural projects.

$90,000 Voted to Continue Area Traffic Survey to June

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

(Third in a Series)

The four governmental partners in the Regional Highway Planning Survey for Metropolitan Washington have agreed to contribute $90,000 to continue the project to next June.

Formal papers covering the agreement are now being drawn and call for $15,000 each from the District of Columbia, the States of Maryland and Virginia and a matching $45,000 from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads, Chairman Samuel R. Harrison, Deputy Director of Highways for the District, disclosed yesterday.

Added to the previous joint fund of $36,000 from the four political jurisdictions, the new fund should enable completion of a formal report on the Area's transportation plan by next summer.

Harrison added that officials of the four areas, who are on the committee supervising the survey, have shown interest in maintaining it as a continuing project. The technicians would make periodic checks of traffic and its destination to keep the master plan up to date.

Flareups Cited

If this is done, Greater Washington will be assured of highway developments which fit into a plan, rather than patchwork projects which remedy something here, only to cause new congestion there, supporters declare.

They cite the flareups resulting when projects are installed on a spot basis without adequate study of the desires of the traveling public. The net effect then is criticism by more motorists than the original complaining group.

Another advantage claimed is that the Area could stay ahead of the traveling crowd, instead of behind it, planning remedies before the needs develop and blossom into first class headaches.

It takes years to design and complete a bridge, an underpass or a new roadway and if governmental units wait until the need is absolutely painful, the remedy may come after the traffic is slowed down to a crawl.

Speed Study Completed

With plenty of work still ahead of it before coming up with its Area plan, the survey has already completed one project of interest to every motorist in Greater Washington. A. Clason Taylor, technical director, said it is a comprehensive study, based on 10,000 miles of travel, of the average speed possible during peak hours on the streets and on the roads of the area.

With this information, it is possible to map out numerous time-saving routes—and sometimes mileage-saving routes—for motorists. In some cases, these clip five to ten minutes off presently popular routes.

The Washington Post, in cooperation with the Regional Highway Planning Survey for Metropolitan Washington, has prepared a series of Traffic Tricks showing how to save time in rush hours in getting to the general vicinity of 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. These will be published daily with maps.

In using these motorists should remember that the trip times are based on the average driver. Since the Survey used 10,000 miles of travel in its basic study, the study should level out differences in individual driving experience.

If there are obstructions such as detours on the recommended routes, stick as close to the route as possible and it will still probably save a few minutes time.

In addition to the specific neighborhood suggestions, which start in Wednesday's edditions of The Washington Post, there are 10 general rules for saving time, developed from the Survey's speed map. They are:

1. Nearby Virginians will find Shirley hwy. is the fastest route into Washington.

2. The East Highway bridge and its companion 14th st. bridge are faster crossings than Key or Memorial bridges.

3. Use of Canal rd., MacArthur blvd. and the Whitehurst Freeway is the fastest way to get downtown for residents living on both sides of the Potomac in that region.

4. Upper Northwest section residents will find Reno rd. and 34th st. nw. is a fast way downtown.

16th Street Faster

5. From the Silver Spring area, 16th st. is faster than Rock Creek pkwy. or Georgia ave. up to Bladgon ave. nw. From there down, the Parkway is faster.

6. Of the lower numbered streets, 5th is fast for downtown-bound traffic. It runs into Park pl., then to 4th. Then take a right on Rhode Island ave. to 6th and then straight down to the business district.

Riggs rd. is good for newly developed sections of Prince Georges between the University of Maryland and New Hampshire ave.

8. New York ave. is faster for Prince Georges residents than Rhode Island ave. Pick it up off Bladensburg rd.

9. South Capitol st. bridge is a faster crossing than the 11th st. bridge.

10. Mount Vernon pkway. is faster than the Jefferson Davis hway. from the south end of Alexandria to the D. C. line by a minute.

Wednesday—The first in a series of Traffic Tricks showing the fastest way to get downtown from Congress Heights, Washington Highlands, Barnaby Manor, Forest Heights and Oxon Hill.

Gas War Cuts Price

CHICAGO, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—A gasoline price war here brought cuts of four to five cents a gallon today. The Gas Retailers Association blamed "lone wolves." Regular gas generally was cut from 24.9 to 20.9 cents a gallon.

DenhamFiring Said to 'Flout' Congress' Will

By The Associated Press

Representative Lucas (D., Tex.) told the House yesterday the firing of Robert Denham as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board "flouts the will" of Congress.

Lucas declared Denham's ouster removes from the NLRB the last official who will make an "honest interpretation" of the Taft-Hartley law.

Later, Lucas told newsmen that he would like to see the House Labor Committee investigate the matter. Lucas is a member of the committee.

Mr. Truman fired Denham Saturday. Denham, a Republican, has held the job since a Republican Congress created it three years ago in passing the Taft-Hartley labor law.

Keen interest is being shown in who will be his successor. No one seemed to have any good guesses.

Whoever is chosen must be confirmed by the Senate. Consideration of the appointment there could bring an explosive labor debate in which both Republicans and Democrats would seek every possible political advantage. If Congress is not in session when the nomination goes up, a recess appointment can be given.

Meanwhile, Denham yesterday advised his 18 regional directors to hold up complaints against unions or employers until his successor is seated.

Denham said he sent a telegram to the NLRB regional officers telling them that "they could get into a lot of trouble and not to try to issue any complaints until a successor has been nominated and confirmed."

He expressed belief his advice would not "seriously interfere with operations" of the regional offices, which would continue to process election cases or those complaints already started.

"It will only mean delaying action on these complaints," he said.

The outspoken prosecuting officer for the Taft-Hartley Act, whose running battle with the five-man NLRB over enforcement policy finally cost him his job, stepped down last night. He had offered to quit at President Truman's convenience. The President accepted his resignation as of the close of business yesterday.

Wolfson Shifts Headquarters To Washington

By S. Oliver Goodman

Louis E. Wolfson, head of the Florida group which purchased control of Capital Transit Co. last year, has moved to Washington, it was learned yesterday.

L. E. Wolfson

He is a resident at the Shoreham Hotel prior to occupying a recently-purchased home on Ellicott st. Wolfson is the fourth member of the syndicate to move here. The others are J. A. B. Broadwater, Jack Surasky and Doran Weinstein, all of whom are Capital Transit directors and officers. Wolfson does not hold an official post, but is a director.

Meanwhile, it was reported yesterday that Wolfson has purchased an additional 6600 shares of common stock in the contracting firm of Merritt-Chapman & Scott Corp. This increased his direct and indirect holdings in the firm to 44,000 shares, believed to be effective stock control.

The Merritt-Chapman firm is doing the underwater work on the new Chesapeake Bay Bridge, has built many other large bridges and has erected numerous Government buildings.

OPENING: The new home of Interstate Building Association at 1450 New York ave. looked like a florist shop yesterday on its first day of business. Good wishes poured in from friends. Secretary-Treasurer Edward K. Jones reported that first account in the new quarters was opened by Mrs. Nora B. Harter of 1880 Monroe st., nw. The institution, whose assets are in excess of $15,500,000, stayed open an hour later than usual yesterday to accommodate the many visitors.

WHO'S NEWS: Walter S. Mack yesterday announced his resignation as chairman and member of the board of Pepsi-Cola Co. He was president of the soft-drink firm from 1938 until March 1 this year when he became chairman. Neither reason for resignation nor successor was indicated . . .

W. S. Mack

Humphrey Lloyd, vice Lloyd, president and secretary of Washington Properties, Inc., was elected a director of the Controllers Institute at a meeting in Chicago . . . Frank I. Busbee has been named Washington general agent of Monarch Life Insurance Co. . . . Raymond C. Briggs, president of the meat packing firm here bearing his name, will speak September 30 at a meeting of the American Meat Institute in Chicago . . . R. B. Worthy, formerly general manager of Baltimore operations of Mathieson Chemical Corp., will be shifted to the new Saltville, Va., plant.

VEPCO NET: Virginia Electric & Power Co. reported net income of $9,518,589 for the 12 months ended August 31, equal to $1.92 a share. This compared with $7,299,121 or $1.67 a share in the previous 12 months. August net income totaled $817,168, against $668,254 in the same 1949 month.

AIR TRANSPORT: Domestic trunk airlines in July showed a jump of 55 per cent in air freight ton miles, the Air Transport Association reported yesterday. Passenger miles in July increased 17.5 percent over the same 1949 month. Previously, the association reported that air freight ton miles in the first six months gained 12½ percent, while passenger miles increased 13.3 percent over the like 1949 periods. Total operating revenues for the half year were $240,037,077, up 7.5 percent.

AUTO SUPPLY: Dealer stocks of new automobiles on September 1 were at the lowest level in two years. Reporting this, the trade paper Automotive News said the average United States dealer had a potential inventory of 9.3 new cars, of which only 5.6 were actually on hand. The remainder were in transit from the factory. The paper said its survey showed dealers held an estimated 407,826 vehicles as of September 1; of these 247,426 were actually on hand and the remainder in transit. One month earlier dealer stocks numbered 430,237, of which 268,937 were on hand and the remainder in transit.

ODD LOTS: Republic Steel Corp. and Armco Steel Corp. have purchased all the stock of Reserve Mining Co. in Minnesota and plan a 160-million-dollar outlay for exploitation of the magnetic taconite iron ore in the firm's property. . . . Steel production this week will reach 100.4 percent of capacity, second highest on record. . . . American Car & Foundry Co. reported its current order backlog of 13,611 freight cars is the largest since April, 1949. . . . Bakelite division of Union Carbide & Carbon Corp. announced price increases of 4½ to 6 percent on its plastic products. . . . Control of United Sanitary Corp. of Mannington, W. Va., has been purchased by American Dyewood Corp.

Howard Quits As Munitions Board's Head

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Hubert E. Howard, a friend and admirer of outgoing Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, has resigned as chairman of the Munitions Board.

President Truman was quick to accept Howard's resignation, making it effective at the close of business yesterday. He explained that Howard had asked in a letter to be relieved not later than September 30, but had then asked orally to be relieved "as soon as possible."

The Senate's Preparedness Committee has sharply criticized the Munitions Board for not stockpiling more crude rubber, among other materials, and has suggested that "more imaginative and far-sighted men" are needed to handle stockpiling.

There was no mention of this in the exchange of letters between President Truman and Chairman Howard, which the White House gave out late yesterday. Mr. Truman, in fact praised Howard for his "superior" service.

Howard, a 61-year-old, well-to-do official of a Chicago coal company, wrote his letter of resignation Wednesday, the day after the White House announced the resignation of Secretary of Defense Johnson.

"It is with deepest regret," he told the President, "that I have learned of your acceptance of the resignation of Mr. Louis Johnson, Secretary of Defense, a man whom I consider one of the great administrators of the country, and for whom I have the highest personal regard.

"When I came to Washington last fall at the request of Mr. Johnson, I promised him I would spend a year in Government service. That year has expired, 1 September 1950.

"I herewith tender my resignation as chairman of the Munitions Board, Department of Defense, effective at your earliest convenience and, I hope, not later than September 30. I connot do this without expressing my grateful appreciation of the opportunity given me to serve."

President Truman, in accepting the resignation as of the close of business yesterday, said he was moving up the date in accordance with Howard's desire, expressed orally, to be relieved as soon as possible.

"I am grateful for your consideration of the public interest by continuing your availability in an advisory capacity until the end of the month," Mr. Truman said in his letter.

"Accept, please, my heartfelt thanks for the superior service which you have rendered the Government during a particularly critical period—a service for which your previous experience gave you exceptional knowledge and resources. Your contribution to the national security has been invaluable."

Gen. Marshall Is Appointed Defense Head

President Truman submitted to the Senate yesterday the nomination of Gen. George C. Marshall to be Secretary of Defense, succeeding Louis Johnson whose resignation becomes effective today.

Mr. Truman submitted the nomination shortly after signing a bill which removes, in Marshall's case only, a restriction against military men serving as head of the defense establishment.

President Truman also nominated four-star Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to the permanent rank of five-star general.

He sent the nomination to the Senate for confirmation soon after he signed a bill authorizing him to give Bradley that rank.

'Expendable,' Johnson Says

aggression we know how to subordinate ourselves to the needs of our society, and to recognize that, in the final analysis, what may happen to any one of us in a fight for the protection of our ideals may not be very important."

Johnson said he learned early—as a lieutenant in World War II—that soldiers are "expendable." A "good soldier," he added, "must be prepared always to make the sacrifice . . . for the good of his country. That goes not only for a buck private and a second lieutenant . . . it goes for a Secretary of Defense as well."

At the conclusion of his speech, Johnson received a standing ovation.

Harold J. Gallagher of New York, president of the American Bar Association, told the outgoing Defense Secretary:

"We regret to see you go. I think you've done a good job and the country will have reason to thank you in days to come."

Abstains From Attack

Johnson made no defense of his Pentagon record and abstained from any attack on his "enemies." He spoke of the "headaches and heartaches" as well as the "compensations" of his job. Among the latter he said, was the "very high compliment" President Truman paid him in picking him for the Defense Secretaryship.

"When the hurly-burly's done and the battle is won," he added, "I trust the historian will find my record of performance creditable, my services honest and faithful, commensurate with the trust that was placed in me and in the best interests of peace and our national defense."

Hits 'Sunshine Patriots'

Johnson took "sunshine patriots" to task for their earlier doubts of American troops' ability to hold their beach-head in Korea. He declared that when the facts become fully known, "the stand of our heroic forces in Korea against insurmountable odds, will go down down beside the most memorable battles in our history."

"Today," he added, "We are successfully exploiting the fruits of a master strategic stroke, brilliantly conceived and directed by General MacArthur.

"Korea may yet prove to be the aggressor's Waterloo. His action already has spurred the United States toward greater mobilization of men and the production of munitions. His attack already has hastened the evolution of the peaceful North Atlantic community into a firm protective alliance.

"We have every hope the results in Korea will convince the Soviet satellites throughout the world that there is no glory in dying for Russian imperialism and will prove to the Kremlin itself that the United Nations will and can protect the peace."

Warns of 'Onerous Taxes'

But America must remain strong, he declared. This will mean "onerous taxes" and military service for many citizens, which "may become a permanent and fixed cost for the price of freedom."

He warned, however, against over-spending for defense because it would "satisfy our enemies and improverish us and our friends." In "the final analysis the health of our economy is one of the primary military assets of the free world." And superiority in arms is not enough, Johnson said.

"We must eliminate the war-breeding germs which encourage the aggressor," he went on. "We must banish the squalor, and the filth and the poverty in which communism is spawned and thrives. We must work for a better world. We must be just. We must be honest."

Bosox Nail Tigers Again, 3-2; Vault Into 2d Place

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—The evening train to Cleveland was awaiting the Red Sox after today's joust with the Tigers, and the timid souls in the Boston entourage were suggesting it could be a pretty grim pair of games there with the Indians.

For the Red Sox there are some doleful statistics that could point to an indecent interment of their pennant hopes in the big Municipal Stadium. They have only won four games in Cleveland in two seasons that have embraced 20 shots at it—two last year, two this year.

Povich

"Worse than that," one of the Red Sox camp followers was moaning, "there's no more pressure on the Indians since they conked out of the pennant race. And in Boston all season we've been rubbing their noses in it. They'll remember their last trip when we knocked 'em off in those two games when they were leading 7-0 and 12-1."

However, the Red Sox decided to take the train anyway.

THE RED SOX, who have had a continual pitching crisis all season, declined an offer of help from a St. Louis citizen last week. Buck Newsom, now broadcasting for the Browns since Chattanooga's season ended, volunteered to pitch the Red Sox to the pennant "if you sign me."

General Manager Joe Cronin decided that he would take his chances without Newsom. That decision didn't take much reflection. Cronin had only to recall his own unhappy days as Newsom's manager at Boston when Bobo was in the habit of telling Cronin "You do the shortstopping and I'll do the pitching."

Manager Red Rolfe of the Tigers had a short address for the belligerent pair, Coach Dick Bartell and Rookie Catcher Frank House, who swapped punches on the Detroit bench before yesterday's game. Today, Rolfe commanded 'em, "Let's do all our fighting against the Red Sox. We aren't trying to beat ourselves."

Football-minded Birdie Tebbetts, whose lazy single into short right center was laden with two runs and won yesterday's 3-2 game for Boston, was saying today: "I couldn't have placed that hit better if I had thrown it between the outfielders. It fell safe just like a beautiful incomplete forward pass."

General Manager Billy Evans of the Tigers was beaming at the presence of the large crowd in the stadium, with his office shooting at the first two million attendance mark in the club's history. "This is wonderful," Evans observed as the game started, "but I wish I could be sure these two teams aren't battling for second place."

IF THE RED SOX aren't the best team in the American League, they are at least the most-scouted. Heinie Groh was assigned by the Phillies to keep tab on the Boston club last week, and yesterday he was joined by George Earnshaw, also of the Phils.

The two Phillies' scouts are given all the courtesies the Red Sox can extend. Manager Steve O'Neill was telling Earnshaw today "It's nice to know the Phillies think we can win the pennant and we'll accept their ideas on the subject."

Earnshow, meanwhile, is scouting the Tigers and expressed a deep interest when their kid catcher, Joe Ginsberg, led off the seventh inning with a two-bagger today. He was asking what kind of a pitch Ginsberg hit when he gratefully learned the fellow had rejoined the Tigers 12 hours after the August 31 deadline and wasn't eligible for any World Series.

Only an ice-water display of courage by Third Baseman Billy Goodman took a hit away from Hal Newhouser in the seventh inning today with none out and the winning run on second base. Newhouser bunted down the line and Goodman chose to gamble the ball would roll foul. Newhouser was already safe on first and the winning run was on third when the ball took a foul twist just in front of the bag.

Ted Williams tried to confound the Tigers' special Williams' defense shift by stroking the ball into left field today but succeeded only in popping a fly to Hoot Evers. At least the novelty of it was interesting. With Williams out, the Tigers deployed back to their old positions. It looked like a troop movement.

BOM-DIMAGGIO was out on a fly ball to Vic Wertz in right field in the eighth inning on what could be called a delayed catch. Big Wertz was off at the crack of the bat—but in the wrong direction. He reversed his field, overran the ball, re-reversed his field, and caught up with it in a desperate one-hand grab to make a thrilling play out of an easy chance.

When Johnny Groth drove in the run that put the Tigers ahead, 2-1, in the eighth, it was a moral lesson in persistence for all the little kiddies. Twice previously in the game he whacked balls toward right field but couldn't get 'em past Bobby Doerr. But his last smack had stuff and things on it.

The wind-up for Newhouser was his own wind-up. Like a kid on the sandlots instead of a guy who has been around the majors for 12 years, he acted as if nobody were on base in the Red Sox ninth and went into a deep-dip delivery that allowed Ted Williams to scramble from first to second unmolested with the potential winning run. Manager Red Rolfe jerked Prince Hal quickly and let him finish his reveries under the shower.

Unbeaten Team An Enigma

How Good Are the Redskins? They Even Have Ball Asking

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

THE WASHINGTON Redskins and Cleveland Browns are both unbeaten this season, but while the Browns are universally recognized as a top-flight football team, the Redskins remain an enigma.

Nobody seems to know how good, or how bad, they really are.

Coach Crowe

Like the Browns, the Redskins swept their five-game exhibition program. They made it six in a row against the Colts in the league opener in Baltimore Sunday.

But still people are wondering, are they really that good?

The answer is not immediately forthcoming. No new light will be shed on the problem next Sunday when the Redskins play the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee. The Packers barely beat the Colts, 16-14, in an exhibition and were soundly thrashed, 45-7, by Detroit Sunday. That makes the Redskins odds-on favorites to continue their all-winning ways.

Rival coaches who have seen Herman Ball's athletes hang up victory after victory from Los Angeles to Baltimore are in agreement on one thing in their analysis of the Redskins: They're improved.

Considering the poor 1949 team which won only four games, this observation is not too profound.

Greasy Neale, trying to forget what happened to his Eagles against the Browns Saturday night, was in Baltimore for the Redskins-Colts game Sunday. Before the game, he told reporters he had heard the Redskins were improved, but he wanted to see for himself. After the game, his only comment was: "They are improved."

THE CHIEF improvement, as Neale sized up the situation, was in the team's spirit, "They play like they want to win," he said.

Coach Clem Crowe, whose hapless Colts have now taken it on the chin eight straight times and meet Cleveland Sunday, had this to say about the Redskins:

"Against us, they were a good team. But, as our record shows, we're not a particularly good team. We honestly thought we could beat them."

Coach Ball

Ball himself doesn't quite know what to make of his team. He's happy over the success to date and although he isn't fearful of the future, neither is he too confident.

"Our future, as far as I'm concerned right now," he said yesterday, "begins and ends in Milwaukee Sunday. We've got to beat the Packers. We'll take the games as they come along. It's tough enough winning one game in this league, much less trying to plan for something two or three weeks in advance."

The Redskins are in good shape to perpetuate their winning streak for maybe three more weeks. After the Packers come the Pittsburgh Steelers, then the New York Giants and then, of all things, an open date, necessitated by the 13-team league.

Beginning October 22, however, the real test begins. It's the Cardinals, Eagles, the Giants, the Eagles and the Browns.

When that's over, the degree of the Redskin improvement should be pretty well established. Until then, stand by.

Newhouser Messes Up 9th, Boston Gets 2 Runs

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

DETROIT, Sept. 18.—At what awful cost to the Tigers in the pennant race they cannot yet reckon, but today Detroit's Hal Newhouser — Prince Hal — did a quick ninth-inning fold-up and tossed off a 3-2 game to the charging Boston Red Sox.

Into second place the Red Sox charged before the dismayed gaze of 24,485 fans who saw the Tigers give Newhouser a 2-1 lead he couldn't hold when the Red Sox mounted a last-ditch challenge.

He was rapped for two quick hits, made a wild throw, blew a mental gasket and made a mess of his one-run lead before Walt Dropo's single off Hal White wrapped the game up for the Red Sox.

Kinder Again

The victory served to move the Red Sox into second place for the first time since May, a half game ahead of the Tigers and only one game behind the Yankees. The new figures show:

	W.	L.	GB	Pct.
New York	90	52	....	.634
Boston	89	53	1	.627
Detroit	88	53	1½	.624

At the finish, the Red Sox were safely taken past the Detroit ninth inning by Ellis Kinder, in another demonstration of Kinder Week in the pennant race. The 37-year-old right hander was called upon for a rescue act for the fifth consecutive day by the desperate Bostonians and again he saw them home.

Kinder moved in after young Willard Nixon, who had given Newhouser a smart duel of it for eight innings, pitched three wide balls to Joe Ginsberg at the start of the Detroit ninth. Kinder finally issued a walk to Ginsberg, but that's all the Tigers achieved.

Keller Fails

Pinch-hitter Pat Mullin sacrificed the tying run to second, but Kinder got rid of Pinch-hitter Charley Keller on a pop to Doerr, and then disposed of Priddy on a ground ball to Stephens, and the Tigers were a gone gang.

It was without warning that Newhouser collapsed after being handed his 2-1 lead in the Tiger eighth. Billy Goodman led off with a single to center in the ninth, and the Tiger southpaw then put himself in a hole with a 3-0 count on Ted Williams. He got two strikes over, and then—horrors!

Williams tapped a high bounder in front of the plate and Newhouser threw it indiscriminately into right field in a try for the putout at first. On the error, Goodman romped all the way to third.

Now the pressure was on and Newhouser went into a grievous mental lapse. It took the form of

Contest Rules

THE CONTEST each week will include 20 major college games. The contestant will select the winner (or tie) in each of these games. There will also be a twenty-first game for which the contestant must give the "Probable Score," to be considered by the contest judges only in case two or more persons tie on the first 20 games.

All entries must be in the hands of the Football Contest Editor not later than 9 p. m. Friday of each week. Entries should be left at the Service Counter in the lobby of The Washington Post Bldg., 1337 E St. N. W.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week shall be declared the winner. In case of ties, all persons sharing in the tie will receive duplicate awards.

The decisions of the judges will be final.

Entries submitted must be legible, with the selections listed in the order they are announced in The Washington Post.

Entries may be handwritten or typewritten. However, carbon copies and mimeographed copies or copies made by any other duplicating machine will NOT be accepted. You may submit as many entries as you wish.

No employe of The Washington Post or member of his immediate family is eligible to participate in this contest.

No person will be eligible to win the weekly contest twice.

Phone NA. 7056 for answers to questions about Contest after 4 p. m.

Atlantic City Daily Double Hits $2135—One $10 Ticket Sold

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 18 (AP).—A new high in daily double payoffs in the five-year history of the Atlantic City race course was established today when the "11-10" combination of Hand In Glove and Justalike returned $2,135.60 for $2 tickets.

One $10 and 19 $2 tickets were sold to the lucky ones in the gathering of 8500. The previous high was $1,379.80, set on August 12, 1948.

The victory was the first of the year in 14 starts for O. E. Shaw's Hand In Glove. The Johnstown mare paid $52.80, $17.00 and $10.20. Justalike returned $76.60, $29.80 and $16.40.

Conqueror Of Citation Finishes 2d

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (AP).—Noor, four times winner over Citation in California, made his Eastern racing debut at Belmont Park today and had to settle for second money as One Hitter slammed down the stretch for a length and a quarter victory in the Harmonicon Handicap.

This was the first start for the Irish-bred Noor since he won the American Handicap at Hollywood Park, July 22.

A crowd of 21,409 turned out for the opening of the Belmont Park fall season and established Noor the 19-20 favorite in this mile and one-sixteenth event, a tune-up for the $25,000 Manhattan Handicap next Saturday.

But One Hitter, the Greentree Stable 4-year-old son of Shut Out, had other ideas. Jockey Teddy Atkinson was content to let Mrs. Evelyn L. Hopkins' Three Rings set the fast pace. Then he steered One Hitter, a 10 to 1 shot, through a hole along the rail near the top of the stretch a quarter of a mile from home.

One Hitter, carrying only 107 pounds, clipped under the wire in 1:42 4/5. He paid $23.10, $5.20 and $2.80 across the board.

Three Rings, recent winner of the Edgemere Handicap and considered about tops in the current crop of Eastern handicap horses, tired and fell back to finish fourth.

Noor, packing high weight of 128 pounds, charged gamely down the long stretch, and put away Burton D. Chait's Sky Miracle about a sixteenth of a mile from the finish. But there was no chance to catch One Hitter.

At the finish, Noor was a length and a half ahead of Sky Miracle, which in turn was two and a half lengths to the good of Three Rings.

Noor returned $3.10 and $2.40 to place, with Sky Miracle $3.50 to show.

Northey's Clout Beats Dodgers

BROOKLYN, Sept. 18 (AP).—Ron Northey's pinch-homer with the bases loaded in the seventh inning proved the decisive blow today as the Chicago Cubs whipped Brooklyn's faltering Dodgers, 9-7, despite three home runs by Outfielder Tommy Brown.

Middlecoff Wins Playoff

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 18 (AP).—Cary Middlecoff of Ormond Beach, Fla., won the $15,000 St. Louis Open Golf Championship today in a "sudden death" playoff with Ed (Porky) Oliver of Seattle, Wash.

Middlecoff, winner of last year's national open, won the St. Louis title today on the second extra hole with an Eagle three. The victory pays $2600. Oliver gets $1900.

The two tied for low in the final round yesterday at 270, 10 under par.

Middlecoff forged ahead on No. 14 in the 18-hole playoff. But at No. 18, he and Oliver were deadlocked at 67, calling for extra holes. The 67 is three under par.

An eagle three on No. 20 was the payoff for Middlecoff.

Sedgman Beats Ted Schroeder

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 18 (AP).—Australian Champion Frank Sedgman defeated American Star Ted Schroeder in the finals of the twenty-fourth annual Pacific southwest Tennis Tournament today, 9—6, 6—3, 6—2.

Schroeder went into the match with a right knee still sore from an accident in his semi-final match Saturday against United States National Champion Art Larsen. He plunged into a sideline judge's stand in playing a ball. He kept the knee in ice packs most of yesterday, when the finals were postponed by rain. He offered no alibis but the knee gave way apparently late in the second set and he wound up in the third limping around the court.

Eagles' Clyde Scott Breaks Shoulder

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18 (AP).—Clyde "Smackover" Scott, speedy halfback of the Philadelphia Eagles suffered a broken shoulder in the game Saturday night against the Cleveland Browns and may be lost to the Eagles for the rest of the 1950 season.

Scott was hit hard in the second quarter of the Browns 35-10 victory and at the time the injury was diagnosed as a shoulder separation.

Phils Will Sell Single Game Tickets for World Series

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies announced today they will honor applications for World Series tickets postmarked after midnight (EST) Wednesday, September 20.

President Bob Carpenter said the Phils will sell tickets to single games and that the ducats won't be handled in a three or four-game block as other clubs have done in the past.

Carpenter said applications must be accompanied by certified checks or money orders with the name and address of the applicant written in the upper left hand corner of the ticket request. Applications should be sent to the Philadelphia National League Club, Box 6925, Philadephia 32, Pa.

Box seats will be sold for $8.75 each, reserve seats for $6.50. Bleacher seat tickets of $1 each will be sold at the ball park.

If the Phils win the National League pennant and there is no playoff necessary in the American League, the series will open at Shibe Park October 4.

The Phils' announcement made it clear that each fan will be permitted to buy a maximum of two tickets. Requests for more than two tickets will not be honored.

No fan can ask for tickets to any specific game. The Phils' management will dole out tickets on a first come, first served basis—filling up Shibe Park's seats for the first game, then the second, then the sixth and finally the seventh. No fan can request one ticket for one game, a second ducat for another game.

Bill Bennings

At Marlboro.

DEAR FOLKS:

Hy and Miss Prime will stage their third meeting in as many weeks on the Tuesday program. Each has a decision, Hy winning in track record time at Timonium on a fast track and Miss Prime taking the verdict here in sloppy going. Five others are in the test dubbed the Solomons Island Purse. Looks as if I picked a winner in Apprentice Doyle Gardner. He is leading the local riders, and clicked off four winners last Saturday. I understand Bernie Moose may tackle Hill Prince at New York on Wednesday, which is quite an assignment for the horse foaled and raised at Charles Town. After seeing this track at the flood stage last week it just didn't seem according to Hoyle when the sprinkler was kept busy before the Monday show. See you on the rail.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 18.—Virginia appears to have a better team than last year, but it must hustle in order to have as good a record.

There are two good reasons:

1. Virginia's opponents have also improved;

2. Virginia meets strong Pennsylvania in its second game, instead of the seventh game, as it did last year.

Gene Schroeder

Always outweighed and almost always outmanned, the Cavaliers usually come out of the Penn game battered and weakened for the rest of the schedule.

Last year was a good example. Big Johnny Papis ran the Cavaliers to victories in their first six games. In their seventh, they upset Penn, 26-14, but were beaten by Tulane and North Carolina in their last two.

Of comfort, however, to Coach Art Guepe, and to Papet, too, is the fact that Virginia has one of its best lines in many seasons. The lack of a good forward wall has been a major reason why Virginia has failed to gain rank among the Nation's top 10 teams.

Guepe is moving many of his good defensive linemen of last year to offense, and has enough veterans and big sophomores left to insure him a good defense.

TO IMPROVE his pass defense, another weakness in the past, Guepe is moving End Gene Schroeder to safety.

Shroeder, a 200-pound Anacostia High product from Washington, D. C., is perhaps the fastest football player in the area. He has been a Cavalier pass-catching star for three seasons. He runs 100 yards in 9.7 seconds.

He's such a good judge of a high pass that Guepe figures he may be more valuable on pass defense. In a scrimmage against Duke the other day, Schroeder made Guepe look good by intercepting two Billy Cox passes, returning one for a touchdown.

It's Papit, however, who is still the big wheel for Virginia. The 195-pound senior from Philadelphia scored nine touchdowns last year, and ranked second in the Nation in ground gained, with 214 yards. He hits hard inside the tackles, and he can ramble in the open field.

Also returning to the backfield is Halfback Steve Osisek of Phoenixville, Pa., one of the most underrated players in the area. He caught more passes than any other Cavalier, including the ends, with 11 interceptions and four touchdowns.

He also runs, and often takes a wide pitchout from the quarterback to uncork a good pass of his own.

JIMMY LESANE, 160-pound southpaw, from Raleigh, N. C., has taken over the quarterbacking chores. Lesane, a good passer, should be over his stage fright by now. He started off with a burst in last year's opener against George Washington, completing his first varsity pass for a touchdown. But he couldn't keep it up.

Lesane came to Virginia a couple of years ago after quitting The Citadel because he wanted to play in the T formation. Backing up Lesane will be Charlie Harding, a 175-pound soph from Fredericksburg, Va., and Rufe Barkley, 170, who used to play halfback at Episcopal High in Alexandria.

Tata was the hotshot of last year's frosh. He scored eight touchdowns, three of them against Richmond, 45, 47 and 28 yards

A couple of Washington area backs will also play a lot, Jimmy Ashwell, 170-pound junior from Herndon, Va., and Billy Sinclair, 180, senior from George Washington High of Alexandria.

At ends for the Cavaliers will be Bob Weir, cocaptian with Papit, Tom Scott, 210 soph from Baltimore; Schroeder and Ed Bessell, 180, senior from Hillsdale, N. J.

WEIR, A POLISHED offensive and defensive player, was all-scholastic at South Orange, N. J.'s Columbia High in 1942. Next year he earned a varsity letter at Princeton. After four years in the Army, he came to Virginia, and has been a fixture ever since.

Gupe has four seasoned kingsized tackles to lean on. They are Bob Miller, 230, from Norwalk, Conn.; Dick Johnson, 230, from G. W. High, Alexandria; Charlie Mott, 200, from Huntington, W. Va., and Boris Goldberg, 200, from Passaic, N. J.

Against them, Virginia's opponents averaged less than 90 yards per game on the ground last season.

Experienced hands at guard are Joe Palumbo, 200 pounds, from Beaver, Pa.; Harry Nesbit, 180, from Lynchburg, Va., and Lew Hudson, 190, from Fredericksburg, Va.

Owen Meadows, 195 pounds, from Hinton, W. Va., and Joe Myers, 188, from Harrisonburg, Va., are back to share centering duties.

The Cavaliers open their season Saturday against G. W. Then they tackle Penn, Virginia Teach, Washington and Lee, V. M. I., West Virginia, Citadel, William and Mary, Tulane and North Carolina.

Favored Ballinakill Wins at Marlboro by 1½ Lengths

Heaven Hill Noses Simite For 2d Spot

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

MARLBORO, Sept. 18.—Saving ground throughout and always in command, E. R. Myers' Ballinakill proved worthy of favoritism today. The roan 5-year-old came into the finish line a length and a half in advance of a nose tangle for second money with the camera giving the place to Mrs. C. M. Greer's Heaven Hill over H. L. Townsley's Simite.

Ballinakill, acquired by his present owner through the claiming box at Pimlico last spring, was strongly backed by the crowd of 5000 and returned a $4.60 win mutuel. Running over a fast track and under smiling skies, the Halcyon gelding was clocked in 1:08 3/5 for the 5½ furlongs. Jimmy Baird was aboard.

The day's tightest finish for the win money came in the fourth race when G. L. Stryker's Anagazandra and G. C. Smith's Karen S staged a merry battle with first one and then the other in front.

On the wire the camera said Anagazandra, with Mike Sorrentino up, was the winner. The distant third in the field of eight was H. Meyers' Four West. The winner paid $6.40 and was clocked in 1:10 for the 5½ furlongs.

Sorrentino also had a hand in producing a $73.20 daily double on the 7-and-3 combination. He rode F. J. Wilson's Phantom Jinks home in the second race at a $10.80 mutuel.

The third winner came for Sorrentino in the seventh race. He booted Daniel Pearce's Salient home at $6 mutuel.

an incredible windup with runners on first and third and Williams romped to second on the first pitch to Stephens unmolested and ruining double-play possibilities for the Tigers.

Manager Red Rolfe reacted by jerking Newhouser and giving the pitching duties over to Hal White, who now intentionally walked Stephens. That put it up to Dropo and he singled in short center to get Goodman home with the tying run. Williams, cautiously held up at third base.

Bobby Doerr then provided the winning blow, a fly into right center that Groth took out of throwing position. He recovered quickly, but Williams slid in from third after the catch and that won the game.

Young Nixon had to pitch himself out of a mess in the Tigers' first inning, but eventually got 'em out with the bases full. Lipon led off with a single to right and only Zarilla's bustling catch in rightfield took a hit away from Priddy.

Bosox Lead, 1-0

And then they gave him a quick 1-0 lead in the second inning. Walt Dropo led off with a double against the right center wall and romped home on Bobby Doerr's single that was out of Lipon's reach.

That lead stood up no longer than the Tigers' third when the Sox gave 'em a gift run. Priddy, the Tigers' batting terror of last week, doubled to left with one out, but Dom DiMaggio grabbed Kell's well-stung drive for the second out. On a wild pitch into the dirt Priddy dashed into third and was in scoring position when Goodman fumbled Wertz' ground smash. He scored.

And then, in the eighth, with Newhouser looking unbeatable, the Tigers presented him with a 2-1 lead. Kell led off with a single to left and was sacrificed to second by Wertz. Evers grounded out to Doerr, but young Johnny Groth evoked the cheers of the multitude with a burning single to right that got Kell home.

Unfortunately for Detroit in the Boston ninth, Newhouser needed more than a one-run lead.

Jim Thackara Meets Coss

Top-seeded Jim Thackara faces elimination in his fourth round match with 16-year-old Tim Coss today in a resumption of their darkness-delayed match in the men's singles of the North Virginia Open tennis tournament.

After Thackara won the first set, 6—3, Coss snapped back to take the second, 6—4, and was leading, 3—1 when darkness set in. The pair will play a one-match playoff. Yesterday's results and today's pairings:

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Just sharpen your pencil—and there you are!

ACROSS this broad land there are thousands of people who have been doing themselves a disfavor.

Seems they "just naturally assume" a Buick is beyond their reach—and so pass up the car they're really itching to own.

Now why "assume" anything as important to your happiness as a new car?

Why not see for yourself how delivered prices run—how close Buick matches your own budget—how frequently it is priced under some cars you may be considering?

Then—if there is a particular car in mind—sharpen up your pencil a little.

Is it a six—or an eight, like Buick?

If an eight, is it a valve-in-head eight? That adds a plus in efficiency, you know, even without the extra edge of Buick's Fireball power.

Will you ride on four soft coil springs, as in Buick—or on only two? Will the drive be through a sealed torque-tube that keeps the rear wheel assembly firmly aligned? It is in a Buick.

Do you get soft, low-pressure tires as part of the price—or as extras? Will you have bumper guards built as part of the bumper, or a one-piece cast-metal grille that can be costly to repair or replace?

Does the price include air cleaner; oil filter; dual horns, windshield wipers and sun visors; an automatic dome light; self-locking luggage lid; a single key for all locks?

And is there an automatic drive*, or one in which gears still shift in normal driving?

Yes, sharpen your pencil—and there you will be, in a Buick.

Whether it's a SPECIAL, a SUPER or a lordly ROADMASTER, you'll be driving the big buy of its price class, and getting a rich bonus of driving comfort, driving thrill and "fashion-first" styling.

But you have to make the first move. You are the one who has to find out. How about starting now—with a call on your Buick dealer?

*Dynaflow Drive is standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Rep. Whitten Explains Reasons Behind His Federal Job Rider

The man who wrote the controversial personnel rider, Representative Jamie L. Whitten (D., Miss.) yesterday gave an explanation of his action which is rapidly becoming the No. 1 subject of conversation in Federal offices. He said, among other things:

That the effect of his amendment is to direct the Civil Service Commission to do what it has the authority to do and should have done shortly after the fighting started in Korea. He believes it will accomplish these objectives:

1. Prevent employes from being given three and four grade raises to take defense jobs; (2) hold in check salaries paid civilians by the defense agencies; (3) protect the chances for grade promotion of the employe who leaves his job to enter the military service, and (4) save an estimated half billion dollars annually in salaries.

What inspired Whitten to push his amendment which has been adopted by the Senate-House conferees on the 17-billion-dollar supplemental budget bill, and which appears certain to be enacted into law?

The youthful Mississippi legislator, a key member of the House Appropriations Committee, said he had made a survey which showed that the average Federal job had jumped nearly two full grades during World War II at an annual increased cost of about a billion dollars, in addition to the several pay boosts voted by Congress, which he said averaged about $800 each. Primarily, he said, his rider is aimed at stopping war-inflated salaries in Government.

Whitten said his rider would place grade promotions only on a temporary basis. He said he had no desire or intention of restricting in-grade and automatic promotions. All Federal jobs, he pointed out, are covered by the amendment—postal, classified, per diem, etc.

The legislator explained that it would be possible to make some permanent appointments and transfers under his plan. First, he said his rider was intended to "freeze" the number of permanent appointees in Government at the present level. But when a permanent employe dies or retires, for example, Whitten said Civil Service would have the authority to make permanent appointments and promotions to those jobs.

Whitten also believes that his rider will ease the way for able, regular employes to transfer to defense jobs because their old jobs could not be filled permanently and would be held open for them. He was critical of the present practice of making permanent appointments to jobs vacated by boys who were drafted.

And finally, Whitten explained, his rider permits the Civil Service Commission to post-audit all grade promotions made after the war. At that time, he said, the commission can handle them in a regular manner; approve merited promotions, and cut back others.

The House will take up the conference report containing the rider tomorrow. Because of the keen interest in the amendment, it's quoted in full as follows:

"In making appointments in the Government service the Civil Service Commission shall make full use of its authority to make temporary appointments in order to prevent increases in the number of permanent personnel and no employe in the Federal civil service promoted, transferred or appointed to a position of higher grade shall be eligible, in the event of separation from the service through reduction in force, to reinstatement at a grade above the grade held by such employe on September 1, 1950; and all reinstatements, transfers or promotions to positions in the Federal civil service shall be temporary and for positions subject to the Classification Act of 1949 shall be made with the condition and notice to the individual reinstated, transferred or promoted that the classification grade of the position is subject to post-audit and correction by the appropriate department or agency personnel office or the Civil Service Commission."

Man Accused Of Slaying Indicted on Yoke Charge

Lee Edwards, 20, Held in Stambaugh Death, Linked to Golf Course Robbery

Lee Edwards, 20, already charged with the September 3 slaying of Donald J. Stambaugh, was indicted by the grand jury on charges of yoke robbery on May 23.

Edwards was accused of yoking Joseph A. Carden, 2733 Connecticut ave. on the Rock Creek Park golf course and taking money and property worth $79.

Edwards' cousin, Leonard F. Humphries, jr., 22, of 309 Shields st., Richmond, Va., was indicted for the same offense.

Donald J. Stambaugh, 21-year-old Navy Department research engineer gave police a whispered description just before he died of the man who beat and shot him, and Edwards was arrested later in the day.

Edwards, a magazine salesman who lives at 4911 14th st. nw., is in Rockville jail, awaiting a hearing today.

The grand jury returned 29 indictments.

Jack Litton, 28, 1003 23d st. nw., was indicted on charges of robbing a Fort Belvoir, Va., soldier who had befriended him. Litton was accused of taking $415 from Corpl. Charles H. Johnson on August 26. Police said Litton had asked Johnson for a quarter for himself and his pregnant wife, both of whom were hungry, he said.

James C. Rogers, 25, 848 21st st. ne., was indicted on three counts of housebreaking and larceny from the District Government. Police said he stole two typewriters and an adding machine on three separate occasions from the Langston branch Public Library, 701 24th st. ne.

Paul E. Myers, 48, 48 G st. nw., was indicted on numbers charges, after police said he sold numbers tickets on five days in August to a police undercover man.

Fireman Victim

Suspect Held For Jury in Fatal Cutting

A coroner's jury yesterday held James M. Thompson, 21, on a murder charge for action of the grand jury in connection with the fatal stabbing of a District fireman, Pvt. Clarence Toye, 25.

Police said Toye, who was attached to No. 10 truck company and lived at 1527 B st. se., was stabbed last Friday as the result of an argument over money with another man during a crap game in the 1500 block of E. Capitol st.

Toye staggered from the alley where the dice game took place, hailed a passing motorist, Bernard Hawkins, 32, of 924 1st st. nw., but was dead of a knife wound in the heart when Hawkins got him to Gallinger Hospital.

Police said Thompson, who lives at 494 Clark ct. sw., came to headquarters Sunday, accompanied by an attorney, and surrendered after stating he had learned he was sought in connection with the stabbing.

On advice of his attorney, according to police, Thompson refused to make a written statement to the homicide squad but orally admitted he had been in the dice game and had quarreled with Toye.

This oral admission was confirmed before the coroner's jury at the inquest by Detective Sergt. Bernard Crooke of the homicide squad.

Public Buildings Personnel Stage Garden and Hobby Show

537 Exhibitors Show Cabbages, Roses, Bread And Fancy Fruitcakes

The annual garden and hobby show of the Public Buildings Service opened in the Departmental Auditorium yesterday, proving, for the fifth year, that PBS people have some wonderful hobbies.

Statistics on the show include the facts that 537 exhibitors have entered samples of their pastimes, some 100 awards were made, and well over a thousand items are on display.

The exhibitions include garden entries from cabbages to roses, bakery items from home-made bread to fancy fruitcakes.

The eyecatchers range from examples of the crocheting art to a collection of shark's teeth.

In between are collections of menus, a drumstick from the Civil War, medals, parquetry card tables, paintings, sculptures and photographs, and displays of antiques.

The show is sponsored by the Recreation Council of the Welfare Association of PBS.

It closes today at the auditorium, Constitution ave. between 12th and 14th sts. nw.

Hours are from 1 to 9 p. m.

Laborer Jailed On Woman's Assault Charge

Struck on Head With Iron Pipe, Employer Reports

An Alexandria laborer was jailed yesterday by Fairfax County police on the complaint of his employer that he assaulted her with an iron pipe.

Clarence Reynolds, 31, of 1331 Powhatan st. was booked on a charge of felonious assault, alleged in a warrant sworn out by Miss Nellie Grissom, 50, of the same address. Miss Grissom is the proprietor of a tourist court in which Reynolds lives.

She told police she had engaged Reynolds to help her on a project near Groveton in Fairfax County, where she is building two houses. Reynolds struck her over the head with a section of pipe after he had asked her to step into a tool shed to get a shovel, the woman told police. She could offer no motive for the attack, police said.

Reynolds was lodged in the Fairfax Jail in lieu of $2000 bond pending a hearing in Trial Justice Court.

$10 Low Price At Unclaimed Auto Auction

Used automobiles sold as cheaply as $10 yesterday at a dispersal sale of unclaimed cars taken off the city streets by police.

In 55 minutes, in a sale at the police property yard, 6th st. and School ave. sw., 48 cars and a rowboat were auctioned. Most of the buyers were junk dealers.

A 1941 Buick brought the highest bid—$200, but one car went as cheaply as $10. A rowboat sold for $6.

Under police regulations, the cars must be held for three months before being sold. Proceeds of the auction go to the Police and Firemen's Relief Fund.

Maryland U. Greets New Students Today

New students at the University of Maryland today will begin a 6-day orientation program before classes begin next Monday.

During the period, they'll get psychological tests and physical examinations. They will be guided through course registrations and get personal interviews.

President H. C. Byrd will greet new students today and tonight the students can join in a community sing, a concert and a dance. Thursday's program includes parties by the dean of men and the dean of women. On Saturday new students will watch their freshmen play the William and Mary frosh at 2 p.m.

20 Indicted, 2 for Murder, By Grand Jurors in Fairfax

The Fairfax County grand jury yesterday handed down 20 indictments, including two charging murder and one alleging rape.

Talmadge Blevins, 20-year-old insurance salesman of Route 3, Fairfax, entered a plea of guilty in the rape case. His case was referred to a probation officer for investigation.

Blevins was accused of attacking a 13-year-old Burke, Va., girl in his parked automobile the night of June 13. The attack occurred, police said, after he had taken the girl to a movie near Fairfax.

The child was visiting friends the night of the alleged attack and reported it to her parents on her return home the following day, police said.

Named as defendant in the murder indictments were Edward William Smith, 36, a laborer of Route 2, Herndon, Va., and Eugene Crumpton, 38, a cook whose home is in Chicago. Both pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Smith was acused of fatally shooting William Honesty, no address listed, with a shotgun during an altercation at the Smith home July 22. Crumpton was charged with the murder of James Harris of 1731 S. 12th st., Arlington, whose body was found July 23 on a deserted road just outside Falls Church.

The grand jury refused to indict Carlton Lee Murphy, 22, of 507 S. Henry st., and Thomas M. Lowrey, 21, of R.F.D. 1, both Alexandria, who were accused of raping a 20-year-old Washington woman in a parked car near Groveton, Va., July 13. The men have contended that the girl accompanied them willingly.

Other indictments handed down yesterday involved charges ranging from housebreaking to forgery.

By Citizen Group

Caution Asked In Teachers College Issue

The Fort Davis Citizens' Association last night adopted a resolution aimed at preventing "hasty action" by the Federation of Citizens' Association on the proposal to merge the District's white and Negro teachers colleges.

The group, meeting at Ryland Methodist Church, voted to ask the federation to have its education committee study conditions at the colleges and "make such recommendations as will increase the efficiency of the colleges and raise their standards."

The merger proposal was recently put forth by Dr. Walter E. Hager, president of the white Wilson Teachers' College.

Petitions Circulated

Since then, John H. Connaughton, former president of the federation, has admitted some citizens have been circulating petitions demanding Dr. Hager's ouster.

The study proposed last night would cover relationships between the colleges and the public school system and would try to find the reasons behind Dr. Hager's recommendation. The resolution was submitted by Mrs. Edward B. Morris, president of the Fort Davis Association.

Fifty-nine new members were taken into the association at the meeting. During the membership campaign, Mrs. Morris reported, individual solicitation brought in more than $85 for the fight against a gas rate increase.

Advisory Council Indorsed

The group indorsed the federation's recent request to the District Commissioners to establish a Citizens' Advisory Council.

In other resolutions the association asked for street lights on Pennsylvania ave. east of Minnesota ave se., a new rough concrete surface and white line for Pennsylvania ave. between Branch and Minnesota aves., and lane lines on Sousa Bridge.

Chillum Heights Traffic Situation Discussed

Community traffic problems occupied the Chillum Heights Citizens' Association last night in the Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church.

The 21 members present asked for a survey to determine whether traffic lights are justified in the area around 2d and 3d sts., Kennedy st., and Kansas ave. nw.; asked traffic officials to expedite installation of traffic lights at Kennedy and New Hampshire ave., and asked Sixth Precinct police to stop illegal parking on Kennedy between New Hampshire and 2d. st.

The group also approved its executive committee's action in donating $15 to the court fight against a gas rate increase.

Lincoln Park Opposes Teachers College Change

The Lincoln Park Citizens Association at its first fall meeting last night unanimously opposed any change in the status of Wilson Teachers College.

The association also voted to send a letter to Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, expressing willingness to assist in the District's civil defense program. The meeting was held in the Epworth Methodist Church, 13th st. and North Carolina ave. ned.

Edmond Reelected At Marshall Heights

The Marshall Heights Civic Association last night reelected Everett L. Edmond president for the third straight year. Edmond, an attorney, lives at 708 9th st. ne.

Also reelected were Frank Harley, vice president; Mrs. Beatrice Williams, secretary, and Mrs. Patsy L. Allen, treasurer. Meeting at the First National Baptist Church, the group requested a stop sign at 49th and B sts. se.

$34 Million Sought For D. C. Schools

Proposed Budget Seen as Means to End Overcrowding, Part-Time Teaching

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

In an effort to end the twin school evils of overcrowding classes and part-time instruction, the District Board of Education yesterday asked for $34,410,500 to run the schools in the fiscal year beginning next July.

If approved by the Commissioners and Congress, the budget would give the schools nearly six million more than the current budget of $28,576,747.

Most of the increase would go for additional teachers and new schools for the Negro divisions. Mounting enrollment in Negro schools have resulted in a shortage of facilities and large classes.

Enrollment figures released yesterday show 46,318 Negro students and 46,084 white students. In the past year the number of Negro students increased by 1896 while the white schools lost 1855 students.

More Teachers Sought

The budget seeks 22 new senior high teachers, 39 junior high, 35 elementary and eight kindergarten teachers, all for the Negro schools.

The school board requested $9,442,400 for new school buildings, repairs to present schools and the purchase of 11 school and playground sites. The sum is nearly double the $5,042,500 in the current budget.

Of the $6,913,000 earmarked for new school construction, $2,048,200 would go for white schools and $4,864,800 for Negro schools.

Site money totaling $1,295,000 would be split $120,000 white and $1,175,000 Negro.

Major project for the white schools is a $400,000 request for a flood lighted stadium at Coolidge High School, 5th and Tuckerman sts. nw. The stadium with a seating capacity in excess of 10,000 would provide a center for inter-school games.

The budget included a request for $60,000 to prepare plans for a school administration building at 13th and Upshur sts. nw., to replace the Franklin Building at 13th and K sts. nw.

Other Construction

The board also sought $300,000 to begin construction of a $575,000 school of 16 rooms at 9th and Barnaby sts. se., and $250,000 to begin construction of an eight-room addition to cost $500,000 at the Randle Highlands School, 30th and R sts. se. The new facilities will provide relief in the Anacostia area where 1800 children are now on half-day schedules.

In the Negro division the school board asked for $500,000 to begin construction of a $4,100,000 replacement for Armstrong Technical High school. The present building, 1st and O sts. nw., is "inadequate" and a "potential fire hazard," the board said.

The major construction request for Negro schools was for $1,300,000 to continue construction on the new Douglas Junior High School, Pomeroy rd. and Douglas pl. se. The board also asked for $817,700 to supplement funds already appropriated for a replacement for Terrell Junior High School, 1st and Pierce sts. nw.

More Classrooms

More elementary classrooms would be provided for Negroes by eight-room additions at Payne, 15th and C sts. se., and Syphax, N and Half sts. sw., and nine-room additions at Richardson, 53rd and Blaine sts. ne., and Turner, Alabama ave. and Stanton rd. se.

An additional request was for $300,000 to eliminate fire hazards in old elementary schools in both divisions.

Sites for Negro schools were requested for an eight-room addition at Bruce, Kenyon st. and Sherman ave. nw.; replacement at Burville, Division ave. and Hayes st. ne.; replacement for the Merritt Elementary School at 49th and Hayes sts. ne.; new junior high school, 49th st. and Sheriff rd. ne.; 16-room elementary school, Gainesville st. and Elvans rd. se.; playground at Mott, 4th and W sts. nw.; playground at Turner, Alabama ave. and Stanton rd. se.; 24-room replacement for the Stevens, 21st and L sts. nw.

Bruce Baird Heads Christmas Seal Sale Campaign

Bruce Baird, president of the National Savings & Trust Co., has accepted the chairmanship of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association's 1950 Christmas Seal campaign.

In accepting, Baird, who lives at 4400 Edmunds st. nw., appealed "to every citizen to support this constructive effort to eradicate a scourge touching in one way or another the lives of each of us."

He noted that 94 percent of the funds raised through the seal sale will be used in tuberculosis prevention and control in this area.

Rufus H. Lane Shifted

Foreign service transfers announced yesterday by the State Department included Rufus H. Lane, jr., Falls Church, Va., from Madrid to Paris as first secretary.

Milkman Arrives as Stove Explodes; He Saves House

Jesse Boyd Suffers Slight Hand Burns In Fighting Blaze

The alertness of a milkman-turned-fireman was credited yesterday with saving a nine-room dwelling from destruction by fire and its occupants from possible injury.

Jesse Boyd, 23, a driver for Thompson's Dairy, arrived at the back door of the home of Mrs. Maude Adams on Beulah rd., near Vienna, just as a kerosene stove in the kitchen exploded.

Seeing no one in the room, Boyd rushed into the kitchen, partially subdued the flames with his hands, and dragged the blazing stove out into the yard.

The doorway to the kitchen also caught fire as Boyd reached the back porch, so he extinguished that blaze, too.

Boyd, who lives at 131 Carroll ave. in Takoma Park, Md., attempted to minimize the incident. "It was nothing," he said, and insisted that burns to both hands, which required treatment at Arlington Hospital, were "minor."

Vienna firemen, who arrived in response to a call only to find the fire already out, took Boyd to the hospital. A substitute driver took over his milk route.

Revision Needed

Wiretapping Legislation Postponed

Senators Neely (D., W. Va.) and Darby (R., Kan.) will not seek Senate action on their bill to outlaw wire-tapping, except in special cases, until after the November elections.

Chairman Neely indicated last week he might attempt to push the measure through his Senate District Committee before Congress recesses.

But yesterday both legislators told reporters they wanted to revise the bill slightly after conferences with District and Federal agencies. This will take possibly two months, they said.

The measure permits local policemen and Federal law enforcement officers to tap wires while tracking down a criminal or a subversive, and then only after receiving a warrant from a District Court judge.

School Aid Bill Given Senate's Final Approval

The Senate late yesterday gave final approval to compromise legislation to grant Federal funds for operation and maintenance of schools in districts where enrollment has been swollen by the influx of Government workers.

The measure, in conference report form, went to the House where it is expected to receive speedy action and go to the White House.

Senate Confirms Cohen As Alternate at U. N.

The Senate yesterday confirmed the appointment of Benjamin V. Cohen of New York City, to be an alternate United States representative at the United Nations General Assembly after Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), withdrew an objection.

Hickenlooper objected to the nomination last Friday. He told the Senate yesterday he had received information, since found to be "not accurate," that Cohen had made a statement regarding a "certain policy—something of a personal nature." The senator did not elaborate.

Action Delayed On E. B. Smith Judgeship

Senate's Consideration Of Lawyer's Nomination Balked by Johnston

On request of Senator Olin Johnston (D., S. C.), the Senate yesterday postponed action on the nomination of Emory B. Smith, 63-year-old Negro lawyer, to be a Municipal Court judge.

The objection was voiced by Senator Ernest W. McFarland (D., Ariz.) during consideration of other presidential nominations.

McFarland explained he has no personal objection to Smith but was asked to forestall the vote until Johnston returns to the city.

Johnston, who unsuccessfully sponsored a Justice Department attorney for judgeship, is expected at the Capitol today.

Construction Worker Falls To His Death

A 41-year-old steel worker plunged to his death yesterday from a construction job at 1608 K st. nw.

The man was identified by police as William S. Frizzell, 41, of 6353 Waneta rd. nw. The fatality occurred shortly after 2:30 p. m., apparently while he was trying to jump to the building from a scafford on which he had been working, police said.

He was pronounced dead on the scene at 2:41 p. m. by Dr. Stanley Chernish, of the health department.

Police said no one witnessed the plunge, whcih occurred from either the fourth or fifth floor. Frizzell landed in an alley beside the building, which is to be the new headquarters of the American Legion.

The coroner withheld a death certificate pending an autopsy today.

Four Faculty Members Added at Georgetown

Four new members will be added to the faculty of Georgetown University Graduate School, the Rev. Gerard F. Yates, dean, has announced.

Prof. Karl Carny will conduct a course in government of the British Isles. The Rev. Ismael Quiles will instruct in the philosophy of religion and twentieth century philosophy. The Rev. T. L. Hertling will give courses in the history of early Christianity and problems in the history of the early Middle Ages. Dr. Harold C. Hinton will present the history of modern China and the Far East in modern times.

Traffic Unit Will Extend Light Study At 14th St.

Preliminary Survey By Keneipp Said to Show Beacon Not at Fault for Rush Jams

The District Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board last night expressed "confidence" in Traffic Director George Keneipp's handling of the controversial 14th and D sts. sw. traffic light.

The board also recommended in a unanimous resolution that further study be made by the director of traffic and the appropriate committee (the Committee on Engineering and Accident Records, headed by E. Goring Bliss) and a report be given the board at its next meeting.

Keneipp, who had been attending the eighteenth annual conference of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators in Portland, Ore., yesterday spent his first day in town in two weeks studying the light's effect on traffic.

Light Not To Blame

His first day's opinion was that the light is not to blame for the traffic congestion leading to and from the Highway Bridge. Further studies will be made, though, before a definite decision is reached.

Keneipp said he made one morning rush-hour northbound trip from the new bridge to D st. in 2.51 minutes. A second trip took three minutes. With clear sailing it would take 2.37 minutes to travel the 1.2 miles from the bridge to D st. at the legal speed of 30 miles an hour

With the volume of traffic going through 14th st.—4200 cars in an hour—Keneipp said he didn't think the delay significant. What congestion there was on 14th st. was caused further up, where cars were waiting to turn left into the Mall rd.

Afternoon rush-hour was another story, though. Keneipp said the traffic snarl was caused, not by the light, but by two other factors—cars waiting to turn left into D st., and a bus stand just opposite. When a bus stopped to pick up passengers there was insufficient space for cars to move through, Keneipp said.

Keneipp, who told the board last night that he did not think there was any necessity for removing the $3800 light, said the question of the bus stops would be taken up with the Public Utilities Commission.

Favors Radar Check

Reporting on the Portland meeting, Keneipp said the association went on record as favoring check of speeders by radar and acceptance of the finding by courts, because pacing of speeders by police is "extremely dangerous."

Inspector William J. Cunningham, head of the police traffic division, reported that in the period from January 1 through August 31, there had been 8949 traffic accidents, or 732 more than in the like period in 1949.

Keneipp said there had been a 11.2 percent increase in the volume of traffic during the month of July over July 1949 "so that may be a bright spot in Inspector Cunningham's report."

More Parking Space

At the close of his report the inspector said that parking space for about 100 additional cars could be found on Pennsylvania ave. between 15th st nw. and the Peace monument if curb parking by street car loading platforms on the wide avenue were permitted.

The objection to this plan, it was suggested, would be the hazard of people running from between the parked automobiles to catch a streetcar, despite the fact that legally the platforms should be approached only from the crosswalks.

Buyer Enjoys $5000 Laugh On Seller of Valuable Rifle

There are few men who can say, "I didn't know the gun was loaded," and chuckle about it. D. J. Harrill of Falls Church can and does.

He chuckles most when he says it to Frederick G. Renner, a colleague at the Department of Agriculture, who sold it to him a few months ago for less than $100.

The Washington Post
D. J. HARRILL
. . . "Perfect shootin' iron"

The gun is an 1876 Winchester. One in every couple of thousand rifles Winchester made in those days was a "perfect shootin' iron." They called them "One of One Thousand."

Harrill's gun is one of the 130 "perfect" ones turned out. It killed two sheriffs in Wyoming. When the trigger man, Teton Jackson was strung up, the rifle went up for auction.

A sheep rancher bought it, found it too heavy as a saddle gun, traded it to Dr. W. A. Allen of Billings, Mont.

Dr. Allen kept it 40 years. In 1942, just before selling it to Renner, Dr. Allen wrote a history of the gun, all about Teton Jackson, the sheriff-killer.

Recently, Harrill, who is chief auditor of the Production and Marketing Administration, and lives at 3237 North Rockingham dr., asked the Winchester people to check on this history. It was accurate.

Harrill found there are only about 23 that can be located and that some owners ask $5000 for a One of One Thousand.

3 New Polio Cases in D. C. And Nearby

Three new polio cases were reported in Washington and nearby Maryland yesterday to swell the year's total to 283.

Two were District cases, making the city total 120 thus far. One was an 11-year-old boy from the 5200 block of Loughboro rd. nw., admitted to Children's Hospital Saturday. The second District case, a 12-year-old girl from the 5900 block of 2d pl. nw. was admitted to Children's last Wednesday.

The third case, reported by the Prince Georges County Health Department, is a 4-year-old girl of Stewart Manor, Laurel, Md., admitted to Sydenham Hospital, Baltimore, Md., on Saturday.

27 New Polio Cases Send Va. Total to 736

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 18 (AP).—Twenty-seven new cases of polio were reported in Virginia today to bring to 736 the total for what will undoubtedly be the Old Dominion's worst polio year on record.

Today's report covered cases discovered yesterday and today, according to Dr. A. S. McCown, director of communicable disease control for the State Health Department.

The new total for the year brought the State's toll close to the 756 cases reported in 1944, the worst previous polio year. At the same time in 1944, however, only 542 cases had been listed.

The need for closer relations between the home and school was stressed at the fourteenth annual Parent-Teacher Institute which opened yesterday at Lisner Auditorium.

More than 180 Washington area delegates are attending the two-day conference, sponsored by George Washington University and the District of Columbia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Mrs. A. J. Nicely, vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, said: "Parents should realize the child must start his training and education in the home."

"The parent is also a teacher," she continued, "and the education job cannot be done by the school alone. A closer relationship between the parent and teacher is necessary so they may both cooperate intelligently in the training of the child."

Delegates were welcomed by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, and Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of District schools.

Presiding was Mrs. Leo Raywid, newly elected president of the local Congress. She was named last week to succeed Mrs. James Cox, who resigned because of illness.

Last night, a workshop demonstration was held on how students learn to read from the first grade to the adult levels. Miss Ann B. Dessez, teacher at the Truesdell School, demonstrated with a group of first grade pupils the latest methods of getting together on reading problems.

Later a panel, including Dr. Carl Hansen, Dr. Ruth Smith, Dr. Charles E. Bish and Maj. B. E. Prater, of the Air Corps, explained reading on other levels.

Dr. James Harold Fox, dean of education at GW, will address the session at 10 a. m. today on "Critical Problems in the Field of Education." After a series of group conferences, the institute will adjourn following a luncheon at the faculty club.

First Faster-Than-Sound Plane on Display

The Washington Post

PRIZE EXHIBIT—Paul E. Garber, curator of the National Air Museum, admires the XS-1, the world's first supersonic plane and latest addition to the museum's display. To move the plane in yesterday, steel girders and sheet metal had to be ripped from the museum to make a hole about 30 feet wide and building high. The XS-1, brought in from Andrews Field during the night, could not be dismantled either for the trip or to get it in the museum. Garber said the plane was an integral, complete mechanism, so completely equipped with "plumbing" and wiring connections it could not be torn apart and put together again

UCS Planning Parley Here Set Wednesday

United Community Services' first Fall Planning Conference will be held from 2 to 5 p. m. Wednesday in the General Services Administration Auditorium, F between 18th and 19th sts. nw.

Lee D. Butler, UCS president, said 200 acceptances already have been received. Invitations were sent to all members of the UCS General Assembly, board of trustees and section and department committees.

Agenda of the conference calls for analyses of each UCS section and department, with emphasis on plans for the year. Butler will be chairman of the conference.

Floor discussion will follow the reports, with Glenn E. Watts, president of Washington Division 36, Communication Workers of America (CIO) as discussion leader.

'Mike' Conner Dies; Ex-Mississippi Governor

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 18 (AP).—Martin Sennett (Mike) Conner, 59, Governor of Mississippi from 1932 to 1936, died late Saturday.

He was speaker of the State House of Representatives from 1916 until 1924.

After unsuccessful races for the United States Senate and another term as Governor, Mr. Conner retired from politics in 1940 to become commissioner of athletics in the Southeastern Conference.

Suspect Faces Court Friday On Rape Count

James S. Smith, 29-year-old Alexandria contractor, was released in $1500 bond in Alexandria yesterday pending a hearing Friday at 10 a. m. on a charge that he raped a 39-year-old Lynchburg, Va., woman early Sunday.

Smith was slated to have a preliminary hearing before Judge James R. Duncan yesterday but obtained a continuance to consult an attorney.

Smith, who lives at 607 North Columbus st., was arrested by Alexandria police, who shot him in the right shoulder as he attempted to flee the scene of the alleged attack about 4 a. m. Sunday in an alley off Wythe st., in Alexandria.

Police said the alleged rape victim found lying in the alley, told them she had met Smith a few hours earlier while waiting for a bus and had accompanied him on a ride in a taxicab. She said she did not remember what happened in the taxi, where she "blacked out," but "came to" lying in the alley.

Smith has denied the rape charge, insisting the woman accompanied him voluntarily.

Former Catholic U. Professor Dies

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 18 (AP).—Funeral services for Dr. Thomas F. O'Connor, widely known as an outstanding historian of the Roman Catholic church, will be held here Tuesday.

Dr. O'Connor died at St. Louis on Friday. He was professor in the graduate school of history at St. Louis University. A native of this city, he served for many years at Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

New Process May Cut Down X-Ray Danger

A new process for picturing man's internal structures with a safe minimum of exposure to X-rays has been devised by a University of Chicago physicist.

Advantage of the new process, it was explained, is that it will permit longer and better study of a patient without exposing him or his doctor to X-ray's lethal effects.

The new X-ray dosage required by the process, it was reported, may be harmless enough to permit surgeons to adjust broken bones under continued X-ray vision, a procedure considered too dangerous to the surgeon under present techniques.

It also was hailed as a future means of photo-fluorography of the stomach and lower intestines for routine examinations for cancer and other diseases.

The new X-raying means was reported by Robert J. Moon, assistant professor of physics of the University of Chicago's Institute of Radiobiology and Biophysics, and announced in the current issue of the university's Research Reports.

Basically, it was reported, the physicist combined electronic methods and a new principle of a fluorescent crystal to produce X-ray images on a fluorescent screen with clarity several hundred times that of present images with less than a hundredth of the present heavy concentration of X-rays.

Bolling Addresses Women

Washington women can contribute toward a Democratic victory at the polls by working for home rule and urging qualified residents to cast absentee ballots, Rep. Richard Bolling (D. Mo.) told a meeting of the Women's National Democratic Council at the Washington Club last night.

3000 Doctors To Meet Here October 2

Convention planning officials of the District of Columbia Medical Society met this week to discuss the society's three-day Scientific Assembly, beginning October 2 at the Hotel Statler.

About 3000 doctors and members of allied professions are expected to attend the twenty-first annual assembly, according to Dr. Joseph J. Wallace, chairman of the assembly's attendance committee, and Theodore Wiprud, executive secretary of the society.

10,000 Invitations

They based their estimate, they said, on past attendance and probable response to some 10,000 invitations sent to all licensed physicians of the District, Virginia and Maryland, and to physicians serving this area for Public Health Service, Veterans Administration and the armed forces.

Theme of the convention will be the mid-century stock-taking of medical progress, according to Dr. Leonard T. Peterson, acting general chairman. Dr. Peterson took over the chairmanship after the general chairman, Dr. Karl C. Corley, entered military service in the recent reactivation of the 382d Evacuation Hospital Unit.

Included in Program

The scientific program will include 23 reports on latest developments in medicine and surgery by some of the nation's outstanding authorities. These sessions will be augmented by scientific, public health, and technical exhibits.

A featured attraction will be presentation of colored television programs, beamed to the hotel meeting rooms daily directly from Gallinger Municipal Hospital. Scheduled are actual surgical operations, including mitral valvulotomy, a delicate surgical repair of damaged valves within the heart.

The assembly will be climaxed by the District Medical Society's annual banquet and presentation of certificates for meritorious services to medicine.

John Strieby, Retired Phone Employe, Dies

John Logan Strieby, 66, a retired telephone company emyloye, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital after a brief illness. He lived at 1474 Columbia rd. nw.

Born and educated in Washington, Mr. Strieby joined the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. in 1900 as a messenger and served in various supervisory capacities until his retirement in 1944.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Ninette S. Wells of Washington and three nephews.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3 p. m. at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

5425 Conn. Ave. Rents Increased 2.9 Percent

Rent increases of 2.9 percent on 94 apartments at 5425 Connecticut ave. nw. were approved yesterday by the Office of the Rent Administrator for the District.

New rents range from $42 for a two-room apartment that formerly rented for $40.80, to $87.75 for a four-room apartment that formerly rented for $85.35.

The H. J. Smithy Co., agents for the owner, had sought increases of 5 percent, basing the request on higher costs of operation and maintenance.

2 GIs Hurt In Virginia Car Crash

Two soldiers from Arlington Farms were injured, one critically, in a traffic accident early yesterday on U. S. Route 1, about a quarter of a mile south of the Highway Bridge.

Park Police said a car driven by Corpl. Richard J. Southwell, 24, traveling north, went off the highway, flattened a stop sign and then swerved into the path of a southbound moving van operated by Donald C. Kaiser, 27, of Baltimore.

Southwell and a companion, Sergt. Robert J. Krutz, 20, were taken to Arlington Hospital. Southwell was admitted, in critical condition, with a fractured skull and internal injuries. Krutz was released after treatment for a cut to his head. Kaiser was not hurt.

Park police said Southwell's car was completely demolished in the head-on crash and estimated damage to the moving van at $600.

The United Press reported from Vernon, Conn., that Joseph J. Diegelmann, 46, of 1846 C st. se., and his wife, Theresa, 49, were injured there yesterday when their automobile collided with a truck. The extent of their injuries was not reported.

Mother Beats Stork Despite Traffic Crash

An expectant mother from Hyattsville won her race against the stork despite a traffic crash involving the taxicab carrying her to George Washington University Hospital.

Three hours after the accident, Mrs. George M. Hall, 31, of 53 Chillum rd., Hyattsville, gave birth to a seven-pound daughter.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight at New Hampshire ave. and Gallatin st. nw. Police said the cab, driven by Ernest Smith, 59, of 906 Lanark way, Silver Spring, collided with an automobile operated by Herman Amos, 19, a jockey, of 5821 Colorado ave. nw.

Mrs. Hall, who apparently suffered no injury, was accompanied by her husband. He hurriedly hailed another cab and they continued on to the hospital where the baby was born at 4:11 a. m.

Smith was released after treatment at Casualty Hospital for shock.

Medical schools of the Nation must play a leading role in the development of civil defense planning and organization, future doctors were told here yesterday.

The schools' role in an atomic age was stressed by Dr. Dean F. Smiley, secretary of the Association of American Medical Colleges.

He spoke here yesterday at the opening assembly of the 127th session of the George Washington University School of Medicine, welcoming this year's class of 95 freshmen medical students.

"Whether or not the present localized war in Korea leads to World War III, the need for more physicians is obvious in view of the devastating effects of atomic bombing, guided missiles and biological warfare," Dr. Smiley declared.

The medical school's role in the national economy and in wartime emergency must be protected in three Federal ways, Dr. Smiley said. He listed them as:

1. Their staffs must not be depleted.
2. The flow of qualified entering students must not be interrupted.
3. Adequate financial support must be provided.

Emphasizing the need for better public understanding of the medical schools' problems, Dr. Smiley attacked many "public misconceptions."

These include, he said the too widespread belief that the medical profession seeks to limit the production of physicians.

Another "false belief," he said, is that medical schools can support themselves on student tuitions alone. Actually, he said, total tuitions last year provided only 22½ percent of the total budget of this country's medical schools.

"It is of interest that in at least one school consideration is being given to a plan of accepting only students who will sign notes repaying to the school the full costs of their education over a period of 12½ years beginning six years after the receipt of the degree," Dr. Smiley said.

J. J. Hurley, Ex-Baseball Player, Dies

Jeremiah J. Hurley, the man who caught Clark Griffith when the latter was "just a young kid getting started," died n Boston yesterday after a long illness. He was 87 years old.

It was in 1889, Griffith's second year in baseball, when the two were battery mates on the Milwaukee team in the old Western Association. The Nats' owner described his old teammate as "a fine catcher" yesterday.

Leaving baseball about the turn of the century, Mr. Hurley joined the Immigration Service and came to work here during World War I.

He once served as deputy immigration commissioner of his native Boston. Upon his retirement in 1933, Mr. Hurley left Washington to return to Boston and has been living there ever since.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Grace F. Hurley, and four children: Charles T. Hurley, 3907 13th st. ne.; Mrs. Charles Randall, 210 N. Glebe rd., Arlington; John Hurley, Worcester, Mass.; and Mrs. Fred Gaudreau, Boston.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced yet.

Falls Church Rejects 'Peace' On Sewerage

The Falls Church City Council last night rejected the suggestion of a "compromise" solution to its dispute with Fairfax County over sewer assesesments in three nearby subdivisions.

On recommendation of city manager Roy S. Braden, the council voted not to conclude an agreement with Fairfax pending final disposition of the city's annexation suit against the county. The suit was rejected last month in Fairfax Circuit Court but has been appealed to Virginia's Supreme Court.

Braden said Fairfax authorities had made a reasonable offer but added that attorneys in the annexation suit had advised against any property agreements until the case is settled.

The controversy developed early this year when both Fairfax and Falls Church submitted sewerage bills to residents of three subdivisions just outside the city. About 200 homes in Walnut Hill, Poplar Heights and Donna Lee Heights were affected.

Falls Church maintained it had the right to levy the bill because sewers in the houses were connected to the city's sewer system. Fairfax claimed a similar right on the grounds that the subdivisions were located in the county and that the Falls Church system eventually dumped sewage into county lines.

The council elected Kermit Overby of 605 Hillwood ave. as one of its members to fill a vacancy created by the recent resignation of Carl Hink. Overby, 40, an information specialist with the Rural Electrification Administration, was sworn in by Mayor Albert M. Orme at the close of the meeting.

The council also approved a proposal by the Fairfax County Volunteer Firemen's Association to establish a fire control board for the northern end of Fairfax County in the Falls Church police station. The message center will have direct telephones lines to eight fire departments in the county.

While approving the proposal the council instructed Braden to draw up a contract with the firemen's association which would protect the city against liability in the event apparatus is misdirected from the message center.

Braden, who informed the council all expenses of the switchboard installation would be borne by the firemen's association, said the center would be of "inestimable value" to civilian defense plans.

Night Service Reduced On Kenwood Bus Line

Effective Sunday, October 1, Capital Transit bus route O-2, Kenwood, Edgemoor, Bradley blvd., will operate after 6 p.m. from Wisconsin and Western aves. to Bethesda Bank only, instead of to the terminal at Bradley blvd., and Burdette rd.

Capital Transit said continuance of through trips after 6 p.m. was not justified by the number of riders.

Detroit Alumni Meet To Eorm District Club

University of Detroit alumni will meet at the Burlington Hotel, 1120 Vermont ave. nw., Wednesday at 8:30 p. m. to organize an alumni club here.

The program will include a discussion of the university's 20-million-dollar anniversary development campaign and election of officers.

Gens. Lowe, Shepherd Under Fire at Kimpo

KIMPO AIRFIELD, Korea, Sept. 18 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Frank E. Lowe, President Truman's personal representative, and Lieut. Gen. Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., Fleet Marine Force commander, landed at this field by helicopter today and made an inspection tour despite Red sniper fire.

As they landed, a sniper skulking in ruined buildings 300 yards away kept taking potshots at the men swarming over the field. The Marines finally located and took care of him after two hours.

Neither general paid any attention to the firing, but talked to Marines about the Reds' overnight attempt to recapture the field and looked with interest at the wrecks of two Russian-made Yak planes.

Men's Chorus to Elect

The Silver Spring Men's Chorus will elect officers at its third annual organization meeting at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Meserole Studios, 905 Bonifant st., Silver Spring.

City Manager Elected Greenbelt Defense Head

The Greenbelt City Council last night nominated City Manager Charles T. McDonald as director of civil defense for the community.

P-TA Group to Meet

Mary Haworth's Mail

In Middle Age, Wife Has Another Child, Hoping To Steady Her Headstrong Husband; But He Reacts Unfavorably, Boasts That He'll Always Be Young

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have been married 21 years. I was 19 and Jay was 20 when we married. I knew he'd been terribly spoiled by his mother, and that he couldn't handle money, but like so many dewy-eyed girls, I thought that together we could manage. I was brought up to be rather serious, and yet I liked fun, in a clean way.

We had been married only a few months when Jay slapped me one evening in front of my sister, for teasing him. He can't stand being teased, but when he teases, it's funny (he thinks). Well, years passed and we had two fine children, but I didn't dare let them interfere with Jay's pleasures or he would sulk. He always had money for pleasures, but we were always in debt and harassed by creditors, and still are.

Once I tried handling the money, but it hurt Jay's ego, and so much was missing from his pay by the time he turned it over to me that I gave up. Later I learned he was having affairs. When confronted by the evidence he readily admitted it. He said that at last I'd found out what had been going on all along, and he doubted that it would ever stop. But I felt that he did stop for some years after that; and I for one was very happy, and I think he was too.

Now I'm beginning to have doubts again. He goes out of his way to embarrass me in front of our friends, and when I ask why he just says he won't argue about it, or he gets furious if I question him further. In spite of all this I love him and want to have a secure marriage, but I fear he will never grow up. He boasts that he will always be as young as he was at 20; and nags me for being "too mature." But I feel that at 40 I can't go around kicking up my heels as I did at 20.

Jay travels a lot, which I feel doesn't make for successful marriage; and if it weren't that we have a small baby—which I hoped would settle him down—I think I would leave. I would like both of us to have analytic treatment; but Jay refuses to consider this, saying he doesn't need it. And I don't feel it would do me any good to go alone. What are your views on the subject? F. Y.

DEAR F. Y.: In having a baby in middle age, theoretically to settle Jay, you were thereby defeating the very purpose you hoped to achieve. Or at any rate, you were again seriously unsettling the marriage, that had begun to subside into a somewhat companionable stride of recent years, when Jay seemed faithful and happy thus.

No doubt this peaceable period was largely due to your having more time to give him, inasmuch as the two older children had outgrown babyhood and were moving into self-help years. All that you say of him—that he was terribly spoiled, can't manage money, that he sulked if his children's needs interferred with his pleasures, and that he engaged in numerous affairs while you were tied down by maternal cares,—shows that you married an infantile character, not a qualified helpmeet.

His recent outbreak of hostility, which may include renewed incidents of infidelity (as you suspect), is unquestionably a compulsive expression of resentment of the new lease on responsibility, and a slap at you for bringing it on him. As for his boasting about his intent to be always young, and his nagging at your mature proclivities, these are part of his childish fight with your artless struggle to domesticate him.

In spoiling him terribly, his mother was aiming at enslavement, too; and you've paid dearly for stepping into her shoes, for that of course is the role he's assigned you in marriage. Having traded his mother for you, he privately feels utterly dependent upon your emotional support, but simultaneously he strains to convince himself that he is fearless, free and untrammeled—which explains his stiffnecked attitude about his philandering.

In my opinion, his treatment of you has been rather wicked all through. Due to his weak, wilful, neurotic cast of character he has dealt negatively with your warmhearted hopeful devotion, destructively trying to trample your buoyant spirit and make your attachment to him a source of pain rather than happiness for you. This hateful bias, of begrudging happiness to intimates and unconsciously refusing to contribute to it, is fairly commonplace neurotic behavior; and Dr. Karen Horney discusses it from various angles in one of her excellent books, "The Neurotic Personality of Our Time," published by W. W. Norton & Company.

Boiled down, the story about Jay is that he is greedy for love, but he cannot love. That's why you are exhausted and discouraged in relation to him. You need a hand-up from someone who can help you see him "as is," and guide you in making realistic adjustments,—and your own idea of consulting a psychiatrist makes good sense, even if Jay won't go along. M. H.

Experiment Winifred

Hard Work No Sure Way to Keep Slender

By Ann Lawrence

WINIFRED holds a full-time, strenuous office job. She also runs her own household and cares for her 5-year-old daughter.

Obviously, the answer is "no" for Winifred's weight is 150 pounds although well distributed. Nevertheless she would both look and feel better if she took off at least fifteen pounds.

There could be no starvation diet (as indeed there must not be for anyone!), but there could be lower-calorie diet than the one which was keeping her weight up, despite her rigorous daily routine.

Coffee (with sugar, 25; and light cream 50)
Total: 540 calories

HERE IS the breakfast she substituted:

One glass of orange juice (65) One egg, poached or boiled (75)
One slice buttered toast (75) Black coffee (0)

FOR LUNCH, Winifred usually ate:

Tuna fish sandwich (400 calories, including mayonnaise and bread in this count)
Potato chips (1 ounce, 175 calories)
Ice cream (2 small scoops, 350 calories)
Coffee, with sugar and cream (75 calories)
Total: 1000 calories

SUBSTITUTE LUNCHEON:

Clear soup (chicken, celery or tomato, about 90 calories)
Green salad, with slicers of ham, chicken and cheese added (200 calories, including dressing)
Three crackers or 1 slice toast (75 calories)
Large glass of skimmed milk (94 calories)
Total: 459 calories

MID-AFTERNOON SNACK: Subsitute large glass of tomato juice (28 calories) or vegetable juice (about 45) or clear tea (0) for customary cola-type soft drink (65).

AT DINNERTIME, Winifred liked a meat, with gravy, potatoes, another vegetable, soft bread with butter, and occasionally a fruit preserve, plus a rich dessert, such as cake with frosting or an ice cream sundae. Because of the variety of the dinner menu, it was impossible to add the calorie count accurately.

But she learned that she could eat two lean lamb chops (192) in place of 1 small pork chop (119); could omit potatoes (4 French fried, 75; 1 medium boiled without butter, 140) and substitute ½ cup of green peas (65), asparagus (6 stalks, 15), or broccoli (½ cup, 28) or carrots (½ cup 25). A fruit dessert—apples, canteloupe, grapefruit, fresh peaches, etc.—would cut the dessert calories in half.

And if she were hungry at bedtime, she would either have a glass of milk or fresh fruit juice.

Winifred carried a little calorie chart with her and by carefully checking it, she lost eight pounds during the course of her 14-day experiment. She will continue this easy method of dieting until she has taken off the prescribed 15 pounds.

Reunion in D. C. Theme of Party

By Marie McNair and Elizabeth Maguire

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE having your own private plane, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Havenstrite believe. From their home in Beverly Hills, Calif., they flew to New York to see Mr. Havenstrite's polo team play on Long Island. From New York they landed yesterday in Washington, and will take off this afternoon for California. With them on the trip was Mrs. Verbena Hebbard—no stranger here—and the trio shared a pleasant interlude at the cocktail party given by Jack Logan at the Sulgrave Club.

It was a small party as parties go in Washington, and a time for reunion of old friends who've spent the summer months away from town. It was a time to catch up on fashions, too, for almost everyone wore a new autumn costume and please note—almost all the frocks present were black.

THE TWO GOOD-LOOKING guests of honor were in black, one in taffeta and the other in satin. Both wore tight-fitting hats, each with a spray of glycerined ostrich floating gracefully at the side.

Gen. Omar Bradley, just awarded his fifth star rank yesterday, was snowed under by congratulations. And Mrs. Bradley in black frock and hat couldn't help but beam a little too.

The Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Charles Brannan were there, Mrs. Brannan in cocoa brown crepe with a tiny white hat. Gen. Wade Haislip and Mrs. Haislip, just back from Mexico City, were chatting with Fred Roy and the Max Truitts on their several visits to Camp Topridge in the Adirondacks as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Davies.

ADMIRAL AND MRS. CLARK WOODWARD knew practically everybody there. Also making the circuit were Gen. and Mrs. Richard Cutts of The Plains, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Powell, who had left Rehoboth Beach just for the party. Then there were Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gallagher and Mrs. Emil Hurja, and Miss Rose Saul in flaring black taffeta with a dramatic wide-brimmed black hat. Tiny blonde Mrs. Wesley Buchanan was all in black, and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim wore a trim dark blue dressmaker suit. The Bill MacCrackens had their daughter, Nell, who's just back from Germany, with them; Marvin Braverman was smiling on pretty Sylvia Nabuco, niece of the Brazilian Ambassador, and I saw Mrs. Hope Ridings Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Graves, Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt, Miss Emma Perley Lincoln, Mrs. Robert Montgomery and Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan.

THOSE GREEN BAIZE bags stamped with the gold seal of Virginia, in the luggage of the 48 State Chief Justices arriving here yesterday aren't containers for their law books. They hold Planter's peanuts, Smithfield ham spread, Edgeworth tobacco with monogrammed pipes, an aluminum cooking set and several cartoons of cigarettes. The items—all products of Virginia—were presented to the Justices by their hosts at the Conference of Chief Justices just concluded at Richmond and Williamsburg, Va.

It's the second meeting of the law from the 48 states, the initial conclave being held in St. Louis last year. And they've laid plans for next year's meeting to be held in New York. Elected chairman of the organization for the coming year is Chief Justice Edward W. Hudgins of the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals, whose son, Lieut. Comdr. William H. Hudgins USN, is one of the nicest young bachelors in this town. Vice Chairman is Chief Judge John T. Loughran of New York.

MRS. J. THOMAS PRIDDY, JR., whose marriage took place September 16 at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, is the former Miss Margaret Fifield Merriam, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Merriam of Spring Valley, Washington. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Clara L. Priddy and J. Thomas Priddy of Richmond, Va. The newlyweds will reside in Richmond following their honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga. Mrs. Priddy attended Mount Vernon School, Pine Manor Junior College and was graduated from Mount Vernon Junior College. Mr. Priddy attended St. Christopher's Preparatory School in Richmond and was graduated from the University of Virginia

HERE, WITH Headquarters at the Lafayette Hotel, the group finds itself taking part in the American Bar Association activities being held this week. Tallest in the party in Chief Justice J. E. Hickman of Texas. Chief Justice Eugene E. Pratt of Salt Lake City has Mrs. Pratt and their twin daughters, Geneva and Betty Jane. Others here are Chief Justice and Mrs. A. B. Neil of Tennessee and their daughter, Josephine; Chief Judge John T. Loughran of New York, who is accompanied by his son, Jack Loughran, New York lawyer, and Mrs. Loughran.

Governor and Mrs. Battle, who saw the conference through, turned back at Williamsburg for Richmond. But accompanying the Chief Justice to Washington were State Senator and Mrs. John J. Wicker, jr.

WITHIN THE LAW:

MR. AND MRS. CHARLTES S. RHYNE entertained yesterday at their home on Foxhall Road from 5 to 8 p. m. for officers, past presidents and State delegates of the American Bar Association.

Guests attending included Sir Godfrey Russell Vick, vice president of the International Bar Association; Harold J. Gallagher, president of the American Bar Association, and Mrs. Gallagher; Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Robertson of Juneau, Alaska, and E. J. Dimock of New York.

Also, Harrison Tweed, president of American Law Institute; Willis Smith, former president American Bar Association, and Mrs. Smith; Judge and Mrs. Bolitha J. Laws, and another former president of the American Bar Association, George M. Morris, and Mrs. Morris of Washington. Guests numbered about 150.

OVER 2000 wives of visiting members of the bar associations met for tea yesterday afternoon at the Pan American Union between 4 and 6 p. m. Barnee and his orchestra furnished the music, and coffee and punch were served from three long buffets. Mrs. Robert Elliott Freer was chairman of the program.

Canadian delegates to the joint meetings of the Canadian and American Bar Associations were received from 6 to 8 p. m. by the Canadian Ambassador and Mrs. Wong at the embassy residence on Rock Creek dr.

ALONG EMBASSY ROW

MEMBERS OF THE CHILEAN colony were received yesterday from 6 to 8 p. m. at the embassy by the Ambassador and Senora Nieto del Rio. The occasion celebrated Chile's national holiday. Army Day, another Chilean holiday, is to be celebrated today. Brig. Gen. Walton Ojeda, military attache at the embassy, will be host at a stag cocktail party from 6 to 8 p. m. at the Army Navy Club.

MISS ALWINE VAN STEENWIJK of the Netherlands Embassy, who is leaving for a new post at The Hague, was honored yesterday at a buffet supper party given by Lieut. Comdr. Andrew W. Bright, USNR, and James Laverty at their home on Fort Myer dr.

In the company were Miss Sally Bradley, Miss Sasha Gringut, Miss Betsy Winter, Mrs. Albert d'Amecourt, Miss Alwilda Ferris and Ross de Matteo, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Andre Elsakkers, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. van Hemert, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Sterling Ivison, and others.

THE NEW AMBASSADOR of the Netherlands, Jan Herman van Roijen, is to present his credentials to President Truman today at 12:15 o'clock.

THE COLOMBIAN AMBASSADOR, Dr. Eduardo Zuleta-Angel, was host at dinner last evening at the Carlton and also entertained at a stag luncheon at the Carlton yesterday, in honor of Colombia's Minister of War, Col. Roberto Urdaneta, who is also head of his country's delegation to U. N.

A small group of Latin-American envoys; Assistant Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Paul Daniels, U.S. Ambassador to OAS, were among the luncheon guests.

The Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Korr, Undersecretary of State and Mrs. James Webb, were included in the dinner company.

Miss Bessie Franklin Wed in Virginia

FRIENDS AND KISSING KIN from miles around attended the wedding Sunday of pretty Miss Bessie Franklin to James Macdonald at Fall Hill, Fredericksburg, Va. The bride is the daughter of Lynn W. Franklin, United States Consul-General, retired, and Mrs. Franklin, and the bridegroom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Peter Macdonald of Torrington, Conn.

The ceremony took place in the hallway of Fall Hill where the bride's mother was married. White flowers banked an improvised altar, and magnolia and ivy leaves were twined around the staircase. The bridegroom's father and the Rev. Thomas Faulkner of St. George's Episcopal Church, Fredericksburg, officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. Franklin gave his daughter in marriage. She was gowned in heirloom ivory satin trimmed with flounce and fichu of Normandy lace. Her headdress of Valenciennes lace had been worn by her mother and her wooden prayer book, carried in a shower of miniature ivory rosebuds, belonged to her great-grandmother, Butler Taylor of Fall Hill.

Miss Jenny-Lynn Franklin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Tibor Bartok of New York City was best man.

Mrs. Macdonald is a direct descendant of George Washington's godmother and aunt, Mildred Washington Gregory, and she is also a direct descendant of Francis Thornton, who built Fall Hill in 1736.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Macdonald will make their home in New York City.

If You Know What You Want:

Fashion Parade Needn't Be a Marathon

Nobody can wail she's not tall enough to wear the new fashions, because the new fashions have been scaled to fit the not-so-tall and other hard-to-fit figure types. Here are three gowns that were highlights of yesterday's informal fashion showing of Diminutives at Woodward and Lothrop's. Left: The important new coat dress in rayon crepe with curved bodice closing and wrap-around skirt. Seated: A jutting peplum punctuates the very new narrow line of this new ribbed crepe with its jeweled buttons. Right: The new strapless short dance dress in taffeta with butterfly bow posed at decolletage of braid-embroidered bodice

By Evelyn Hayes

IF ALL THE STEPS women used in useless shopping were clocked on a pedometer, the total mileage would put a marathon to shame. Of course, some women simply shop "pour le sport," but many more shop purposefully—without ever really understanding their purpose.

Most important is to know exactly what you want—in terms of a planned wardrobe—and then to shop until you find it. To save shopping time—yours and the salesclerks'—be specific. There's no sense in walking into a store and saying "I want a dress." The salesgirl isn't psychic. You must be specific and say "I want a dressy black velvet suit" or some such. Then she knows what you're talking about.

WHATEVER YOU'RE SHOPPING FOR—dress, suit or coat—always look for something with essential good lines. It's the lines that do something for your figure, while the eye-catching trimming is a sometime thing that fades fast. Of course, good lines depend on good fit, too. The most expensive gown in the world won't do a thing for you if it doesn't fit properly, while an inexpensive suit knowingly fitted by a good tailor will be a joy as long as the fabric holds out.

Recognizing the importance of fit and the difficulties of the many not-so-tall, not-so-slim women, designers produce sizes scaled for various figure types. Just yesterday Woodward & Lothrop's held a showing of Diminutives, fashions especially designed for those who are less than the average height. (See photos above.)

THE WOMAN WHO WEARS half sizes—one who has long been Fashion's step-child—can now find good fashions adapted to her proportions. Even Paris has given this group a fashion nod. Molyneux, Rouff and other French couturiers have this year designed collections for those not quite tall enough to wear standard women's sizes. Lansburgh's is one of the stores in Washington which carries moderately priced reproductions of these high fashions.

Of course, even with specially proportioned clothes, there are several checkpoints in fitting to keep in mind. Always fit the shoulders carefully. The fit should be easy enough so the fabric won't span the shoulder blades when you move. Be sure you can take a deep breath. You might even want to sigh! If size 12 is too small across the shoulders, buy a 14 and have the rest whittled down to fit. Don't be size-conscious—be fit-conscious.

IMPORTANT FIT POINT No. 2 is the waistline. Make certain—very certain—that the waistline of the dress and YOUR waistline coincide. Nothing looks worse than a line that's just a little too high. A stock comedy figure has long been the male with too-high, too-tight belted Norfolk jacket. Too many women unwittingly—or should we say unfittingly—play the female counterpart.

With the shoulders and waistline approximately what they should be, the rest of the dress can easily be taken care of. Be strong-minded about these two points—and don't be thrown off by the salesgirl's easy flattery.

A FULL-LENGTH THREE-SIDED mirror can be a girl's best friend and severest critic when it comes to fitting. Be sure you don't close your eyes to what you see there. Study what lines do the most for you and don't buy anything that doesn't flatter.

Remember beauty and chic are a mixture of natural endowment and illusion—with your clothes providing the illusion, so never sell short on illusion and settle for anything less than the color or style that does the most for YOU.

D. C. Hadassah Launches Fall Meeting Slate

THE WASHINGTON CHAPTER of Hadassah, whose membership totals some 3000 members, is starting its new season with meetings this week by the eight area groups through which the chapter functions.

Since an accelerated health and welfare program for Israel for the coming year was adopted by the 36th annual convention held in New York last month, Hadassah women will be urged to participate more strenuously now than ever before in the medical, child welfare, vocational education, youth rehabilitation, and land redemption projects. Convention reports will be given at each group meeting this week.

THE GREENWAY GROUP, eighth and newest member unit of Hadassah, held its first meeting Monday at 8 p. m. Acting president is Mrs. David Kaufman. Her son, Eugene S. Kaufman, gave a talk on his recent trip to Israel. Mrs. Benjamin Manchester, president of the Washington Chapter, outlined Hadassah's aims and projects.

PRINCE GEORGES COUNTY group meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. tonight at 4316 28th pl., Mt. Rainier, Md. Mrs. Paul Eanet will report the convention. Mrs. Irving Jacobs is the new president.

Musical selections by Mrs. William Lichtenberg will be a feature of the Connecticut ave. group which meets at the Highlands on Connecticut ave. and California sts. nw. A social hour will be given by Mrs. Fred Gichner.

THE UPPER NORTHWEST GROUP will devote its first meeting to membership when it meets at 1 p. m. today at Stansbury Hall, Georgia ave. nw. at 1 p. m. The opening prayer will be read by Mrs. A. Lincoln Dembits. Mrs. Joseph Freedman, past president of the Washington Chapter, will report on the convention. Mrs. Paul Eanet, new group president, will preside.

We Walked Together

We went to church together and . . . We tried to understand . . . And on the way to work and school . . . I used to hold your hand . . . I held it hidden in your coat . . . And squeezed it now and then . . . And always there were promises . . . That we would walk again . . . That we would walk and we would talk . . . About the happy schemes . . . That filled our hearts and touched the sky . . . With all our youthful dreams . . . I went to work, you went to school . . . And time went rolling by . . . And then one night I walked with you . . . And you began to cry . . . I did not know the answer then . . . But I deserved the blame . . . And now I wish your lips were mine . . . And I could call your name.

Role of Women in Defense to Be Studied

Leaders of several national women's organizations will meet in Washington October 6 to consider "the full partnership of women of this country in the world crisis."

The clubwomen plan to draw up recommendations to the Defense Department and the National Resources Planning Board on the role of women in all phases of civil defense and economic and military mobilization.

First proposal for the meeting was introduced by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs in San Francisco, Calif., last July at its biennial convention.

Since then the federation formed a "strategy committee" including eight other women's groups which is drafting the agenda and invitation list for the meeting.

The groups are the American Association of University Women, Associated Women of the American Farm Bureau Federation, General Federation of Women's Clubs, League of Women Voters of the United States, National Board of the Young Women's Christian Association, National Council of Catholic Women, National Council of Jewish Women and the United Council of Church Women.

Miss Marjorie Fraser Webster, president of the D. C. Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is chairman of arrangements.

Gardner Rite Celebrated in Beverly Hills

A WEDDING OF WIDE interest to Washington society took place in Beverly Hills, Calif., on September 14, when Miss Carrie Horn Derby of York, Ala., became the bride of Ralph Webb Gardner of Washington, D. C., and Shelby, N. C.

The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Pauley. The bride served for the past six years as executive assistant to Mr. Pauley, a former special Ambassador of Mr. Truman and former treasurer of the National Democratic Committee.

The bridegroom, a member of the law firm of Gardner, Morrison & Rogers, is the son of Mrs. O. Max Gardner and the late Mr. Gardner. His father was a former Governor of North Carolina, and at the time of his death was Ambassador-designate to England.

The bride wore white Chantilly lace over satin and carried lilies of the valley. Her brother, Frank Derby, jr., of Eutaw, Ala., gave her in marriage. Mrs. Marie McHenry of Los Angeles, Calif., was matron of honor and Miss Susan Jean Pauley served as maid of honor. Fred Morrison of Washington was best man.

The newlyweds will reside in Shelby, N. C., following their honeymoon cruise in the Caribbean.

MRS. RALPH WEBB GARDNER

Jane Wideman To Be Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Wideman of Washington and West Palm Beach, Fla., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Dickson Wideman, to David Richard Moulton. The wedding will take place in the late fall.

The bride-elect attended the National Cathedral School in Washington, and she was graduated from Finch Junior College and the University of North Carolina, where she was a member of Pi Beta Phi. She is a member of the Junior League of Washington, and she recently returned from a tour of Europe. During the Roosevelt Administration, her father served as Assistant Attorney General.

Mr. Moulton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt F. Moulton of Palm Beach and Gull Lake, Mich. He was graduated from Michigan State College, where he was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity. He also attended the Harvard Graduate School of Engineering.

Ask Anne

Second Wedding Can Be Lovely, Too; but a Few 'Don'ts' Are Recommended

DEAR ANNE:

Would you please help me plan my wedding? You see, this is to be my second marriage. I was married quite young and my marriage did not last. We separated for two years, then were divorced. I have a little girl aged 6.

Since I did not have all the trimmings a girl likes in my first marriage, I was wondering if it would be proper, in whole or in part, this time. Bill and I want to be married in church. Both of us want our parents and close friend present.

Of course, I cannot wear a white gown, so what do you suggest? Would a long dress, in pale yellow, pink or very pale gray with matching finger-tip veil be permissible? Or should I wear a ballet length dress with hat or flowers? Would lace, with constrasting slip be appropriate? (Nothing in blue, please! I was married in blue the first time.)

How many attendants would be proper? I believe only matron of honor. Or may I have one or two more? In considering my daughter: Neither of us want her to feel left out or unimportant. Bob wants to adopt her after we are married, so would it be correct to have her for a flower girl? Would it be permissible for my father to give me in marriage? Bill wants his father to act as best man.

P. M., Washington.

There is no reason why you shouldn't have a lovely wedding this second time, P. M. Just how far you go on "trimmings" depends in part on the customs of your church and your circle of friends (here produced only in part) is that everything shall be in good taste so that Bill and his family will be proud of you.

A pastel dress would be beautiful for the occasion, but a veil is not worn for a second marriage. Either a pretty halo hat or a flower arrangement would be fine. The dress should be of the afternoon gown type and I believe I'd vote for the ballerina length since this is now so widely favored. Lace, with contrasting slip, would be quite appropriate.

My own feeling is that it would be just as well to confine your adult feminine attendants to the matron of honor. It is indeed the proper thing for your father to give you in marriage, and for Bill to have his father as best man. About the question of your little daughter as flower girl, I am heartily in sympathy with your wanting her to have a part in the festivities. This does seem to be widely done nowadays and to be accepted.

For other helpful information about details of the wedding, I'd suggest consulting "Your Wedding" by Marjorie Binford Woods (Bobbs Merrill.) I'm sure you can find this, or some other recent book on wedding etiquette, at your public library.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you tell me how to make a simple white icing with confectioner's sugar? Can you use egg whites?

A. K., Washington

Easiest thing in the world, A. K. Just beat up whites until they're foamy, then add sifted confectioner's sugar until the frosting's of the right consistency to spread. For a whole cake, you'll want to use 3 egg whites, as much sugar as they will take, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, and 1 teaspoon of vanilla.

If you want to use left-over icing to ornament cake, add enough extra sugar to make it hold shape when forced through pastry tube.

PETUNIA

I find with men especially
My cooking really rates.
I made the hottest mustard in The whole United States!

Wonderful stuff, Petunia! Stir 3 T boiling water into one T dry mustard. Cool—add salt to taste, and a bit of salad oil to keep it from drying out. Let stand 20 minutes . . . and WOW!

One on the Aisle—

'Affairs of State' Relights Gayety

By Richard L. Coe

THE GAYETY spins its season off to a winning start with Celeste Holm and her excellent company in "Affairs of State."

There is genuine charm in this comedy by Louis Verneuil, which approximates a French farce with a Washington setting. But what brought frequent delighted chuckles of the first first-nighters was its top-drawer performing.

The story tells of a retired secretary of state, aged 70, who learns that his wife, 30 years his junior—well, 29—wishes her freedom to marry a handsome bachelor senator her own age. With Gallic perspicacity, Verneuil shows us how the wise diplomat entices their book-loving niece, a midwest schoolteacher, to take over the senator in a loveless match simply because bachelors make poor political lions.

So the play, you see, has no surprises in story form. But in the characters of the old secretary and his alert niece it has two people you enjoy watching and whose reasoning has the wit of logic.

In adapting this situation, so peculiarly French (who, for instance, would dream of a Colorado male submitting to such devices as the senator welcomes?), Verneuil has been well advised. He has the old man remark that his father never thought he'd ever amount to anything—"But then, of course, he died while I was only Minister to Luxemburg." We have an opening scene with the expected references to Harry, Bess and Margaret (a peculiarly New World familiarity), and we have some touches of current strains in Marshall Plan and socialized medicine allusions. By this means Verneuil brings what I suspect is in essence one of his 66 French plays into American focus, though his basic premise you accept, however courteously, only on his say-so.

Miss Holm has a perfectly wonderful time as the niece who turns what she describes as an odd job ("Don't wives sleep out sometimes?") into a promising marriage. What a delightful comedienne she is! Her timing is always a marvel of accuracy, and her shifts of voice bring smiles for the blandest lines. It is a part nattily tailored for a comedienne who sometimes has the flashes of Ina Claire.

Skilled Cast Big Help

Reginald Owen, too, returns to the stage in fine fettle as the mellow oldster who's as young in heart as he is canny of mind. It is a sure performance and it's fine to have him back on the stage after his 17 years in Hollywood.

Another suave performance is Barbara O'Neil's femme du monde who finally accepts the invisible chains her husband has so skillfully wrought. Miss O'Neil's facile ways bring added sympathy to a novel interpretation of "the other woman" and her foot-tapping scene rivals Phyllis Povah's celebrated moment of "Light Up the Sky."

As the battle-locked senator, Shepperd Strudwick has the luckless assignment of an utter sap, but since he looks like Flair's ideal of a bachelor senator and seems to believe thoroughly in his ridiculous position, the casting office couldn't have done better.

Harry Bannister has some fruity moments as the current secretary of state and looks well capable of walking to work with a Supreme Court justice. David White and Elmer Brown complete the small cast.

Producers Richard W. Krakeur and Fred F. Finklehoffe have dressed their script well with settings by Paul Morrison and costumes by Dorothy Jeakins. The author has directed and though the play's overlong, that can be remedied.

All told you can look forward to a cheerful time this first week of the Gayety season.

LAST NIGHT also brought the opening of the annual Gadsby's Tavern play in Alexandria . . . The Little Theater is playing G. Coleman Sr's. "The Jealous Wife" with Mrs. Leland Casey, Richard Barton, Murray Sheehan, Kitty Mifflin, Byron Rash, Robert Hogan, Paul Carmi, Joan Coppock, Jane Miller, Kay Byrne, Earl Weatherwax, Harry Cary, George Lytle, John Watson and Billy McCue . . . With its costumed link-boys, registry clerk, ushers and Washington family, the Gadsby revival will continue through the 30th.

DAN DURYEA and Gale Storm will try a novel trick for their personal appearance tomorrow at Keith's for the opening of "The Underworld Story." . . . They'll invite the audience to ask questions, at least most of which they'll try to answer. . . . Time of their appearance will be announced in tomorrow's paper.

THE PIX also is relighting. . . . This afternoon brings a new French farce, "A French Scandal" to the redecorated spot on New York ave. . . . This is adapted from Gabriel Chavallier's novel, "Clochemerle." . . . First showing at 2 o'clock.

THE SEASON'S OPENER: Celeste Holm and Reginald Owen, two stage veterans returning to the theater after Hollywood successes, in a scene from "Affairs of State," which last night opened the Gayety season. Shepperd Strudwick and Barbara O'Neil, two other film favorites, are featured

Senate Votes Confirmation Of O'Dwyer

By The United Press

The Senate confirmed ex-Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York as Ambassador to Mexico yesterday, 42 to 22, after rejecting Republican protests based on a gambling ring roundup in Brooklyn.

The 60-year-old one-time policeman was confirmed after a bitter political fight in which the Republican opposition lost every round.

A motion by Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.) to postpone action for 48 hours, pending further word on the gambling probe, was defeated, 37 to 25.

A Republican move to send the nomination back to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for further study was defeated, 40 to 24.

Asks Delay to Wednesday

Ives asked for the delay until Wednesday so he could ask District Attorney Miles F. McDonald, who is conducting the Brooklyn inquiry, whether there is "any reason" why O'Dwyer should not be confirmed.

He said McDonald has turned up evidence of what might become "the worst scandal in the history of the New York Police Department."

Republicans also seized on the fact that New York Judge Samuel Leibowitz said over the weekend that an "honest" police force could stamp out bookmaking there in 24 hours and "clean out this scum."

'Phony Politics' Charges

Democrats accused the Republicans of playing "phony politics." They said they actually were trying to prevent confirmation before next January in the hope they might control the Senate by then.

Ives denied there was "politics" in his opposition. He expressed the highest personal regard for O'Dwyer but insisted it would be a mistake to confirm him while the gambling investigation is going on.

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) objected to Ives' plan to take up the matter with the New York District Attorney. He said it would be the equivalent of the Senate surrendering its duties to an outsider.

700-Mile Rocket Firing by Soviet Reported by Paper

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 18 (AP).—The newspaper Aftonbladet reported today that Russia carried out large-scale rocket maneuvers and radar practice in the Baltic area during the summer in which 7-ton guided missiles were directed at targets up to 700 miles away.

Last April a United States Navy plane with 10 men aboard disappeared on a flight in the same Baltic area. The United States charged that the plane was shot down by the Russians. Soviet accounts said the plane had "exploratory radar" equipment aboard.

Aftonbladet said the Russian rockets were launched at Cranz near the Kurisches Haff in Soviet-held eastern Prussia, in a protected area at Leba, Poland, and from Petragge on the coast of Latvia northeast of Ventspils (Windau). The target was a small island south of Medvezhegorsk in Soviet Karelia.

The report said the Russians have a long series of radar stations extending from Porkkala, Finland, along the Russian, Estonian, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish and East German coasts down to Wismar, in the Russian occupation zone of Germany.

Six in GOP Seek Governorship in Massachusetts

BOSTON, Sept. 18 (AP).—Republicans of Massachusetts will make a choice in Tuesday's primary from among six candidates for the gubernatorial nomination while Democratic Gov. Paul A. Dever is unopposed as party leader for a second term.

Included in the GOP field for governor are Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, ousted chief of naval operations, and Maj. Gen. Daniel Needham, peacetime commander of the Yankee Division.

Denfeld is backed by Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, but is given only an outside chance because of the veteran campaigners in the opposition. One of them, former Lieut. Gov. Arthur W. Coolidge, a fourth cousin of the late President Coolidge, never lost in a Republican primary in 25 years.

Canada, U .S. Discuss International Airport

OTTAWA, Sept. 18 (AP).—Canada and the United States today inched closer to the development of a multi-million-dollar international airport at Windsor, Ont., across the Detroit River from Detroit.

Officials of the two Governments met at an all-day closed session to discuss such points as location of the site, type of aircraft required, how the airport will be jointly controlled "and similar administrative problems."

Congress Candidate Called Up by Marines

BLUEFIELD, W. VA., Sept. 18 (AP).—The United States Marines landed today in the middle of Arnold G. Porterfield's campaign for Congress.

Porterfield, Republican Congressional candidate from the Fifth district and a master sergeant in the Marine Corps reserves, was ordered to report for active duty September 30.

The former Bluefield police chief said he would not withdraw from the race and would continue to campaign until he leaves for camp LeJeune, N. C. He opposes veteran incumbent John Kee.

Georgia All-White Delegation To Youth Sessions Is Rejected

By The Associated Press

Refusal by Gov. Herman Talmadge to put Negroes on Georgia's committee for a White House conference on children and youth has set off a fight that might leave the State without representation.

The national committee planning the meeting is known to be considering two possible courses of action if Talmadge stands firm:

1. Refusal to seat the Georgia delegates.

2. Reduction of the Georgia delegation by one-third and invitations to representative Negro organizations in the State to name members to fill out the State's quota.

A spokesman for the committee told a reporter yesterday that Talmadge had refused flatly to include Negroes in the State committee assigned to plan Georgia's part in the conference and select delegates.

Now the national group is awaiting an answer to a letter sent to Talmadge last week. That letter described the all-white delegation, named on recommendations of the similarly all-white State committee, as unacceptable.

Final decision on the Georgia representation has been left by the committee to Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing, chairman of the national group.

It will be held December 3 through December 7, meeting in the National Guard Armory here. Seating capacity limits attendance to 5500 and quotas were assigned the States from among 4500 adults, 500 young persons, and 500 foreign delegates. Georgia's quota was 36.

Objections to the all-white delegation from Georgia were based on statistics showing a one-third Negro population.

All other State committee have been found satisfactory, committeemen said, and the delegations are now being selected.

GI Exemption From Income Tax Granted

By The Associated Press

A complete tax exemption on the pay of GIs fighting in Korea, with tax reductions for their officers, was approved yesterday by a House-Senate committee now writing the final draft of the $4,508,000,000 tax-boosting bill.

The committee also confirmed its previous tentative action accepting the Senate-approved boost of $2,700,000,000 a year in the income taxes of over 50,000,000 individuals and a $1,500,000,000 increase in normal corporation levies.

Both actions came after the group, at an unusual Sunday session, broke a deadlock on the tax bill writing into it a pledge for Congress to take up a multi-billion dollar excess profits tax either later this year or early next.

Late yesterday, the committee still had failed to complete its job of smoothing out all the differences between House and Senate versions of the tax bill.

Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the House Ways and Means committee said, however, he is hopeful that the bill can be finished today. If so, the Senate and House may stamp their final approval on it in time for Congress to go home this week.

The conferees decided to discontinue to tax at the regular individual income rate the value of stocks distributed in corporate "spin-offs."

A "spin-off" occurs when an established corporation puts part of its assets into a new firm and distributes the stock in the new company to its own shareholders.

The conferees also approved a provision permitting publishers of newspapers and periodicals to deduct as ordinary expenses their expenditures to maintain, establish or increase circulation.

3 Correspondents Injured in Jeep's Collision in Korea

BEACHHEAD, Korea, Tuesday, Sept. 19 (AP).—Three war correspondents—two Americans and one British—were injured yesterday in the collision of their jeep and another vehicle in a cloud of dust.

The injured:

John Davies of the Newark, N. J., Daily News, possible skull fracture and arm injury; Jim Bell of Time and Life magazines, broken arm and chest injury, and Lauchie MacDonald of the London Daily Mail, cut over one eye and leg injury which laid bare his shin bone.

Another correspondent riding in a vehicle behind the trio said their jeep ran into swirling dust kicked up by heavy traffic.

"There was a grinding crash," he said, "and then I saw them lying on the roadside. The jeep was demolished."

Sunday night all three had stayed with a Marine battalion which was attacked by Reds in a banzai charge. They came through that ordeal unscathed. They were hurt while trying to get back to the communications ship to file the story of the night of fighting.

Foreign Editors Meet; Discuss Press Institute

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, said tonight that the current visit here of 15 leading editors of western Europe, South America and Asia is to discuss formation of an International Press Institute.

Ackerman spoke at a dinner at the University Club honoring the editors.

The 15 editors, here as members of the first International Press Institute Conference, are from India, Scotland, Austria, Japan, Switzerland, France, Australia, Finland, Sweden, Germany, Argentina, Chile, Belgium and Turkey. Two are from France.

Blame Put on Air Line For Crash Killing 80

LONDON, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The Minister of Civil Aviation today charged owners of the airliner that crashed and killed 60 persons in Wales last March with failing to conform to air safety laws.

The Tudor airliner, owned by Fairflight, Ltd., was carrying Welsh football fans home from a match in Belfast when it crashed near Cardiff. The owners were summoned to appear in court at Burnham on October 2 to answer charges of not conforming to the requirements of its airworthiness certificate.

Ex-School Official Shot

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 18 (U.P.). James Gould, 56, former treasurer of Philips Academy, Andover, Mass., shot himself to death today with a light shotgun while on leave from a New England veteran's hospital, police reported.

MASTER OF ALL!

Located in exclusive Hillwood. When you see this home you will know what we mean. If it's luxury living you are looking for, by all means call for appointment. Situated gracefully on a gorgeous ½ acre of velvet green, beautifully studded with shrubs and trees, you will see this most impressive home. The architecture in general is English Tudor, constructed of solid 12-inch stone walls, thick slate roof and steel joints with concrete subfloor. Entering the home across from the side hall we have a gracious living room, 18x25, with fireplace; huge formal dining room, oversized kitchen, 1st floor bath and pine-paneled den with fireplace. From the same side hall we have a winding stairway to 2d floor where there are 4 bedrooms and 3 baths; plus huge dressing room off the master suite. There's also a stairway at the end so the smaller bedroom and bath could be used for maid's room. Full basement with asphalt tiled floor and ½ bath. 2-car attached garage. Total price, $45,000.

Walter Winchell —In New York

Broadway Showboat

The 1950 version of "Franklin D. Roosevelt Jones" is the rousing campaign ditty in Irving Berlin's soon-due "Call Me Madam." The title is "They Like Ike!" . . . "Sunset Boulevard" at the Music Hall (with Glorious Swanson) is Hollywood at its big-time best . . . Faye Emerson features that Veronica Lake hairdo only when she's slumming in the gay places. Her teevee public strenuously objected to it when she offered it via the cameras . . . Joe E. Lewis's sassmatazz at the Copa is funderful. No comic has more surefire material—in a dozen songs. All showstoppas . . . Grounds for Murder: A new book about Movietown makes Paulette Goddard 15 years older than she is . . . Radio's corpse-and-robbers dramas are all right if you think pistol shots are entertainment . . . The "Goodnight, Irene" wordage makes you regret the invention of the alphabet. This is lyrics???

When Bob Hope in "Fancy Pants" is being slugged by Bruce Cabot his big lament rocks the house with: "Only a coward hits a coward!" . . . "Blues by Bargy" remains the most constantly beguiling teevee song session. Her vocallure is pure velvet . . . The theatre is digging back into its files. Umpteen revivals are on the new season's list . . . Most improved teevee tidbit is the Stork Club stanza. Sherman Barrymore no longer looks at the lens as though it might devour him . . . A Coast colyum's confused simile: "Ginger Rogers looks cuter than peanuts." I don't geddit . . . Judy Garland's cooing of "Friendly Star" in "Summer Stock" is like a Spring day set to music . . . You should have Clark Gable's worries. If he quit now, he'd get MGM's pension of $30,000 per annum . . . Dick Rodgers jotted down the eardorable "Happee Talkee Talk" song in 20 minutes.

Nothing lifted the eyebrows higher than spotting vaude veteran Bert Wheeler in Variety's New Acts dept. . . . The muscle is mightier than the pen: Last season Broadway stagehands made more money than playwrights! . . . Some new and hilarious sketches have made "Peep Show" laughable as well as lookable . . . How Times Change: The State Dep't is urging Hollywood to stop reviving flickers dealing with Jap atrocities . . . The biografilm of Negro baseball star Jackie Robinson is doing a bigger biz in Dixieland than Yankeeville . . . They must be desperate for novelty acts. One program came up with "the world's champion baton-twirler" . . . The bouncy ditty, "Tzena, Tzena, Tzena," has inspired one tagged: "Tzin, Tzun, Tzan." Hmf. Tzilly, Tzilly, Tzilly . . . Latest recruit to the colyuming saltmines is film director C. B. DeMille. Wants to work for a living, eh?

"The Difficult Years," an import from Italy, not only is adult drama but one of the items the Marshall Plan should support wherever Communism threatens. It suffered a brief run at the World Theatre on 49th . . . Hollywood is like this: Debra Paget is a brown-orb'd doll. So in her Technicolor debut they changed her eyes to blue via contact lenses . . . "Studio One" knows how to use an instrument many other dramatic shows neglect. The camera . . . Who's the genius responsible for advertising "The Men" via sexy adverts? Taste was never more ugh. That flicker deals with war vet paraplegics! . . . The singing station identification on CBS is cornier than Iowa . . . Al Jolson's flight to Korea to "sing some songs" for the troops was a thrilling flash. He was the first entertainer to go the last time, too. The Number One Guy is correct.

George Bernard Shaw's reply to a New Yorker who suggested his works be televised: "My works are not available. Television kills a living work commercially. Mine are all alive and growing. There are thousands of first-rate plays and books commercially dead. They are your natural prey" . . . Double-Take: A Coast report says when June Allyson learned she was imaging "it was a surprise to both June and her husband, Dick Powell." Onowlookahere! . . . Lend an ear to Tony Martin's platter of "The Thrill Is Gone" and have yourself a daydream . . . "All the King's Men," which was okayed and oscared by the critics—did so-so biz in the hinterlands . . . Antonio Moreno has a bit role in "The Asphalt Jungle." He was a star long before the movies learned how to gab . . . Kay Thompson's London notices were practically love-letters. The Toast of Piccadilly.

Why Press Agents Are Important: Barbara Baxley, who played the lead in "Peter Pan" for two weeks during Jean Arthur's indisposition, didn't receive one nod from any gazette, mag or trade journal. She was so good, too . . . Claire Dixon, the wardrobe matron for "Tickets, Please" (at the Coronet), was a leading lady in 3 plays there when it was named the Forrest . . . "Call Me Madam" is Ethel Merman's 11th show. She's figured out she's enjoyed 48-week seasons throughout her exciting career . . . "Paris 1900," the next feature at the Paris on W. 58th Street, is a full feature packed with newsreel clips of the past 50 years there. Something like Hollywood's recent "Golden 20s" . . . The State of Art in America: Ezio Pinza and Vic Damone have adjacent dressing rooms at MGM . . . Mae West is balking at playing Jane Russell's mother. Says she has scads of fans who just don't think of her as one. Sexier than both of them is an Italian belle named Silvana Mangano in the "Bitter Rice" film.

Bette Davis makes a terrific thing of her caricature of Tallulah in Zanuck's latest, "All About Eve." They don't say it's Tallulah, but it ain't nobody else. George Sanders portrays a critic who must be George Jean Nathan—even to the familiar Nathan cigarette holder . . . "The Live Wire," which resigned last week, rated a better fate. It was amusing a lot of the time. A bunch of talented youngsters peopled it . . . "Black Chiffon," the London hit (due on the 27th), has nothing to do with a thefted nightie. A psychiatrist disrobes Flora Robson's mind . . . "The Consul," one of the aces of the year, departs shortly. It won more prizes than any other musical in a decade . . . The Communist Daily Worker doesn't get passes to any Rodgers & Hammerstein show. So it refused to review "South Pacific" and "Happy Time" . . . "Kind Hearts and Coronets" at the Trans-Lux (on Madison near 60th) is a British bigtimer. Alec Guinness is featured in the adverts because of his click in "Cocktail Party." But Dennis Price, the leading man, is just as expert . . . Judy Garland is so broke she says: "I'm glad my husband's working!" All her films were big moneymakers. Started out there when she was 13. She's 27 now. She says she is not suspended—that they fired her. But her "contract" keeps her from working for others! Why doesn't she call a cop?

'How to Be Deliriously Happy'

Stand Up, Face Your Mirror Like a Man!

EDITOR'S NOTE: Please don't take the Foible Gompkin method for happiness seriously, gentle reader. "How to be Deliriously Happy" is a burlesque, in its own fashion, of all the "inspirational" and "how to" books of modern times.

Ira Wallach has written for many magazines and is author of "The Horn and the Roses." George Price, whose drawings illustrate the series, is the popular cartoonist of the New Yorker magazine.

These articles are from the book, "How to Be Deliriously Happy," published by Henry Schuman, New York.

By Ira Wallach

CHAPTER TWO

Of itself, the number "9" is not very impressive. At most, it represents nine units, or possibly three groups of three units each.

Yet square the number "9," multiply it by itself, and you have a result not twice as large, as might be expected, but nine times as large. The "9" has disappeared to give place to the "81"!

Have you ever thought of squaring yourself? Have you ever considered that self-multiplication will give you nine times your present personality, willpower and animal magnetism?

How do you square yourself? First, let us each inquire: Am I inferior? The answer is obviously yes. But then let us ask another question: Am I going to let my inferiority get the best of me?

Self-Suggestion Does It

We begin to conquer inferiority by calling upon a great power, the power of self-suggestion. It sounds simple, yet it is a truly miraculous device.

When you get up in the morning, simply say to yourself, "I am not inferior! I am not inferior!"

Repeat it many times during the day. Surprise your wife by saying it to her. Write it on a piece of paper and paste it on your bathroom mirror.

Let me give you a simple procedure to follow. Suppose you are a man of average stature. You get up in the morning. You say to yourself, "I am not inferior."

Reach for the Ceiling!

You have started the day right. Now suppose you think in historical terms. All right now. You are of average height. In all history have there not been famous men who were under average height?

Of course! Immediately the name of Napoleon will come to your mind.

Now what do you do? You say to yourself, firmly and with resolution, "I am taller than Napoleon! I am taller than Napoleon!"

You have already put your "averageness" in a new light. You go through your daily tasks "taller than Napoleon." This gives you a new sense of mastery. You have begun to square yourself.

Shorter Than Josephine?

I know of one young man who used precisely this technique. Having recognized that he was taller than Napoleon, he remarked as much to his wife. Unfortunately this man's wife, forgetting that marriage is a matter of Personality-Pairing, muttered, "That may be so, but you ARE shorter than Josephine."

It was mute testimony to the power of self-suggestion that this young man is still taller than Napoleon.

Make use of the mirror. Look into a full-length mirror when you get up in the morning. If possible, use a mirror whose frame is carved with eagles and other noble birds.

Jut your chin out at yourself in a pugnacious manner. Repeat the sentences which I have taught you. Declaim them in a strong, resonant voice to your mirror image. You will be surprised to detect signs of determination and inner strength in your reflection.

Think over these suggestions carefully. Read them again and again.

Just Ask Yourself This

Then ask yourself the following questions, and write your answers in the space provided immediately beneath:

1. Can I square myself? (Write your answer here)
2. Is the word "impossible" in my dictionary? (Write your answer here)
3. Do I have a full-length mirror? (Write your answer here)
4. Am I taller than Napoleon? (Write your answer here)
5. What am I going to do about it? (Write your answer here)

One additional word. Recently a friend of mine whom I have often seen in the Temple of Joy came to visit me. At Temple sessions I always found him quiet, and although he gave liberally during the collections, being a well known financier, his mind seemed to wander during the periods we set aside for silent meditation.

A Reverse Twist Overcome

Finally he came to me and confessed, "I have heard the advice which you give. Now, I, too, am inferior, but I am SHORTER than Napoleon."

Here was an interesting problem. Perhaps my advice was obvious, yet I think that if you examine it carefully you will find that it contains a great truth.

I said to him, "Get up in the morning. Say to yourself, 'I am not inferior.' Draw yourself up before the mirror. Let pride ring in your voice as you proclaim, 'Napoleon was not as short as I!'"

Today this man has been put in charge of his company's entire territory east of the Mississippi! He squared himself.

Antitrust Action

U. S. Names 89 More in Optical Suit

CHICAGO, Sept. 18 (AP).—Eighty-nine defendants in 22 States were added today in the Government's four-year-old antitrust suit involving the American Optical Co.

The new list named persons to whom the firm assigned retail outlets that it discontinued operating as branches since the suit was filed July 23, 1946.

The supplemental complaint was presented to District Judge Walter J. Labuy by Harry R. Talan, assistant U. S. Attorney of the antitrust division. Judge Labuy ordered the 89 dispensers included as defendants after Attorney George A. Ranney, jr., representing 1825 other defendants in the case, said he had no objection.

Most of the original defendants are oculists who, the Government charged, received rebates from American Optical on sales made by the company to their patients.

The additional defendants include:

Bristol Optical Co., Inc., and Jack C. Fogarty, Bristol, Va., and J. E. Blaydes, Cecil F. Johnston, Charles T. St. Clair, jr., John McGuire, and R C. Fugate, Bluefield, W. Va., all doing business as Bluefield Optical Center.

27 Czechs Given Terms as 'Kidnap' Plotters; 1 to Die

PRAGUE, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—One Czech was sentenced to death, four to life imprisonment and 23 to prison terms of from one to 22 years today in Gottwaldov (Zlin), Moravia officials said.

The 28 defendants were charged with plotting to kidnap both Minister of Defense Alexei Cepicka Deputy Premier General Ludvik Svoboda. The state also charged them with membership in the underground organization "Svetlana-Jarmila."

Jaromir Vrba, 30, described as a "murderer and organizational commander of Svetlana," was sentenced to death. Several hundred Czechs have been convicted and many sentenced to die on charges of belonging to "Svetlana," which is said to have secret branches all over the country.

Plans Laid to Build Color TV Equipment

NEW YORK, Sept. 18 (U.P.).—The Television Equipment Corporation today announced it had completed negotiations to build the first commercial color television equipment in the industry.

President John B. Milliken of TEC said the firm had arranged to build the equipment for Columbia Broadcasting System and Remington Rand, Inc. The agreement was reached after the Federal Communications Commission granted tentative approval of the CBS color television system.

Trust Suits Name 15 Film Firms, Ask $7,500,000

CHICAGO, Sept. 18 (AP).—Two Federal court suits asking a total of $7,500,000 in treble damages today accused 15 motion picture firms of violating Federal antitrust laws.

One of the actions, asking $5,400,000, was filed by H. Schoenstadt and Sons, Chicago theater chain, against 10 movie distributors, producers and theater management companies. It alleges the defendants conspired to set minimum admission prices and make uniform systems of licensing and leasing films.

The other suit, asking $2,110,000, was brought by the Tower Building Corp., owners of the Tower Theater. It charged the Balaban and Katz Corp. and other defendants agreed to hold back pictures from the Tower Theater.

Defendants include Columbia Pictures Corp.; Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp.; United Artists Corp.; Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.; Warner Brothers Theaters, Inc.; RKO Radio Pictures, Inc.; and Loew's Inc.

Newscasts Did It

War Gives the Radio New Lease on Life

By John Crosby

HERE ARE A FEW NOTES on the trade. The war, according to "The Wall Street Journal," has given radio a new lease on life. "A few months back, network broadcasting appeared to be heading over the hill," reports the Journal. "Client after client was abandoning radio for more glamorous television. . . Today it's a different story. Advertisers who, early in the summer, indicated they were through with radio are coming back this fall. . . Others are increasing the amount of money they'll spend in radio this season."

Crosby

What's causing all these brightened faces around the network corridors? The war is one important factor. According to Robert Kintner, president of A.B.C., people are turning on the radio to listen to the newscasts and just keep the set on afterwards. Pulse, a 10-city rating service, reports that newscasts are the most popular daytime programs in five of the 10 cities. In Cincinnati, for example, a news show is in first place while Arthur Godfrey is in third place. In New York, newscasts are in second and third place, respectively. Last year at the same time, the best a newscast could do in the daytime was tenth.

IN "VARIETY," Frank Scully reports wryly: "In New York alone one week showed 84 newscasters breaking the same bad news each morning, 76 around noon and 196 at night. That's 357 for the week. The Army can't get that many men volunteers for the infantry in one week. In Los Angeles the total of newscasts for the same seven-day period was 546. . . Most of these were telling the same story in almost the same words. Television has been gabbing pretty freely, too. New York had 51 such programs in one week and Los Angeles 45."

Concludes Scully sourly: "One newscaster to every 1000 men in uniform might not be an unfair ratio."

The Korean war also brought the seasonal decline in television set sales to an abrupt end. Hugh M. Belville, N.B.C.'s director of plans and research, estimates that 431,500 new receivers were installed during July, bringing the United States total pretty close to 7,000,000. Generally, July is the low month in set sales, but apparently the fear of scarcity and especially of price increases, has sent the customers scurrying to the stores. Three times as many TV sets were installed this July as were installed the same month last year.

AND IN THE MIDDLE of this situation, the Federal Communications Commission dropped its color bombshell — a decision which was warmly welcomed by just one outfit, C.B.S., which, of course, got the FCC's still not final nod for its color system. The reaction of the industry, especially those who make sets, was one of stunned surprise. James Carmine, vice president of Philco, pretty well summed up the case for all manufacturers: "If plenty of parts were available and there had been no Korean incident, it still would have taken us at least a year from today to get into production of color sets. But now it's going to take a lot longer."

Said another manufacturer: "The masses might just as well forget about color TV until 1953."

McMillan Favors Funds to Continue Child Care Setup

Chairman John L. McMillan (D. S. C.), of the House District Committee, yesterday said he favored House approval of funds to continue operation of child day care centers here.

The House Appropriations Committee has refused to vote more than $30,000 for the centers. This would force them to close about the end of this month. The Senate recommended $100,000 for another full year's operation. A month ago Congress passed legislation authorizing the centers to remain open at least three more years.

McMillan pointed out that the first supplemental supply bill which carries the day care money also contains several million dollars to bring about 200,000 emergency war workers to Washington. The centers were first started in World War II to help working mothers.

Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.), of the House Appropriations Committee, said the House probably will vote on the issue Wednesday when other disputed fund items will be considered.

Messengers Ordered Paid 75 Cents an Hour

The company, at hearings held last October, said it wanted to employ its foot and bicycle messengers at 65 cents an hour instead of the 75 cents specified in the wage-hour law. The higher rate would add $1,128,000 to its payroll, it said.

Western Union argued that if it was required to pay the legal minimum, it would have to eliminate 854 jobs for messengers.

Anyhow, the Hamburger Was Delicious

One of the best-fed men on The Washington Post's news desk is Al Manola of 1606 Fort Hunt rd., Alexandria, Va.

Al's wife, Frances, is a home economist, and used to be food editor of the News-Sentinel, down in Knoxville, Tenn. From the looks of Al, she sets a pretty good table.

The other day Frances had a stew on the stove and at the proper time sliced up some carrots and dumped them in.

Several minutes of searching failed to turn up the source until Frances lifted the lid of the stew pot. A strange, foamy substance bubbled merrily atop the stew, and Frances gingerly tasted a spoonful — to her dismay.

Reconstructing the episode later, she remembered that when she was slicing the carrots on the kitchen sink, two small pieces of Lifebuoy soap had been parked there. The soap must have gone into the pot with the carrots.

"Five pretty, housebroken, 6-week-old kittens." (Victor 2897.)

HELP, POLICE!

"You have complained," writes an irate motorist, "that District policemen are not assigned to expedite traffic at intersections where white lines are being painted on the streets.

"You might also look into the fact that work crews tear up our streets and seriously impede traffic—yet you seldom see a policeman in the vicinity.

"A good example recently was the corner of 12th and E sts. nw. You can't expect a light signal to untangle traffic like a cop can. What's the matter—are the work crews too proud to check with the police, or don't we have enough policemen?"

That's a question to which I've been trying to get a clear-cut answer for some time. We actually don't have enough men on the force, but the cops always try to cover special situations when they're asked to.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

How wonderful it is to be back in Washington again, after an absence of 3 years.

I enjoyed your vacation letters, especially those about Cincinnati, because I used to live there.

Tell me, did you go out to see the Reds play?

Mrs. Carl W. Wilson

Dear Mrs. Wilson:

No ma'am. I come from the branch of the Gold family that wants no part of them there Reds.

ARMCHAIR QUARTERBACK

When I paid for my television set, Harold Sugar assured me that the price included not only the set and a service guarantee, but a license to criticize the programs.

Elated with my new toy, I am in no mood to issue any blanket criticism (except at the FCC, which now proposes to make my precious new set obsolete by adopting a color system which I will not be able to receive in black and white).

But one minor TV technique does call for comment, I think. It's borrowed from Hollywood, and the Camel Caravan is a good illustration.

The other night we were looking at some excellent movies of the Korean fighting. The dramatic action would have been enough to hold our interest, even without a sound track.

But the producers weren't content with just excellent pictures. First they added sound effects, to give the firing of guns added realism. Then they dubbed in the voice of a narrator, to explain what was going on. And finally, believe it or not, they provided a symphony orchestra background.

It was undoubtedly a very fine orchestra, but the narrator and those doggone guns were making so much noise we couldn't really appreciate its performance.

CUT RATE STAMPS

My letters from Ontario, telling about the 10 percent bonus given when American dollars are exchanged for Canadian, bring this sequel from F. E. R. of Fairfax, Va.:

"Leaving the office the other evening, I noticed that one of our secretaries was cranking 3-cent stamps out of the machine in the lobby. I suggested that I had a booklet of stamps, and there was no need to pay the extra penny exacted on each purchase from the machine.

"'Oh, that's all right,' was her reply. 'I'm using Canadian dimes.'"

ADD DEFINITIONS

A Congressman is a fellow who is equally adept at making a Fourth of July speech about the glories of our great Nation, or a campaign speech attacking the opposition party for having led the country to the brink of ruin.

Collins' Report Highly Optimistic

By Drew Pearson

In the most optimistic war report yet given Congress, Army Chief of Staff Joe Collins promised no more retreats in Korea and predicted the Chinese Communists would not attack Formosa.

Gen. Collins

General Collins summed up the Korean situation for Armed Services Committee behind closed doors. To the best of his knowledge and judgment, he reported, "there will be no more falling back."

The good news, however, didn't stop Senators from needling General Collins about sending untrained American boys into the front lines.

"It was not our intention to do that," Collins explained. "You must remember that we didn't have enough trained men in Japan."

He pointed out that Japan was short of training grounds, because every available inch was under cultivation. Thus, the Army found it difficult to give combat training under actual battle conditions, using live explosion charges. Tank shells, he said, would ricochet for miles and would be likely to kill civilians. Yet, this is the kind of training needed to condition men for war. Collins added that training was a matter of comparison anyway, that a soldier got more out of three months intensified training under emergency conditions than a full year of peacetime training.

The Army's chief problem is not lack of manpower, but lack of equipment, the chief of staff clarified.

"People wonder why we don't call up more National Guard units and more organized reserves," he explained. "Why call up men in excess of the equipment we have to supply them with?"

Collins added, however, that the equipment was now beginning to roll, which caused Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Senate's watchdog over military production, to ask why the super, tank-penetrating bazookas had not been mass-produced earlier.

Bazooka Problems

"It was fortunate that we perfected them as soon as we did," replied Collins, who commanded the capture of Cherbourg in the Normandy invasion and has had plenty of bazooka experience. He went on to explain the difficulty in developing the delicate, precision shells for these new super bazookas, which finally stopped the Soviet 60-ton tanks. The shells release a concentrated ray of heat that can bore through 14 inches of armor—a project that took considerable perfecting by Army ordnance. After the handmade models were completed, Collins added, it was a problem to convert to mass production and the Army was lucky in having them finished just as the Korean war broke.

General Collins also talked about the thirty-eighth parallel, along which his son served as an Army officer before the invasion.

'Bad News Tony'

Dapper Congressman Tony Tauriello, the Italian-American from Buffalo, is now greeted in the congressional cloakrooms as "Bad News Tony."

This is because Secretary of Defense Louey Johnson resigned just a few days after Tauriello's scathing letter demanding that he quit.

Chapman Charges

A chubby little man with a limp Hitler moustache fidgeted before the Senate Interior Committee. He was Frank T. Bow, and he had ghost-written the speech in which Senator Andrew Schoeppel of Kansas tried to pin the Red label on Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman.

After a full day of inquiry, puzzled Chairman Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming asked: "Do you end now with the statement that you make no charge of personal disloyalty against Secretary Chapman?"

"Yes, sir," Bow replied meekly.

Earlier in the hearings, Bow had said that he dug his criticism of Chapman out of the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

"Has the House Committee ever brought any charges against Secretary Chapman?" shot back O'Mahoney.

"Not to my knowledge," Bow admitted.

He also testified that he received his anti-Chapman information two years ago when he was counsel for the old Harness Committee in the Eightieth Congress.

"You want us to infer," asked the exasperated O'Mahoney, "that when you were counsel for the Harness Committee, you did not regard this evidence as of sufficent moment to justify you to ask the Attorney General for investigation. Did you personally examine Oscar Chapman?"

"No, sir," replied Bow, "I did not . . . before this committee I am making no charges."

Disgusted, Senator Jim Murray of Montana commented, "we should be ashamed of ourselves listening to this kind of stuff when our country is threatened with dangers in the world."

Bow spoke up, "I do not doubt the loyalty of Mr. Chapman."
